Frantz Sees 'No Problem'

Recount Ballots

Itasca officials will meet at 8 o'clock tonight to recount and double check ballots in Tuesday's municipal election as a result of a petition challenging the results filed with Village Clerk Marcia Forke Wednesday.

Contested are the results of vote tallies for John Masel, 465 Lombard, Itasca, whose surprise write-in total came to 139, edging out incumbent trustee William Everham, who took only 121 votes.

The "no-opposition" election turned into a turmoil Tuesday night when tentative results were announced during a regular village board meeting. Wilbert Nottke, re-elected incumbent village president, said Wednesday.

"WE HAD WANTED to adjourn early and go out and celebrate," Nottke said. All incumbents believed they would be re-elected without opposition.

"We adjourned when we heard the early results," Nottke said, "and later went back into session. I was really surprised."

Nottke said Masel had applied to run with Nottke's Action Party slate when Trustee Roy Petherbridge indicated he might not run for reelection.

Masel then was turned down when Petherbridge "changed his mind and decided to run," Nottke said.

Itasca incumbents returned to office, and their vote totals, were Nottke, 236; Trustee Frank Atkinson, 248; Trustee Glenn Goodwin, 256; and Petherbridge, 242, the only trustee seeking a two-year unexpired term.

Newcomer Mrs. Marvin Griggs was elected to four years as village clerk, with 262 votes, to replace Mrs. Forke, who chose not to run for reelection.

MASEL, 64, WHO IS a retired president of Poetsch Interior Cabinet Co., said he did not campaign for election.

"I never expected it to be like that. What can I do," he said.

He said he intends to accept the office.

"I didn't even write my own name in," he said. "I voted for Nottke."

Apparently, it was a telephone campaign which got 139 residents to write in Masel's name.

Masel was not saying who backed him. A resident for 1½ years, Masel is a member of the Lions Club and responsible for changing the billboard at Walnut Street and Irving Park Road.

Library Board Vote Adds 4

The Roselle Library Board gained four new members in Tuesday's election. Elected for full four-year terms were William Myers, 957 votes; Mrs. Marjorie Engel, 982 votes; and Mrs. Jean Wheeler, 998 votes. James Birdsall, 904 votes, won an unexpired two-year term on the board.

Outgoing members of the board were Viola Voeltz, Virginia Fowler and Dorothy Sanborn. A new state law requires that library boards have seven members, thus the added seat to the board.

ONE INCUMBENT and two newcomers won seats on the Itasca Library Board. Incumbent Raymond Fricke, 252 votes, and newcomers Mrs. Elizabeth Mellor, 268 votes, and C. Frederick Risinger, 258 votes, were elected to fill six-year terms on the board.

Outgoing member was Mrs. Richard Bowman.

Country Fair Plans Under Way

Plans are underway for a country fair to be held May 17 by parents and teachers of both Lincoln and Salk schools in Roselle. The fair will be held from 3 to 7 p.m. at Lincoln School.

Events of the fair will include an art show, a white elephant sale, a country greenhouse and bakery, a hobby display and a talent show.

Chairman Mrs. Claraanne Zielinski said sponsors need items for the sales and displays. Anyone interested in making donations may call Lincoln School for information.

Funds from the fair will go towards purchasing an upright piano for use in the school by music classes.

ROBERT MEYERS

New Trustees Worked For Opponent

"I worked hard and had a lot of people believe in me," said a happy Robert Frantz, village president of Roselle who was elected to another four years in office Tuesday.

Frantz, seeking election as an independent, defeated William Florence, the United Party's choice for president and former village president.

Florence said he knew it would be hard for him to overcome his quitting as president two years ago. It turned out that this was the issue voters based their votes on. Frantz agreed and said he got this impression from his earliest contact with residents.

FRANTZ SAID he will have "no problem" with the six newly-elected trustees, four of whom are incumbents. "They staked their position and they were repudiated by the voters," he said.

All of the incumbents, including Village Clerk Mildred Winkler, backed Florence. All were elected, including newcomers Joseph Devlin and Ken Kummer, but Florence was not. He lost to Frantz by 30 votes, 529 to 499. Independent William Seddon got 68 votes.

Now Frantz faces the next few years with trustees who worked against his election.

They include Anthony Bonavolonta, Raymond Casperson, and Devlin, elected to four-year terms, and Mrs. Betty Lou Mann, Raymond Berg, and Kummer, elected to two-year terms.

"I look forward to four years of continuing progress," said Frantz.

TRUSTEE Bonavolonta, however, was still "downhearted" Wednesday. "As a man and individual we like him (Frantz)," he said, "but all the trustees did not feel he was fit for the mayor's position."

Tuesday night Berg seemed to be the most optimistic about working with Frantz in the future. He said village work would have to continue.

At a meeting of the DuPage County Mayors-Managers Conference in Bensenville Wednesday, Frantz was smiling, but arrived alone.

The incumbent trustees arrived earlier in a group. Later, however, they all sat together.

When asked if Frantz had come with her group, Mrs. Mann said, "No. I don't even know if he's here. Is he here? Would he dare?"

SHE SAID OF Florence's campaign, "We worked every night. Door-to-door. When it was over, and he lost, I cried. I was still in tears this morning."

After Frantz arrived, a friend commented to Mrs. Mann that her "leader" had arrived.

"A leader we don't have," she retorted bitterly. "I slammed him so much. But, it was all the truth, all the truth."

Accompanying Mrs. Mann were Berg and Robert Gurke, outgoing trustee who did not run for reelection. Berg was not as vocal as Mrs. Mann about the election results, but he nodded frequently during her remarks.

Frantz, when asked whether he feared a canvass of ballots would tip the election toward Florence, smiled broadly and said, "We counted the ballots pretty carefully."

He's Anxious to Work

John Varble, Bensenville's village president for the next four years, said Thursday he looks forward to working with the incumbent trustees.

Incumbents who were not up for election Tuesday are William Hegebarth, Frank Focht, and William Bychowski.

They are faced with working with Varble and his slate of Action Party candidates including Maynard Unger, William Bourke, and David Sloan for trustees and Fred Valentino for clerk.

Varble said he won't say what immediate changes he'll make but they will not be made until they are discussed with all board members.

"I hope they'll work with us," he said.

Varble said he did not condone the anonymous newsletters that went out to residents several weeks ago attacking the incumbents.

HE SAID SOME young people sent them out but he did not approve.

Fred Steging, who has served as president for four years, said he wishes Varble and the new trustees good luck and he hopes they follow the wishes of the people.

"We knew we were in for a tough battle," said Steging, whose complete slate including incumbent trustees Mildred Richter, Fred Hilton, and Robert Riley, and clerk candidate Mrs. Dorothy Bielak were defeated.

"We ran a clean race and we lost," he said, adding that he is never surprised at the way elections turn out.

At a meeting Wednesday in Bensenville of the DuPage County Mayors-Managers Conference, officials discussed the election.

HEGEBARTH, whose term does not expire until 1971, said of Steging:

"He is the nicest guy. This (Varble's victory) and (Steging's) defeat is like having a death in the family."

"Fred's taking it real hard, too. He was depending, he had faith in the good will of the community. He was quite shocked."

According to retiring Village Clerk Herbert Dierking, "There are a lot of downhearted people in Bensenville today."

"You know, the old-timers used to swing the elections. But, not today, not today. The old-timers, they're dying off."

Bychowski, whose term extends to 1971, said he will wait with apprehension for the results of what may become a 4-3 vote split on the village board.

He said, however, "Unger is bound to be cooperative, and I sure will be. Before I say anything, I want to wait and see."

"It's hard losing Fred (Steging)," Bychowsky said, and he referred to Mrs. Richter and Hilton as great losses to the board. "All four of them, Fred, Mildred,

John Varble

Fred Steging and Bob Riley — I never met more dedicated people."

HEGEBARTH SAID, in discussing the ouster of all incumbents, "When we (he and Bychowski) were elected, our platform was to do what's good for the community. We're going to continue to do what's good for the community."

Bychowski added, "What's good for the community is good for me."

Harold Koehler, village administrator, had a word of caution for the three trustees whose terms did not expire this year — Hegebarth, Bychowski and Focht.

He said, "It's a bitter pill the incumbents are swallowing, but I hope they can work together for the betterment of the community."

"Everybody's in a state of shock right now, and there may be accusations. But this does no good."

A breakdown of voting in Bensenville's five precincts appears inside today's Register.

OK Co-Op Board

The board of education of the Joliet Diocese voted Monday to allow three North DuPage County Catholic high schools to form a cooperative board of education.

According to Charles Clark, director of student services at Driscoll High School in Addison, the program will bring unification to the area schools and allow for reduced spending.

Each school, he said, will retain its own identity, yet will benefit from the program. If developed fully it will be the first parochial school district created in the United States.

Teachers from all three schools will meet at Driscoll May 15 for a special institute day.

They will divide into groups to discuss how they can share equipment and teaching responsibilities. According to Clark, the teacher-sharing will occur mostly at upper level courses where it is sometimes difficult to find qualified persons to teach.

THE IDEA OF combining several parochial schools into a single district is a new one.

The Driscoll, Montini, and St. Francis board will consist of six members. Three will be parents of children graduated from or presently enrolled in each of the schools. One member will be elected at large by parishioners in the schools involved, one member appointed, and one member representing the lay faculty.

Clark said he hopes the board can be chosen by the end of the school year so the program can go into effect this fall. A cooperative summer school program already has been planned for June.

According to Clark, parents and teachers have reacted "very favorably" to the cooperative idea.

"In fact," Clark said, "Many of the ideas have already come from the faculty."

Koehler Nominated

Harold Koehler, Bensenville village administrator, Wednesday was nominated secretary-treasurer of the DuPage County Mayors and Managers Conference.

Wilbert Nottke, Itasca village president and also vice-president of the conference for the past year, was nominated president, a traditional step up for his year of service.

Besides Koehler, one other new officer was nominated — newly elected Mayor Margaret Hamilton of Wheaton for vice president, for the past Nottke will be vacating.

Election will be held in May, following possible additional nominations from the floor.

The vote for the slate was unanimous Wednesday, with the following representatives of north DuPage communities attending:

ADDISON: TRUSTEES Reed Carlson and Ted Johnson, and Administrator William Drury.

Bensenville: Trustees William Hegebarth and William Bychowski, outgoing Village Clerk Herbert Dierking, Police Chief Walter Tett, Lt. Arthur Garcia, and Koehler.

Elk Grove Village: Finance Officer Donald Eppley.

Itasca: Village Pres. Wilbert Nottke and Trustee Eldon Corbin.

Roselle: Village Pres. Robert Frantz, Trustees Betty Lou Mann and Ramon Berg and outgoing Trustee Robert Gurke.

Wood Dale (long absent from mayor-manager meetings): Mayor Ralph Hansen and Village Atty. Samuel LaSusa.

Park Districts Each Elect 2

Itasca and Medinah Park districts each elected two commissioners to six-year terms Tuesday.

The uncontested Itasca election of Mrs. Joan C. Lawson, 200 S. Walnut, and Glenn A. Morrison, 237 Forest Ave., brought a good turnout with nearly 300 votes cast. Eight write-in candidates received one vote each.

Mrs. Lawson received 261 votes and Morrison, 264. About 15 ballots were spoiled due to improper markings on them.

In Medinah, the voter turnout was described as "lousy" by park district Pres.

Joseph Riha. Though three candidates were running for two positions, only about 150 out of a potential 1,500 voters went to the polls.

ELECTED WERE Gordon Manary, 6N002 Laurel Drive, and Joseph Rand, 22W410 Walnut St., both of Medinah.

Manary received 60 votes and Rand, 58. The losing contender was M. Richard Miller, 5N358 Fairway Lane, Nordic Park, with 49 votes. According to Riha, Miller didn't cast a vote.

Manary and Rand both are involved in Little League baseball.

Claims 'Smear Campaign'

Stanley Haverkamp, Bloomingdale village president who was defeated Tuesday in a bid for reelection, accused Robert Meyers of using a "smear campaign" to get elected president.

Meyers denied the charge, saying, "We wouldn't tolerate a smear campaign."

He said he knew some rumors were started but he had nothing to do with them.

Meyers, president of the homeowners association in the Indian Lakes subdivision, defeated Haverkamp 372 to 304.

P. Brendan O'Dea, independent candidate for president, took 45 votes.

One trustee on his Alert Bloomingdale Citizens ticket, Ralph Johnston, was elected with 387 votes. A former trustee, Johnston was the leading vote getter.

Two trustees on Haverkamp's Forward Party ticket, incumbent Paul Ahlrich and Werner Troesken were elected, receiving 371 and 358 votes, respectively.

INCUMBENT TRUSTEE Robert McLaughlin was voted out of office, receiving 344 votes. He was a candidate on Haverkamp's ticket.

Two candidates who ran for trustee on Meyers' ticket but lost were James McIntosh, 356 votes, and Frank Johnson, 342 votes.

The new clerk is Mrs. Dorothy Gallo of the ABC party. She defeated the Forward Party's candidate, Mrs. Arlene Malek, 363 to 356.

Meyers, who is 31, said he hopes he can work with the remaining incumbents on the board.

Catchall

ONE OF THOSE WEEKS: First a line was dropped in an editorial endorsing Maynard Unger among others for election as trustee on the Bensenville Village Board. Then, at press time Tuesday — right under the wire, in fact — we were ready to go with election results in Bensenville.

Cliff phoned up to the newsroom from the shop and wanted to know if John Varble's victorious slate was called the Action or the United Party. He was holding two pieces of copy. One said it was Action, the other said United. United, he was told, after considerable shuffling among election name lists for five towns, two park boards and two library boards.

"Guess I must be wrong," Cliff said to himself. "Could have sworn it was Action." A few minutes later, Kathy called up to the newsroom to ask the same question. Now, she was in possession of the two contradictory pieces of news copy.

"United, United," she was told. "We have this copy here that says it's Action," Kathy persisted. "Nope, United," she was assured. So, that's why United Party appears in the headlines of Wednesday's Registers, instead of Action Party, under which John Varble's slate moved to victory. Things around here have been like that all month.

Village Beat

Change Ahead?

by SYD JAMIESON

This month as voters went to the polls to cast their ballots for candidates seeking municipal office, Wood Dale, under its commission form of government, remained relatively quiet except for school board and township elections.

The next municipal election in Wood Dale is not until April, 1971, when registered voters will choose a mayor and four commissioners to serve on the council for four-year terms.

The candidates will have survived a primary election two months earlier which is generally the bell-ringer for weeding out the also-rans for the post of commissioner. Once in a while the primary finds more than two candidates running for mayor, but the number of applicants or candidates seeking this office is small compared with those seeking a seat as commissioners.

WHEN THE VOTES all have been counted in the general election voters will have selected those who will guide the village and the decision-makers for the next four years.

Wood Dale is one of the few municipalities in Illinois still operating under the commission form of government.

Most of its neighbors operate under a village board of trustees with staggered terms of office. Most of its neighbors have a mayor or village president with six trustees serving as the elected governing body.

In Wood Dale there are four commissioners serving a community of more than 8,000 population and by the 1970 census its population is expected to reach 10,000 or more.

Recently the village manager screening committee recommended that the village consider changing its present form of government to perhaps a village board of trustees or aldermanic and that the number of elected officials be expanded to provide better representation for the population boom it is experiencing.

STAGGERED TERMS OF office was another recommendation, including a new referendum on the managerial form of government sanctioned by the voters in 1967, but later declared invalid.

A tip on which way local residents may be thinking could be found when the results of an attitude and opinion survey is completed in May by McFadden and Everly, Ltd., a consulting firm hired by the Wood Dale Park District.

Included in the questions asked of village residents will be one seeking comments on a possible change in government.

The present village administration is co-operating with the local park district in the survey and village officials will weigh carefully the results of this key question when it is tabulated in final form.

PARK COMMISSIONERS have the foresight to spend money wisely during the district's initial years of operation by engaging a qualified consultant to prepare a master park and recreation plan based on the attitudes and opinions of those residing within its boundaries.

Wood Dale has long needed a master plan to guide its orderly growth. Council members are hopeful something can be done about developing such a comprehensive document within the immediate future, finances permitting.

Perhaps there should be a separate study related to governmental services or the feasibility of a new look in its present mode of operation.

The park district survey may act as the catalyst in getting such a study started.

There is always the chance those interviewed in the survey may not welcome such a change, but I have a hunch it will go the other way.

Schuster Named Successor to Varble

John Varble resigned from the Bensenville Park District Wednesday night as previously announced, and Jack Schuster, whose term of office had expired, was appointed to fill the vacancy.

Merle Hummel, who was elected last week to fill Schuster's expiring term, was sworn in as commissioner in the park version of "musical chairs."

Schuster had been president of the district before announcing he would not seek reelection.

Commissioner Donald Carroll will act as president pro tem until a reorganization meeting next month at which new officers may be elected.

VARBLE RESIGNED because his Action Party slate was voted into municipal office Tuesday. He will become Bensenville's village president May 1 when Fred Steging's term expires.

Steging was defeated in his reelection bid.

Schuster's appointment will run the remaining two years of Varble's term. Hummel has a six year term.

When Hummel was sworn-in, Varble quickly said, "Welcome to the club."

Varble has spent nine years with the district, including a term as president. Carroll said without Varble the board will be impaired.

"I DON'T FEEL like we are losing him because he will always be close," Wilbur Burde, commissioner, said. The park district building is across the street from the village hall.

"I feel it necessary to answer some recent charges that Varble could have resigned earlier and his position could have been elected by the people," Robert Nichols, commissioner, said. "This board can only appoint someone when a commissioner resigns," he said. "There can be no election."

HIS STATEMENT was backed by park district attorney Edward Vertovec and the other commissioners.

Varble announced last fall he would resign from the board after village elections, win or lose.

Besides Hummel, another man has filed for election to a commissioner position. Jerome W. Bochniak, 1213 W. Green Valley, Bensenville, was defeated by Hummel by a 100-vote margin.

Study Student Behavior

Dr. Lester Przewlocki, superintendent of Addison Elementary School Dist. 4, and Lawrence Berson, executive director of Family Service Association of DuPage County, have announced establishment of a new seminar, titled "Youngsters, An Inquiry."

The seminar is meeting weekly at Indian Trails Junior High School in Addison. It is led by Dorothy McElvain, social worker for Family Service. It will continue to the end of this school semester.

Teachers bring to the meetings situations they have with their students. The collective experience of other teachers and knowledge from the field of social work may be used to understand the behavior of some students which is not conducive to their education.

TEACHERS AND social workers, by pooling their experience and intuitive as well as formalized knowledge can enlarge the school experience of the student, Berson said.

Przewlocki explained this is an official program for the district.

Berson said that working with Dist. 4 in this area is a further extension of the Family-Service Agency in a program of making available to schools on a local basis the professional social workers from the agency.

Miss McElvain, a native of Pinckneyville, Ill., graduated with a bachelor degree in education from Southern Illinois University. She went on to get her masters degree from the University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration.

She did a third year of study at Smith College School of Social Work in Northampton, Mass. Her experience, in addition to working for Family Service here, includes working for the Infant Welfare Society as a mental health consultant for about 14 years, working with public health nurses and, in the nursery school for emotionally disturbed children as a part of a clinical team which included doctors, pediatricians, psychologists and public health nurses.

Elect Zoltek President of Medinah Dist.

Steven Zoltek, 22W364 Thorndale Ave., Medinah, was elected president of the Medinah Park District Wednesday night.

Former Pres. Joseph Riha was elected treasurer in the annual turnover of park district officers. His term ends in 1971.

Riha said the change was for the better because of his extended business travel. "Steve is more available to attend meetings," Riha said.

Zoltek was vice-president of the district and has four more years to serve in his term. Park commissioners are elected for six-year terms.

The new vice-president is Stuart Goodenough, who was appointed to the board several months ago. His term also ends in 1971.

Mrs. Helen E. Riha is park secretary but not an elected official.

ALSO DISCUSSED at Wednesday's meeting were proposed summer recreation programs which may include girls' softball, arts and crafts, ballet, library use, baton twirling and band sessions.

The possibility of swimming lessons is being investigated.

The park board also is working on a master plan for development of Medinah Park sites. Details are expected to be available soon, Riha said.

18-Year-Old Dies

Gary Lio, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Lio, 21W236 Woodview Drive, Itasca, died unexpectedly Tuesday at St. Alexius Hospital.

Lio, a former Lake Park High School student and golfer, died from a blood infection he contracted about a month ago.

He became ill at Arizona State University where he was attending school. He spent a week in a hospital there before returning home. He was in St. Alexius for about three and a half weeks.

GARY ATTENDED Lake Park High School for four years, where he was one of the four best golfers in his senior year, according to Jerry Wiseman, golf coach. He was graduated last year.

Wiseman said Gary averaged 44.4 in dual meets during the 1968 golfing season.

"He was the longest hitting student golfer I have ever seen," Wiseman said. He was a left-handed golfer, Wiseman added.

Mrs. Lio said Gary was an avid hockey fan and played with the Rangers, a hockey team of young men.

HE ATTENDED the University of Arizona until December when he transferred to Arizona State.

The Lio family has lived in Itasca for 14 years.

Gary is survived by his parents, his brothers, Kevin, 14, and Gregg, 6, and a sister Liane, 8.

Gary Lio

The funeral mass is at 10 a.m. today at St. Peter's Church in Itasca. Burial will be at Queen of Heaven Cemetery, Hillside.

Ponder Repeal of Landfill

The zoning committee of the DuPage County Board of Supervisors is deciding whether to recommend a repeal of a vote earlier this year allowing a combustible landfill operation near Barrington and Fisher Roads in Bloomingdale Township near Hanover Park.

Residents from Bloomingdale and Wayne Townships met with the committee Wednesday morning to discuss the reconsideration. The site borders Wayne Township. Objections have brought the matter from a simple board consideration to a fight.

Residents claimed Wednesday the landfill operation allowed under the county's special use and zoning variation would lower land values, pollute air and water, pose a fire hazard, increase traffic congestion and damage nearby roads.

ATTY. LEE Daniels, from Elmhurst, is representing what he called "30 concerned landowners of 1,000 acres surrounding the dump."

Daniels said he hoped the fight would end with Wednesday's meeting and come before the county board later this month for repeal.

The county board may choose to rescind its approval, Daniels said, since formal opposition has been filed.

Zoning Committee Chairman C. L. James, assistant supervisor from Downers Grove Township, said his committee would meet soon to decide its recommendation to the county board.

The zoning committee overruled a DuPage County Zoning Board of Appeals recommendation, after that board conducted a public hearing on the matter last summer. The zoning board recommended denial of the special use and variation.

The operation would fill low land in the area with wood and other refuse collected by E and E Excavating in its salvage from wrecked buildings.

NO GARBAGE would be allowed, James said, and the area either would be divided by mounds of dirt or covered with dirt to avoid large-spread fires.

According to James, the land once filled in would be used for farming.

Daniels said, according to farm experts, the land is already suitable for farming and need not be filled with such waste material.

Donald Jack Wall, assistant supervisor of Bloomingdale Township told the Register he would vote against the measure when presented to the county board again.

Wall said he was unaware there was so much opposition to the operation.

Pat Savaiano, Bloomingdale Township supervisor, said he would probably vote against the operation if brought up for another vote. Wall and Savaiano were at the meeting Wednesday.

SAVAIANO SAID Bloomingdale Township opposition was slight, and most objections were from Wayne Township which borders the proposed site.

The zoning board of appeals in a letter of recommendation to the zoning committee said the dumping operation would adversely affect nearby living conditions.

When the county board originally approved the zoning committee request to grant the special use permit there were no opposing votes.

Woman Assaulted

A Bensenville man on leave from the Navy was charged with the rape of a 22-year-old Wood Dale woman Wednesday night, Bensenville police reported.

Ronald B. Kutella, 18, of 108 N. York Road, allegedly attacked the woman at the rear of a vacant lot between 53 and 49 Greenlawn Ave. The woman told police she screamed and struggled but no one heard her.

She had been dropped off by her husband at about 8:30 p.m. at Roosevelt Avenue and the railroad tracks just east of York Road.

When her husband left her she waited for a train to go by and then planned to walk to a friend's home on Orchard Street while her husband attended classes at College of DuPage.

Police reported the victim met Kutella after the train had passed. He began a conversation with her as she walked along Roosevelt Avenue, police said.

Kutella told her he had a gun in his coat, police said, and persuaded her to walk to the lot with him.

AFTER THE ALLEGED rape, the woman, who gave birth to a baby about six weeks ago, ran to her friend's home and awaited the arrival of her husband before calling police.

Kutella was found by police at about 11:30 p.m., sleeping in a parked car near 26 O'Hare Court.

He later was identified by the woman and charged with rape and deviate sexual assault. Bond was set at $5,000 on each charge with a court appearance scheduled April 25 in DuPage County Circuit Court.

New 'Y' Karate Classes Open

New karate classes with a new instructor begin at the Elgin YMCA next week.

Chuck Johnson of Batavia, a first-degree black belt, will become the head assistant instructor, Bob Barron, chief karate instructor, said. Barron, Johnson and Tom McNamara of Elgin, an assistant instructor, will form a promotion board to decide promotions for the karate students.

Johnson has been studying karate at the Aurora YMCA for three years. He earned his black belt in 1 1/2 years. "If you work at it hard, you can get it," he said.

JOHNSON HAS earned 21 trophies in three years — eight first place, 9 second place, two thirds and two fourths.

Beginning and advance karate classes will begin at the Elgin YMCA Monday. They will meet on Mondays and Wednesdays for eight weeks. Beginners' class will be at 7 p.m. and advanced class will be at 8 p.m.

YMCA membership is not required for enrollment, but YMCA members may enroll at a reduced fee, Keith Huff, YMCA assistant executive director, said.

Persons 16 and older are eligible to enroll, but men 16 and 17 years old must have written permission from their parents, Huff added. Advanced class is restricted to men 18 and older. Maximum enrollment in both classes is 20 students.

The beginning class teaches the eight basic upper body movements of karate and some kicks. "There is some sparring done at the end of the course," Barron said.

Norwesco OKs Fund Transfer To Center

A long-standing feud between some Norwesco members and the Northwest Opportunity Center which Norwesco founded broke into the open Wednesday night with a vengeance.

Several Norwesco members vehemently opposed transfer of $5,400 to the Opportunity Center which Norwesco has held for a year since it was donated by church and community groups for the Opportunity Center's use.

Correction

An earlier Paddock Publications report of the Norwesco meeting incorrectly reported that Norwesco had been holding $54,000 donated by community groups for the Northwest Opportunity Center's use. The amount held was $5,400. We regret the error.

Their effort failed.

A MAJORITY of Norwesco members attending the meeting in Wheeling High School voted to finally transfer the funds, which has been held in a non-interest bearing checking account under the supervision of Norwesco treasurer, Mrs. Rene Maddock of Des Plaines.

Mrs. Rene Trevor, League of Women Voters president and a Norwesco member serving on the center advisory committee, answered a barrage of questions about how the funds will be used before the crucial vote.

The burden of argument against transferring the funds was borne by Reuben Conrad, a High School Dist. 214 teacher, and Mrs. James Gawne of Prospect Heights.

Mrs. Gawne charged that the advisory committee, which includes elected representatives from Norwesco and two other local opportunity councils — Schaumburg and Palatine's Community Effort Organization — is improperly constituted.

Conrad said he was also worried about the advisory committee representation.

"WE ARE NOT sure right now if they have a place to put the money. I don't even know if they have a checking account," Conrad commented.

Other Norwesco members questioned the right of the Opportunity Center to receive money from the Hike for the Hungry.

Mrs. Amado Garcia, Norwesco secretary, commented pointedly, "We understood that the Hunger Hike money was to be used to feed the hungry," and asked if the center money from the hike will go for staff salaries.

Center director Don Maldonado told Mrs. Garcia that Hunger Hike planners had chosen to give a third of the funds they raised to the Opportunity Center after being given a full explanation of the center's services to poor people.

AN ECUADOR farm training project, also aimed at improving people's capabilities — instead of just feeding the poor, will get another third of the Hike for the Hungry funds.

Mrs. Trevor explained that the money held by Norwesco will be used by the opportunity center for its services to low-income families in the Northwest suburbs.

The center, located in Rolling Meadows, offers a variety of self-help services — literacy classes, adult basic education, consumer education, sewing classes, a medical referral service and free legal aid.

The center budget for the current year will be $115,287.

Of this, $63,432 is expected to come from a federal grant from the U. S. Office of Economic Opportunity. Local cash contributions, including the $5,400 held by Norwesco, must provide $24,000 for the center's operation this year while another $27,000 of the budget will come from in-kind contributions in the form of donated labor and goods.

The local money will support one professional social worker and a clerk and pay the center's rent.

Weeks' Weak Candidacy

by CHARLES HUFNAGEL

The candidacy of Gerald Weeks, Milton Township chairman of the county board finance committee, for the county board chairmanship is still at this late date pretty much of an enigma. This is probably because that in this race against the veteran, Chairman Paul Ronske, York Township, the aspirant himself is not acting like a candidate enthusiastic about the chore of wrestling board leadership from its present experienced hands.

Monday, April 21, is the date set for the board reorganization meeting and the annual selection of a chairman. Following immediately will be such a meeting for the Forest Preserve Commission (same membership). LeRoy James, Downers Grove Township, has announced his candidacy to succeed himself as president of this body and no opposition has surfaced, nor is any expected.

The Weeks candidacy takes on new interest when placed into a larger perspective, the election year 1970. The question raised: Is Weeks running for the board chairmanship Monday or for some county elective office, like county treasurer, which at this writing it appears will be eagerly sought for by more than a single candidate? It's an important office, and the pay is good.

NOW THE SAME goes for the president of the forest preserve commission. James has been an effective leader of that body and has shown considerable administrative skill and vigor during the past year. Like Weeks, the political weathervane points to his moving in the direction of an elective county office in 1970, a candidate for county sheriff for which he made a bid four years ago.

When asked about his intentions he remarked that it's far too early to talk about next year's election. However, he refused to say that he will or will not be a candidate.

Neither present incumbent, Treasurer Elmer Hoffman, nor Sheriff Larry Springborn can succeed himself. What are they going to do in 1970? Will they seek other elective office or a state appointment under the Ogilvie administration?

Both are qualified, and DuPage County is the No. 1 GOP vote-getter in Illinois. These questions make sense, and they're being asked around the courthouse.

But so long as they remain unanswered they keep other Republicans who may aspire to a county elective office a bit off balance.

BOTH HOFFMAN AND Springborn are old hands in DuPage politics and can be expected to make the right moves at the right time, which is the difficult but essential art of the political game.

Yet Hoffman, who hails from Milton Township, and Springborn, who resides in Naperville Township, have some formidable opposition, and it is no secret that what they may attempt will be contested vigorously. A lot of this opposition is beginning to surface right now. It has something to do with the Ogilvie transformation of 1968.

Despite these manifestations, the conjecture is growing that a Springborn candidacy for county treasurer is a near certainty. He served a four-year term and will not be moving into unfamiliar territory.

However, a new Republican generation is moving rapidly into political contention, and reports are rife that Henry Chaney, deputy auditor from York Township, has been bitten by the bug and has a white hat ready to toss into the ring in the race for county treasurer.

EVEN THE NAME of Pate Philip, York GOP chairman and state representative, is being mentioned as one to conjure up in thinking about 1970 and the treasurer's office.

How about Elmer Hoffman for sheriff? He's a law and order man, has held this office, and can't be ruled out as a candidate.

What about the most politically prestigious office in DuPage County, growing in power and importance year by year, the chairmanship of the GOP county organization? Hoffman has let it be known that he's in it to a finish to succeed himself. Both those who are supporting him and those who say the times call for a younger man agree that Elmer Hoffman has performed in his capacity as Republican chairman "with integrity and fairness."

The judgement here is that he's still among the most able and resourceful political leaders in Illinois and like his Democratic counterpart in Chicago, Mayor Daley, will have to see the results on the scoreboard before he'll be convinced that a better man has replaced him.

IT SEEMED NOT at all irrelevant at this point to seek the intentions of L. D. LaFleur, county auditor, Bloomingdale Township, who was induced in 1968 in an eleventh-hour bid to contest the chairmanship. In the aftermath of the heated Altorf-Ogilvie primary campaign in this county this deepened a growing division in the Republican Party.

In a query as to whether he would again contest the GOP chairmanship in 1970 if promised support, he answered that he was "vitaly interested in the future success of the DuPage County GOP."

But we've left Weeks adrift in his bold challenge for county board chairmanship April 21. His support does not appear to have changed a trifle in the past week. So he has to be considered a long, long shot, odds comparable to the White Sox winning the pennant and battling in the World Series with the Cubs and startling baseball world by sweeping that series in four straight.

Talk of Black and White

by SANDRA COMSTOCK

"I felt very much at home. It's not something that I expected because we have visited other schools and not felt so welcome," the teenage girl said.

She was one of 29 students from John M. Harlan High School, 9632 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, who visited Hersey High in Arlington Heights yesterday.

"The point about wanting to be called black is they don't call you Caucasians, why should they call us Negroes? Black was chosen because it contrasts with white," another girl in the group argued.

Another Harlan student commented, "I'm not rebelling against you because you're white, I'm rebelling against the system."

A Harlan teacher explained, "Most of you kids out here live in an almost completely white world. Some of us from Harlan come from an almost all black world. The object of today's trip is to get kids together of approximately the same economic and social class and let you talk."

AND THE STUDENTS certainly did talk. During history and sociology classes, during walks down the hall, while eating lunch. They talked, and tried to understand each other's point of view.

One student was aligned with the Black Panther's militant philosophy. He said the Panthers are not trying to overthrow the government. Included as number one in their 10-point plan for improving the blacks' situation is full employment, he said.

Another goal is to make all blacks exempt from the army, he said.

During discussion in a sociology class, a white student countered this by saying if a person wants to live in this country, he should be willing to fight for it. The problem of black vs. white should be worked out as a whole, not as two separate but equal societies.

"LOOK HOW LONG we've tried this one whole idea," the black student said. "What has it gotten us?"

White students said, "Look what we've done to help you during the last 20 years."

"That's one of the problems. What is your concept of help? You allow us to do things. The only way you can help us is by stepping aside and letting us through," a black girl said.

Talking about the high percentage of black soldiers in the Vietnam war, one white student said, "We say you're fighting for freedom for someone else when you don't have it yourself. How can we expect that?"

A black girl said, "I wouldn't die for any society where I am not accepted."

Students discussed Operation Bread Basket and other programs to get black businesses together. The idea for these groups is to get blacks together to support blacks.

HARLAN STUDENTS agreed white businessmen are raping the black community. White merchants do their business in the black areas and then flee with the money they make to the suburbs, one person charged.

"We're not going to kick the white merchants out. But we are going to say, 'If you're going to stay you are going to be more responsive to this community,'" another black person stated.

The situation was not left as a hopeless and insoluble problem. After an hour of discussion, the Black Panther supporter said, "We've got to work it out together or there will be a confrontation."

Blacks seem to want to be able to meet whites on a firm economic basis. "The situation is more rich versus poor than it is black versus white. Some people want to keep it in the terms of black vs. white to keep all the have-nots from banding together," the Harlan teacher said.

ONE BLACK STUDENT who had let her hair grow out in a "natural" style said, "It just comes out like this. Just like your hair comes out straight, mine comes out curly. So I let it grow this way."

One Hersey student said she felt cheated because she can't take an Afro-American history course at the school. "There are too many parents out here who would object," she said.

"THEY DON'T CALL you Caucasians, why should they call us Negroes?" a student from Harlan High School in Chicago asks during a history class discussion yesterday at Hersey High School. A group of 29 black students visited Hersey yesterday and participated in classes and discussions with Hersey students.

The Way We See It

Help Embattled Voter

The embattled suburban voter needs relief from the burden of too many elections. Only substantial legislative action, and constitutional overhaul, will help him struggle out of the morass caused by complicated election procedures and overlapping governmental jurisdictions.

The first two weeks in April offered a reminder of how vexing the problem is.

—On April 1, suburbanites trekked to the polls to vote in township elections. That night, the more attentive citizens went to their annual town meetings.

—On April 12, they went back, if going to a different set of polls can be considered "going back" to the polls. On that day, they voted for school officials and school referendums. Most of them faced three entirely different sets of voting booths and ballot boxes inside the polls — for elementary, high school and junior college districts.

—On Tuesday, the call of democracy went out again, and in most communities citizens went to another set of precinct places to cast votes for municipal, library and park district offices.

Whew.

Now that April is past, voters can relax... except for a Constitutional Convention delegate ballot this fall and the usual scattering of school, park and library referendums.

This is an off year, but brace yourself for 1970 when there'll be primary elections, general elections, school elections, referendums and, undoubtedly, a vote on a new state Constitution.

Citizens look to several levels of government to provide their needed services: local, county, state and federal. The present state constitution, because of its unrealistic limit on bonding authority, has led to the fractionalization of local government functions. The authority for local government services is shared by a large number of independent taxing bodies. Illinois has more units of government than any other state.

It becomes very difficult for the citizen to fix responsibility for government when it is so widely dispersed that he has to go to three separate polling places on three separate occasions simply to elect all his local officials.

The most visible public officials — the mayors and trustees or aldermen — are actually responsible for only a small portion of the homeowner's tax bill. They have no control and little influence over some of the most costly local government functions.

That is a problem with which the Constitutional Convention must grapple. But in the meantime we see no reason why the legislature cannot act. Lawmakers should move to encourage joint election dates and facilities for all local governments, simplifying procedures for pooled election machinery. And they should restrict the timing of tax referendums to established election dates.

Arts Patron Club Idea Worthwhile

High school teachers responsible for non-athletic extracurricular activities periodically lament what they regard as an "over emphasis" on sports in suburban high schools. They cite the comparative ease with which athletic departments seem to win board and administration backing for their programs.

Part of this "ease," of course, is because high school spectator sports enjoy broad public support. The depth of this community interest has been strengthened measurably by the development of parent "booster" clubs which, in effect, serve as highly effective and vocal pressure groups.

We are pleased to note the "booster" concept now is being applied to non-athletic areas. We hope the results prove just as successful, thus ensuring maintenance of a desirable balance in extracurricular student activities.

Parents and friends of students enrolled in music, speech, drama, dance and art classes at Arlington High School have formed the Patrons of the Fine and Performing Arts Organization.

Spearheaded by the leadership of Mr. and Mrs. Merl Peek of Arlington Heights, the group will seek to develop a closer relationship among parents, school and community to foster interest and education of children in the fine and performing arts; to work with school officials and department chairmen in developing program support as well as assist with purchase of materials and equipment; and to encourage educational trips, exchange programs, and attendance at public performances approved by the school.

The arts have long needed such community support. These programs frequently find themselves under-financed, with limited budgets forcing students and faculty to undertake outside fund-raising projects that do not always prove satisfactory.

Organization of the new "booster club" for the arts will be a significant contribution toward encouraging students with the talent and desire to excel in one of the creative arts.

Arlington High School has set an excellent example which should be emulated by other schools in the Northwest suburbs.

Cliff's Edge

News Traditions Questioned

by CLIFFORD G. ROWE
Vst. Managing Editor

It was billed as "The Young Turks vs. the Toothless Tigers."

In truth it was a panel confrontation as part of a journalistic society convention at DeKalb last weekend.

On the panel were a spokesman for the young, dissident newsmen of Chicago newspapers and two representatives of the established order of news-gathering.

THE DISSIDENTS have become very vocal since last August and the Democratic convention. They feel they were sold out by their employers in a post-convention "whitewash" of the violent demonstrations that they believe they reported fairly.

Speaking for them on this particular panel was Jim Flannery, a candidate for a doctorate degree at Northwestern University who has closely followed this uprisings in the ranks of Chicago's working press.

In examining the rebel cause, he portrayed a Chicago press corps made up of two types of reporters:

1) Older, native born, not college educated police-beat oriented, and
2) Younger, not native born, college educated, not police beat bred — a group of the same breed of young people as those involved in the demonstrations.

THIS, HE SAID, was part of the root of the post convention dissatisfaction. He explained that these young reporters saw a "softening" in the attitudes of their newspapers toward what they felt were obvious injustices during the convention period, once the convention was over.

"It was not so much in suppression of news from the streets," said Flannery. "It was more from skepticism of desk men and editors in reports of their writers, many of whom had never covered street demonstrations so were susceptible to skepticism."

This complaint was substantiated at a later convention session by Hal Bruno, Midwest editor of Newsweek magazine, who told his reaction to the first reports that his reporters were being beaten by Chicago policemen as they attempted to cover the street action.

"I COULDN'T believe this was happening," said Bruno. "It wasn't in the tradition of Chicago journalism. I'd been off the streets for a long time. This wasn't the way I recalled policemen and newsmen working together. My very first reaction was to go out and see what our reporters were doing wrong."

So, perhaps these reporters rightly feel wronged.

Be that as it may, Flannery saw the dissidents' ongoing campaign against this wrong as having two major motivations.

First, there is the belief that the newspaper institution is in drastic need of reform, that newspapers are totalitarian and that reporters should have more say in administration and policy.

Second, there is the feeling that there must be an overthrowing of the "cult of objectivity," to be replaced by "some new and yet undefined standard of journalistic excellence."

THEY BELIEVE that the "mouthings of the establishment should not be reported without some element of social conscience."

The toothless tigers — in this case Thomas Reay, managing editor of the Rockford Register-Republic, and Frank Spencer, Midwest bureau manager for United Press International, didn't have much time for rebuttal.

But they didn't really need it. They agreed there was a need for reform, "a need for changing some processes and a need for rethinking," as Reay put it.

Then they smiled, patiently, showing their teeth.

The Political Beat

Tax Disunity

by CHARLES HUFNAGEL

The Democrats at Springfield are displaying their party disorganization on a scale inconceivable a few months ago. Without organized leadership and counter recommendations they are flailing out in all directions in protest against the well defined and well thought out revenue and spending program the Ogilvie Administration has announced for fiscal 1969.

This fiscal program seeks a new revenue source in a flat rate four per cent income tax for individuals and corporations which the governor hails as "constitutional, collectible and fair."

Charles Hufnagel

The spending for this fiscal year calls for an outlay of $4.1 billion, half of which will go for education. In fact, this program will increase the per pupil aid figure exactly $100, from $400 to $500.

FOLLOWING THIS revenue and spending debate pretty closely between the Republican dissidents and Democratic partisans on the one hand and the Ogilvie Administration on the other, it appears that so far the governor is holding all the winning cards.

Attacks by his opponents bear the odor of "politics as usual" and an allegiance to "constituency bosses" in contrast to the Ogilvie approach of seeing state problems in a statewide context and revenue raising from the standpoint of "fairness" to all taxpayers.

In his Chicago speech last week, the governor called attention to the fact that as yet his opponents had offered no state revenue and spending program as an alternative. The fact is, knowing as they must know if they have any sense of responsibility at all that the state is "on the brink of bankruptcy," they will have to come up with a similar program.

Since the gubernatorial candidate in 1968 went overboard in state aid for school promises, the Democrats will be hard put to fault the governor on this spending which makes up the biggest outlay for this fiscal year.

THE RESPONSIBLE Democrats such as Stevenson, Simon and Howlett have been careful not to criticize school spending or the "unfairness" of the income tax. State Treasurer Adlai E. Stevenson III complains on the contrary that the income tax is too high and that the sales tax is too high. He is less specific, however, in showing how per pupil school aid can be increased $100 this year, health and welfare needs can be financed and state bankruptcy can be prevented without an adequate revenue source from somewhere.

It is significant here to mention that although Sen. W. Russell Arrington, GOP Senate leader, is a "reluctant" supporter of the Ogilvie revenue and spending program he feels a responsibility to the people of Illinois and, aware of the fiscal situation at Springfield, is throwing politics out the window. This is the best news the governor has heard so far. The Illinois Senate sets the direction of administration programs, whether Democratic or Republican.

Taking a more congenial view of the opposition, it is probably true that many legislators in both parties schooled in the tradition of the old politics at the state level, are finding it hard to reconcile their old ideologies with the new and necessary Ogilvie requests.

MANY HAVE BEEN at Springfield, in both houses, quite awhile and are recognized as "dependable" by their constituents and feel an obligation. They will be torn by an allegiance to what can be called the "Old Politics" and the new politics being put into practice by the new Illinois governor.

This consists mainly of viewing legislation from the standpoint of problems affecting every part of Illinois and supporting revenue bills that apply fairly to all citizens. The old politics calls for "constituency" dedication irrespective of state needs and voting "right" on money bills.

The Ogilvie program would seem to command the services of a better qualified legislator, with a better understanding of social needs in this era and the new functions of state government as well. There are many such people in the legislature and throughout the state. Their number is growing.

Still as a highly competent Democratic legislator from the suburbs remarked to us, it may require a marriage, even though a short one, between the old politics as represented by Mayor Daley and the new politics as espoused by Governor Ogilvie to pass the administration program.

As he sees it, it's going to take Democratic votes to do it and there are more than just a few Democrats that are able to support the philosophy inherent in the Ogilvie proposals. It's easier, he thinks, to get such votes than those from the traditional diehards of the GOP.

SO IF THIS marriage of convenience between the governor and the mayor comes to pass, the wiser political prognosticators will not be taken by surprise. It makes sense to them. The governor would receive assurance of the passage of his program on which his political future rests.

The mayor, seemingly hardpressed by the turn of events, would be given his second breath and a new lease on his political life. But more than that he would be given powerful support in overcoming his downstate party adversaries.

This is more than idealism. It is real politik.

Queries Park Invitations

Last December, invitations were sent out by the board of commissioners of the Bensenville Park District, for a New Year's Eve party. The party was to be held at the White Pines Clubhouse, which as I understand, is a part of our park district. The thing I am concerned about is that on the invitation it stated "Cocktails at Our Regular Prices." My questions are as follows:

- 1) Has the park district applied for a liquor license?
- 2) Is it legal for a park district to sell alcoholic beverages on park property?
- 3) If so, are they aware of the expense which must be faced in case something unforeseen would happen? If not, why do they attempt to sell alcoholic beverages on park district property?

Please don't misunderstand my point. I'm not adverse to having good cheer. However, it appears that as long as the village is responsible for the park district, this district should not put the village at any disadvantage. I'm anxiously awaiting a reply so I can put my mind at ease.

DONALD F. WHITE

Bensenville
(Editor's Note: Jack Schuster, former park board president, said liquor was served last year at the White Pines Golf Course at banquets and tournaments by the Branigan Organization in order to honor prior commitments made before the park district purchased the course in the fall of 1967. It is no longer being served, he said. Branigan, from which the park district purchased the course, has a liquor license from DuPage County and a three-year contract with the district to operate the golf course, he said. Schuster said the New Year's Eve party never took place though invitations were sent out. He also pointed out that the park district and the village are two separate taxing bodies.)

Not All Dumb

I had to write a reply to the letter written by June Sigorski in the April 11 Fence Post.

Perhaps Wood Dale has some loud mouthed, narrow minded dumbbells, but from her letter I don't believe she should exclude herself.

I have lived in Wood Dale 18 years, and when another scavenger was brought in this town it was because people were fed up with buying cans that were wrecked by the other scavenger and for the discourteous treatment. Mr. Burner not only said what he was going to do, he did it, and never once has he failed to show respect for our property.

I'm sure $4 a month isn't much pay for our so called dynamic council, but I'm sure this is about the same amount that was in effect two years ago, when they campaigned for the job.

She didn't mention one thing our dynamic council has done in the last two years, but then it would be pretty hard to find something worthwhile to mention.

No town needs dictators, and I'm sure we all have as much right to express our opinions as the council has to make new laws, without being called names.

I'm one of the quiet ones, usually, but I still believe in a free world with free opinions, and no one will take that away from my family or me.

Liked Reports

I would like to congratulate you and your staff for the outstanding news reporting and coverage given the Elk Grove Township election campaign. The people of Elk Grove Township are better informed now because you presented the backgrounds and achievements of all of the candidates fairly and honestly, and you ran articles explaining the importance of township government and how it works.

The interest that was stimulated among the citizens was evident by the large turnout at the annual town meeting, which climaxed this campaign. Especially helpful were your editors, Jim Vesley and Geoffrey Mehl, who were directly responsible for the fine news coverage.

As campaign manager, and newly elected auditor, I would like to extend the thanks of the entire Republican slate to you for the fine job that you did. We promise to keep the voters aware of our activities on a continuing basis.

JUDO'S A family affair for the Barbers. Patrick, 15, left, and Lynn, 14, Suburban YMCA. Indiana girls champion in 1967, help

HIGH SCHOOL science teacher, Walter M. Barber of Schaumburg spends a good bit of his free time teaching and training people in the arts of self-protection. Here he works out with one of his students, Bob Rossman, in a Wednesday evening session at the YMCA in Des Plaines. Most of his students are men and boys, but he does teach a special self-protection for women.

Schaumburg's Wally Barber

An Expert in Self-Protection

by MARY B. GOOD

Injuries, age, a family of eight and the lack of time to train seven days a week forced Walter M. Barber of Schaumburg to retire from national judo competition two years ago. Still he spends the lion's share of his free time starting clubs, teaching adult education courses and taking teacher training refreshers to stay on top of his unusual hobby.

Wally is an expert in the martial arts of judo, karate, jiu-jitsu and the relatively new American self-protection (ASP).

Wally Barber is boyishly handsome, decorated with tattoos from his Navy days and has an arresting smile, but then he used to be a policeman . . . also a physical education teacher. Now he's switched curriculum with general science as his directive at Chicago's Taft High School.

Barber interprets karate by means of physics principles: power equals mass times speed — the momentum likened to playing "crack the whip."

SOME TIME AGO the Barbers had to buy a trophy case to house the building collection of family trophies, ribbons and white, green brown and black belts. There's number one son, Pat, who plays coronet when he is not resisting his younger sister, Lynn.

Lynn, the 1967 Indiana State junior girl judo champ, and Pat join dad in Wednesday night demonstration classes at the Northwest Suburban YMCA in Des Plaines. Tommy, 12, Timmy, 7, and Beth, 9, have all thrown a partner or two in competition.

Mother Betty has a nodding acquaintance with ASP (American self-protection). She is quick to note that it got to the point where the youngsters were so proficient, Wally would say, "Be careful, don't hurt your mother!"

Barber believes a course in ASP is a must for every female.

"THE DAYS OF the hat pin are over. It's more advisable for a woman to carry a beer can opener (to rip or gouge)," he said, "but if you can't get to your purse in the event you are attacked, you're vulnerable. And girls who are attractive and feminine are the ones who need ASP the most, as they are the most likely candidates for a mugging."

Barber said that ASP is a collection of defenses based on police records of mugging attacks, choking attacks, wrist grabs, lapel grabs, attacks from behind, the list goes on . . .

"The average individual is naive," he continued. "He or she has a false sense of confidence. It takes considerable training to react with accuracy and precision with a strike at the solar plexus, rib section, groin, neck, and so forth. It takes balance, coordination, practice to be able to defend yourself properly."

"NOW THE TYPE of person doing the attacking is not the person who has the moral fibre to follow through on a strenuous training program of martial arts. The idea is supposed to be defense, not aggression. Persons of questionable attitude are not allowed to stay in the class. If a student is not concerned primarily with safety, or more concerned with their own protection, beautification or ego, they are shown the door," Barber said emphatically.

"Many men are interested in a form of athletic competition," said the former high school, college, Navy and Pan-American games competitive wrestler. "Judo is a sport that one wins by throwing, pinning, choking or arm bar," he said, explaining that an arm bar is a hold that endangers a joint — but you can submit before a limb is broken.

AS SOON AS women find out judo is a sport, not a self-defense, they drop out or transfer to the ASP classes. In ASP the only restriction is that women trim their long fingernails.

Karate is a form of open-hand defense which can be extremely aggressive.

"A light punch with the edge of the hand to the face could break the nose. The teeth can be dislodged quite easily," Barber remarked off-handedly.

Barber feels women don't have the endurance or stamina for karate, and few females are accepted for training in Barber's classes, which include some 300 air punches, about 70 sit-ups, 40 leg raises, rabbit hops, squats and the like, just for warming-up openers. There's a lot of high kicking, violent moves that could possibly cause physical damage. Students must be carefully screened for karate courses.

"I DON'T TURN out muggers or street-fighters, but reliable, responsible individuals who want to learn self-defense in the proper application."

Jiu-jitsu is a more subtle form of self-defense, according to Barber, where pressure is applied on wrist, elbow or shoulder joint. It's most effective for police officers who want to restrain a prisoner without disturbance or physical damage.

Martial arts is an organized system of attack and defense, militarily speaking, which originated in tactical guerrilla warfare. Barber believes it teaches discipline, coordination, respect, mental responsiveness and builds healthy bodies.

One thing is certain — Wally Barber will never leave his family defenseless.

Seeing Europe, Family Style

Tips for London Visitors

by MARY ELLEN POURCHOT

(This is the fifth in a series.)

No one can help but love London. It's a mini-metropolis, the nub of English civilization, all at the tip of your toes. You can stroll in half a day past more English history than you dreamed you ever knew.

And this a city of eight million. If you ride to the observation platform of the new 625-foot General Post Office Tower, tallest building in London, you can see the city crowding towards the Thames and spreading 15 miles around.

But by foot, London is a friendly, easy-to-know village.

"Where's the middle of London?" our youngest kept asking until he realized we couldn't answer. There is no "center," only clusters of villages and landmarks nudging each other.

YOU CAN LOOK for London in the "West End," at Piccadilly Circus — that famous traffic circle which the English call a "roundabout." Seven or eight streets lead off the circle, forming a kaleidoscope of black shiny taxis, trucks, minicars and red double-decker buses traveling end to end.

Crowds of people hurry towards Oxford and Regent Streets, to the cinemas near Leicester Square, to numerous "tube" stations and their underground traffic.

Or you can start at Bank in the area known as the "City," or old London. It's the center of London's local government, of banking, newspaper and legal operations. On the sidewalks pass men in bowler hats carrying black umbrellas, and secretaries wearing long hair, mini-skirts and sleek knee boots.

FROM THE Waterloo Bridge the skyline presents another view . . . St Paul's dome hovering over the "city," Westminster's turrets in the distance, the GPO Tower looking like a giant fountain pen.

A different London awakens at four in the morning, just a few blocks from cosmopolitan West End. Ever since 1661, the Covent Garden market place has filled London's produce baskets. Open stalls, crowded side by side, overflow with fruits, vegetables and flowers. The narrow alleys are jammed with buyers, flat-capped porters pushing long wheelbarrows, trucks and dealers in white coats making sales.

By 10 o'clock the frenzy has abated, the alleys are calm and the sweepers clear away the debris.

LONDON FOR children (and jobless teens and almost every tourist) starts at Trafalgar Square. You can't miss the 184-foot shaft surmounted by a statue of Admiral Lord Nelson. Within a sea of circling traffic is an island of fountains, statues, London bobbies and the ubiquitous pigeon. If you buy a can of feed from the bird-man, you'll be the center of a Hitchcock movie.

Another exciting London exists at night. Walks are crowded with theater-going couples, long-haired boys in ratty fur coats, girls in maxi skirts and fake eyelashes. The hawkers are out, too . . . with their balloons, their hot dog carts, their chestnuts roasting over charcoal grills. The news peddler is still at the corner, distributing as many directions to lost tourists as newspapers.

IT'S A CITY of contrasts: a skyscraper brushing against tiny "Old Curiosity Shop," the modern Royal Festival Hall and the Old Vic theater, green restful parks bordering busy highways and foggy weather with sunny spots. London grime settles on windshields and shirt collars, but its public conveniences are remarkably clean.

Everyone loves London, but mostly the foot traveler, whose excursions into discovery are limited only by an aching pair of feet.

The Potting Shed

by MARY B. GOOD

Who says maple trees don't flower? Take a good look at that maple out in the front yard! For a precious few days each spring, obscure little clusters of attention-begging flowers bloom their heads off, giving the tree an overall rusty look just prior to leaf-out. Nothing spectacular, mind you, but one of nature's annual antics that only the alert flora fanciers ever catch.

NATURE'S BETTER-BUILT HOMES — Every bird I've seen in the last three days has a beak full of nesting material. What about putting out a container with bits of string, yarn, old pillow down, dead grass stalks, dust "bunnies" or poodle hair — and having a bird-watching session with the kids?

TREE TALK: Tree fertilizing is a sometimes stumper. The most effective means of getting nourishment to a young tree is via root feeder. Punch holes (about five in all) at regular intervals around the perimeter of the soil drip line (the tip of the farthest horizontal branches). Poke in root feeder at an angle to about 18 inches deep with a concentrated fertilizer tablet in the feeder cylinder, and the job is done. (By the way, fertilize only after a tree has been in its new location at least one year.)

Those red pimples on the maples last year weren't measles! If you had maple gall infestation, watch your leaf buds and when they show a crack of green, spray with Malathion or Diazinon. Repeat in 10 days.

Evergreens winter-burned? Give them some liquid adrenalin — first aid with Fertilite.

The Chicago Horticultural Society suggests that the most important task in April gardening is making a mud pie test, to see if the soil is workable: Pick up a handful and press it into a cake or mud pie. If it sticks together and won't crumble, restrain your impatience. If the pie can be crumbled readily, you've got your "go sign."

VEGETABLE BEDS: The best location for flower and vegetable gardens is one that gets direct sunlight all day, is well drained and does not have to compete with heavy roots for soil nourishment.

In planning a vegetable garden, practice segregation. Separate crops requiring little space — lettuce, radishes, beets, spinach, from those that like to roam or garner space — pumpkins, melons, cantaloupes, potatoes, corn. Don't put tall crops where they will shade small crops. Plant horizontally, not vertically on sloping land.

Beans, garden peas and other legumes should be dusted with a nitrogen-fixing bacteria available in homeowner packet sizes before planting — faster growth, bigger yields!

NEW HOMEOWNERS. Take a tip from a wise, old bird — don't go on an attack and destroy mission into the new backyard. Wait and see just exactly what you have, how it performs, and what you want to do with it — then you won't hate yourself later for throwing out a prize species you thought was a "weed."

LEFTOVERS: If you are one of those who save geraniums over the winter, prune the lanky devils. Dust cuts with sulphur to ward off rot and save four-inch cuttings to root in damp perlite or other sterile rooting medium after dipping in Rootone.

Peony-lovers, spray your shoots as they break ground with Phalitan or Bordeaux to prevent botrytis blight.

TOOL TOOL: Clean, sharp, high grade tools greatly reduce garden labor. Relieve some of the sweat with good equipment. Cheap stuff — like those 29-cent "tin" trowels that bend with almost no pressure — will cost plenty in aggravation, elbow-grease and replacement. A quality dibble, well-taken care of, will last 20 years or more.

Questions, problems, calls about chemicals and where they are available, contact the Paddock Plant Doctor, 394-2300, Ext. 272.

MINI PUPPETS

by MARILYN HALLMAN

Turn a favorite story into a tiny puppet show for your friends! You'll need a puppet for each character in the story. Here are two easy kinds:

Stick Puppet Draw a figure on heavy white paper or cardboard. Make it about 2 inches or 3 inches tall. Color and cut it out. Glue it on a popsicle stick or tongue depressor, leaving one end free to hold.

Pencil Puppet Cut out a tall pointed divider from a cardboard egg carton. Trim the bottom edge so it is even. Dip the point of a pencil in white glue. Poke it up through the divider and into a 1-inch Styrofoam ball. With a fine tipped marker, draw a face on the ball. The divider "body" may be colored or painted. Glue on paper arms and legs and pieces of yarn for hair.

Next week: Mini puppet theater.

Emphysema and Air Pollution Program Is Open to the Public

Dr. Bertram W. Carnow, assistant professor of preventive medicine and public health at the University of Illinois College of Medicine, will speak on "Research in Emphysema and Air Pollution" at the meeting next Wednesday of the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Nurses Club.

"Since emphysema and air pollution are of such wide interest, we are inviting the general public to this meeting," stated Mrs. Gerald Kiffel, program chairman for the club. "Dr. Carnow presents complex scientific matters in a very understandable manner with dramatic forceful-

U of I To Open Krannert Center

A full square block in the heart of the University of Illinois campus in Champaign-Urbana is being spruced up for the weekend opening of the $26 million Krannert Center for the Performing Arts.

The imposing red brick structure fills most of the block, but entrances are being landscaped and trees are beginning to bud on the red-tiled patios surrounding the five-theatre complex.

The Center took over two years to complete and appears sleek and modern with the outlines of the individual theaters looming into the sky.

DESCRIBED AS "the most comprehensive center for programs in fine arts at any university in the country," it will be officially opened Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. Herman C. Krannert of Indianapolis, who donated most of the funds for construction, will be there for the festivities.

The Krannerts also financed the Krannert Art Museum on the U of I campus. No tax funds went into either of the cultural centers.

The Krannert Center included four separate indoor theaters, each designed for a different type of performance but all joined by interlocking facilities. They all share a common lobby.

A semi-circular outdoor theater perches atop the center of the complex with the peaks of the indoor theaters around it. There is underground parking for 600 cars, extensive lobby and foyer areas and special accommodations for physically handicapped persons.

Catholics Stirring a Schism in Holland

By RAY MOSELEY
THE HAGUE (UPI)—The most startling revolution in the Roman Catholic church in centuries is raging in tiny Holland.
 Almost everything that Catholicism has meant to millions of people for hundreds of years is being overturned, questioned or given new meaning in the Netherlands.
 The nature of Christ, the virgin birth, the real presence of Christ in the Eucharist, the authority of the pope—all are under scrutiny in Holland.
 Private confession, the rosary and forms of marion worship have largely gone by the board.
 The mass has been radically transformed, priests have put on business suits and many are clamoring for the right to marry. A spirit of democratization reigns in a once highly authoritarian institution.
 This has drawn the Dutch church into the most potentially dramatic conflict with the Vatican since Martin Luther flung down his challenge to the Church of Rome in the 16th century and launched the Protestant Reformation.
 In Rome, it has become commonplace to use the words "heresy" and "schism" in referring to the Dutch church.
 The Dutch strongly deny they are going against the Catholic faith, giving their testament, as has sometimes been alleged. They see their revolution as a necessary renewal which also is occurring in parts of West Germany, Belgium, France and the United States and which they think will eventually sweep through the entire church.

 To them, the crisis is not in Holland but in Rome. They see the Vatican clinging to obsolete formulas and structures that have no meaning for modern man, with the result that millions are turning away from religion.
 "Rome must do something, or the church in each country will go its own way and the Pope will become a figure only for the tourists, or a kind of Dalai Lama. This is the great danger," says the world-renowned theologian Prof. Piet Schoonenberg of Nijmegen University.
 A growing sense of bitterness and frustration marks the Dutch church's relations with the Vatican.
 Pope Paul VI has spoken out repeatedly against aspects of the Dutch revolution. The Vatican has censured the new Dutch Catechism, the bestselling book that outlines the Dutch approach to faith in the modern world. The Vatican has investigated the writings of Dutch theologian Edward C. Schillebeeckx in a proceeding that smacks to some Dutch of the Inquisition.
 During Easter week, at a general audience in St. Peter's, Pope Paul said rebelling priests and other critics were defying the church, and he appealed to them to be loyal.
 "The church," he said, "is suffering from a crisis of faith. It is a crisis of faith in the church, in the service and witness of the living Christ in the living church—against her authority."

She is suffering from the defection and scandal of certain priests and religious who are today crucifying the church."
 But neither the Pope nor the Dutch leaders want to carry the conflict to open rupture, and it seems unlikely either will allow this to happen.
 The Dutch revolution has to be viewed in an historical context. The Dutch church was severely repressed by the 16th Century Reformation, and not until 1853 was the Dutch hierarchy restored.
 This repression gave the church a ghetto-like character, and its history in the past century has been one of gradually breaking out of this isolation. World War II, the Vatican Ecumenical Council and a steady growth in Catholic population: all contributed to the process.
 Dutch Catholics always have been intensely serious about religion. They lead all European Catholics in church attendance and percentage of religious vocations. The Dutch Catholic press, radio and television are highly influential.
 Ninety-five per cent of Dutch Catholics send their children to Catholic primary schools.
 But as Catholics have come to assume a more normal role in Dutch life, they have turned away from insistence on things that separate them from other Dutch—including their style of religious practice.
 At the same time, many have concluded the old forms of religion have no relevance to modern life. This is the basis of the revolution, and of the conflict with the Vatican.

 Perhaps the most fundamental difference with the Vatican is over the structure of the church—and the authority of Pope and bishops. The Dutch believe the present, highly authoritarian structure is obsolete in modern, democratic society.
 As Schoonenberg expresses it, the Pope and bishops do not have a "hot line" to be guided by the Holy Ghost. The Pope and bishops cannot act independently of the faith, but they have a "special service" in finding out where the Holy Ghost is guiding the church, according to this view.
 What this means in practical terms is that the Dutch want the Pope to develop a closer collaboration with bishops than he has done until now, and grant bishops greater autonomy to make decisions within each country based on the country's cultural and historical circumstances.
 This implies bishops also must share authority with priests and laymen, and in Holland this process is far advanced.
 The Dutch bishops set up last year a national pastoral council—the first in the world—composed of laymen, priests, bishops and some non-Catholics.
 Its task is to thrash out the church stand on such questions as birth control, Christian marriage and celibacy.
 Dialogue groups have been formed within local churches to help arrive at decisions, and the bishops have given wide latitude to experimental changes in church life.
 The bishops also are giving up purely administrative and financial tasks and turning these over to competent laymen so they can devote themselves more fully to pastoral activity.
 Some of the uneasiness, and much of the Dutch conflict with the Vatican, arises over the "new theology" that questions traditional interpretations of doctrine. This is a postwar development that has spread over much of northern Europe and penetrated American theological circles more recently.
 Fundamental to it is a new conception of Christ. According to the new theology, Jesus is not God and man but God in man. "He is a fully human person in whom God revealed Himself ultimately, rather than a divinity who assumed the form of a man," says Schoonenberg.
 From this starting point Dutch theologians have gone on to new interpretations of the virgin birth, the Trinity and other doctrines. Much of this thinking is incorporated in the controversial new Dutch Catechism, written by the theologians at the request of Dutch bishops and published two years ago.

 A Vatican commission of cardinals recently called for revision of 10 "erroneous" interpretations of Catholic teaching in the Catechism. The theologians have rejected these proposed revisions as unacceptable, but the Dutch bishops have agreed to publish them—as a supplement rather than revision of the Catechism.
 A commonly expressed view in Holland is that few people will bother to buy the supplement.
 For their part, many Dutch are convinced the Vatican is waging a self-defeating battle in trying to tame their revolution. Whether the Vatican learns to live with it is, for them, the real question—crucial not only for Holland but for all Catholicism.

Thanakha -- The Wonder Tree

RANGOON (UPI)—Thanakha makes an excellent cosmetic. And it can be carved into smoking pipes, is prescribed for malaria and is just the thing to remove oil stains from clothing.
 Thanakha, a versatile tree, grows wild in the hot, dry jungles of central and northern Burma, and few Burmese women would be without it.
 The coarse bark of the tree produces the basic makeup used by most Burmese women. And the tree's yellowish wood-scented, tough and close-grained—has been carved for centuries into combs, hairpins and smoking pipes.
 In this Buddhist nation of 25 million people living between Indochina and India, women start the day with a strange exercise.
 They take a chunk of bark from a thanakha tree, wet it with water and grind it in a circular motion on a polished whetstone.
 Grinding the bark on sandstone produces a golden yellow paste, which is the basic cosmetic used by Burmese women.
 Thanakha cream is applied to face, neck, hands and feet. It softens and perfumes the skin, and blends with perspiration into a golden sheen.
 Ready-prepared thanakha paste in the form of dried cake can be purchased in the market. But most Burmese women prefer to make their own cream by hand each day after their morning bath. Shops sell pre-cut chunks of thanakha bark for milady's toilet.

 Experts say thanakha trees may become extinct because they are cut extensively without any systematic replanting or cultivation.
 The tree grows slowly. It takes 10 to 15 years for a tree to reach its full height of about 10 feet with a girth of about 12 inches.
 Since the middle ages when kings ruled Burma (now ruled by a revolutionary military council), Burmese have tinkered with thanakha wood.
 From its hard woods, artisans carved combs and pins to adorn women's hair, rosary beads for Buddhist worshippers, ladies for country kitchens and smoking pipes with fine grains in the bowls.
 An old Burmese remedy for malaria prescribes a broth made by boiling thanakha leaves and salt.
 And to remove oilstains from clothes, dab the stain with thanakha paste, allow it to dry and brush.
 Is it any wonder that in Burma poets have composed ballads praising the thanakha tree?

Heavy Feet On the Pedal

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Once upon a time "going like 60" meant "wow" in terms of highway speed. On today's super-highways, it means going slower than average, the government reported Saturday.
 For all U.S. roads, the report by the Federal Highway Administration said, the average speed in 1968 was 59 miles an hour but for the completed sections of the Interstate Highway System, the average motorist was clipping along at 62.8 m.p.h.
 Motor vehicle speed in the United States has been climbing steadily since 1949, the federal highway people said. The 1968 level of 59 m.p.h. was one mile an hour faster than in the year before, according to a survey conducted by 27 state highway departments.
 The compilation by the Bureau of Public Roads showed that the highest average speed on the interstate system was 68.4 m.p.h. in Kansas—nearly 14 miles per hour less than in New Jersey. Level land terrain played an important role in the Kansas rate of speed, the report noted.
 Here are the averages clocked on the interstate multilane system: Passenger cars, 64.4 m.p.h.; buses, 63.7 m.p.h.; trucks, 56.7 m.p.h. On all main rural roads, the mile-per-hour clip was 60.5 for buses, 60.4 for passenger cars and 54 for trucks.
 The study further showed that on completed sections of the interstate system, 62 per cent of the vehicles traveled over 60 miles an hour; 40 per cent zipped along over 65 and 12 per cent were going over 70 miles an hour.
 Since 1966, when the first sections of the interstate highways were opened, the percentage of vehicles traveling above 60 on all main rural roads has nearly tripled from 18 to 46 per cent, the study said.

Former Palatine Shoemaker, 'Frau' To Mark 50th Anniversary Sunday

Long-time Palatine residents, Bertha and Christopher Page, will be celebrating their golden wedding anniversary Sunday at Altenheim, the German old people's home in Forest Park.

The Pages were born in Germany, and Christopher, a veteran of the German Army in World War I, made up his mind to leave Germany after observing the direction of the country following the war years. An orthopedic shoemaker, he set up a business in Chicago, and within a few months, sent for Bertha who had been training as a nurse's aid.

They soon became American citizens, and in a few years bought a home in Palatine where they resided from 1931 until 1960 when they moved to Altenheim. Christopher's entire career in the community was devoted to building shoes in accordance with doctor's prescriptions, and Bertha worked as a practical nurse.

Pastor Henry Plaum of the Evangelical Fellowship Church of Forest Park will conduct the 50th anniversary service, and the Altenheim choir will sing. Residents of the Home as well as other close friends have been invited to attend the dinner at noon and join in the festivities which will include the traditional cutting of a wedding cake.

Bouras is a collage artist, sculptor, and lecturer currently hanging in Richard Gray Gallery in Chicago. Swartz is a painter now showing in the Chicago and Vicinity show at the Art Institute.

Art works will be received at Pioneer Park today, Thursday, from 1 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m.

Festival Features Sweets, Antiques

Hanging was the expedient way of dealing with horse thieves and cattle rustlers in the American West. But it also is an artistic occurrence of the present day. Today, a hanging is a decorative suspension of pictures or other objets d'art.

The Countryside Gallery invites the public to this latter type of hanging at Pioneer Park, 500 S. Fernandez, Arlington Heights, tomorrow (Saturday) from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Saturday 1 to 7 p.m.

On display will be a body of work by the members of the area gallery. Painting, crafts, prints, drawings and sculpture will offer the fair visitor an introduction to contemporary as well as traditional art forms and concepts.

THE SPRING ARTS Festival also provides exposure for member artists who do not regularly display their work in the gallery at 407 N. Vail in Arlington Heights.

"America" as a country is the theme of the show. A paper mache Indian leads a cast of cutout cardboard characters depicting the individuals of our past. A relief map of the continental United States shows rivers and mountain ranges of this vast land.

A bustling general store will sell sweets and antiques to festival visitors and the smell of popcorn will permeate the air calling forth memories of state fairs and circuses.

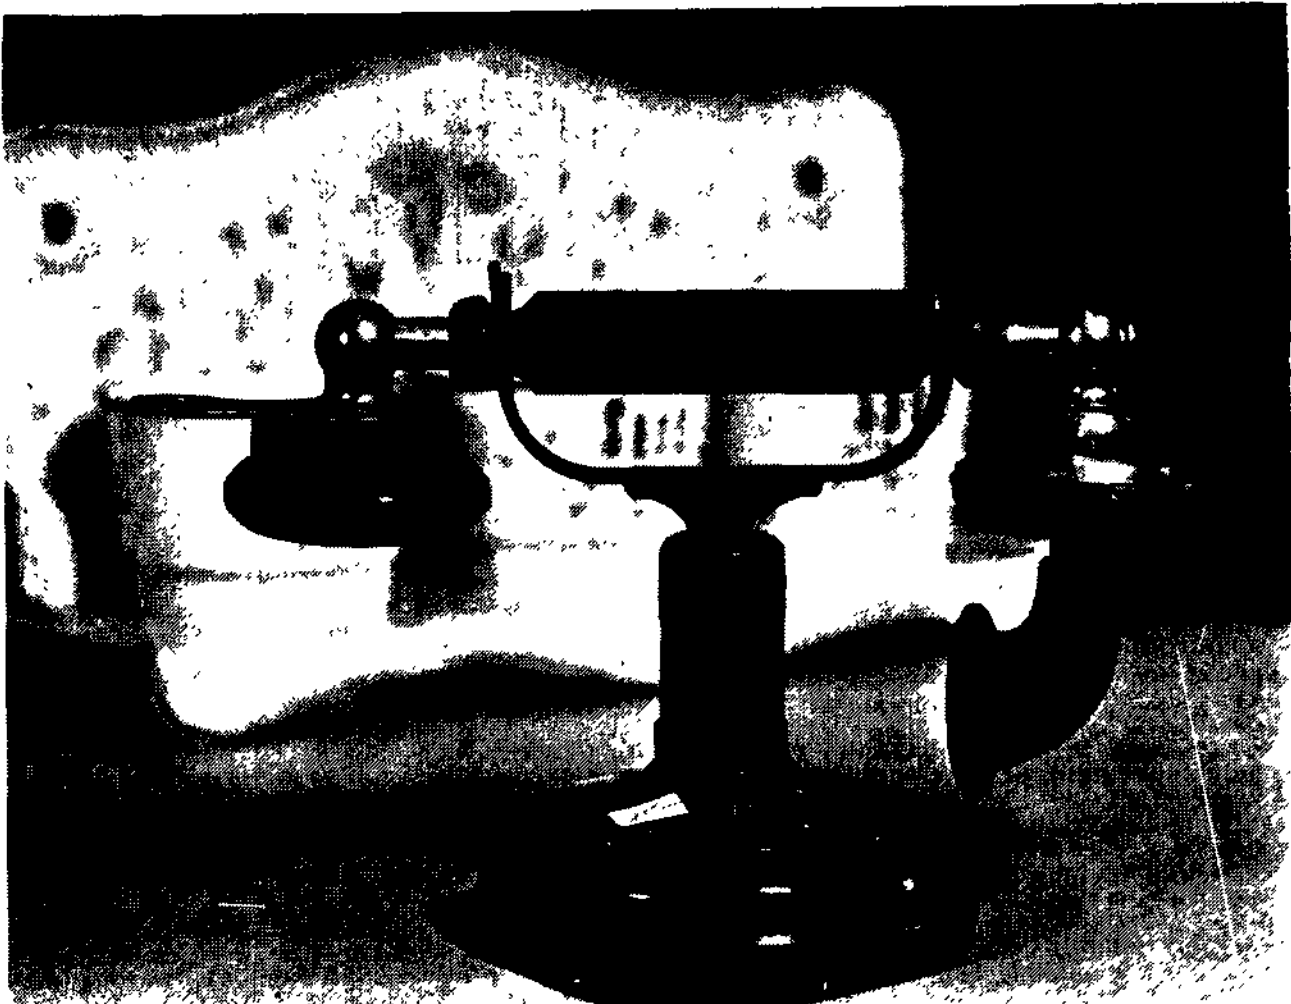

GALLERY ARTISTS WILL demonstrate their special talents in sand casting, batik and print making (see time schedule). Monetary and ribbon awards are to be presented to the artists of the best pieces in the show during a ceremony Saturday afternoon.

A rock-blues band, The Blue Condition, four freshmen high school boys, will provide a sound for today's music lovers!

The festival promises to be a live show. There will be much to see, things to eat and new and old sounds to hear. Countryside invites the whole family to join the gallery community in a celebration of "America" and art.

MOS Offers Family Style Fun

by RACHEL HEUMAN

Music on Stage presents a taste of the good old days that is good old family entertainment. "High Button Shoes," to play its two final performances tonight (Friday) and Saturday, is set in the year 1913. It gets its feel of the times from such props as an honest-to-goodness Model "T" and such timely institutions as college football, ladies bird-watching societies, the tango and the get-rich-quick scheme.

Playing the not too successful con man Harrison Floy is the versatile Hank Vandebloom, who delivered an opening night performance that reflected the fun he was having with the role.

Roy Quid and Dorothy Lea are Papa and Mama Longstreet, the willing dupes of Floy. Fourth-grader Ed Lindemann does some commendable work as little brother Stevie Longstreet, and Jeanette Tomiello is his sister Fran, the romantic female lead. Her counterpart is Tom McManus as Oggle, who lives her best next to Texas. Burlesquing his way through the role of Floy's accomplice, Mr. Pondtue, is Ed Sacco.

THE ACTING IS generally good. The musical numbers, though actors seemed somewhat constrained on occasion, are highly entertaining. The costuming spectacular. There is plenty of lighthearted, vaudeville variety action to keep the kids in the audience attentive and the adults entertained.

The high point of the play in a number of respects is the "Keystone Ballet" scene, involving the entire company running across the stage in a cops and robbers pursuit of Floy's little black bag of embezzled money. Again the corny vaudeville effects of Mack Sennett's Keystone Kops in pursuit are successful. Adding greatly to this success is the interesting staccato flashing of the lights, giving the actors' movements an eerie, slow-motion effect.

THE JULE STYNE-Sammy Cahn musical in the hands of Tom Ventris, director; Gordon Palmer, music director; Beth Vandebloom, choreographer; and Carl Erickson, Tom Swingle and Pat Sacco, scenery, lighting and costumes, has something for everyone. There are music, dancing, some good laughs — and plenty of memories for those who remember or who watch the oldie but goodie movies on TV.

Zsa Zsa Talks of Men and Matters

by MARY B. GOOD

Behold the Zsa Zsa doll — you wind it up and it attracts men.

Zsa Zsa Gabor, Hungary's version of the femme fatale, is here to materialize nightly in the Noel Coward romp, "Blithe Spirit," at the Mill Run Playhouse.

And it's easy to see why the men go ga-ga over Zsa Zsa. She is beautiful, approachable, witty, and her bearing is regal. No warts, no moles, not even a wrinkle, except maybe for Aamco.

A NON-DRINKER and non-smoker who espouses moderation in food, Miss Gabor has no vices — well, hardly any.

"I always liked older men," she said, but explained that a May-December marriage is an enormous mistake. "One doesn't realize people think differently at different ages."

"Woman's most important role is to be happily married, but don't ask me how you do that, darling," bounced out a Gaborism. But Zsa Zsa is trying — very trying, to find the right man — intelligent, attractive, and reasonably well-healed, not necessarily in that order.

IS ZSA ZSA all that frivolous? The lady went to school in Turkey, she says, and absorbed what she considers the equivalent of a college education. She speaks seven languages, collects art, enjoys fine music, is an expert horsewoman, and indulges in a little painting of her own. Miss Gabor has recently turned female business exec in the cosmetics field and will be the hostess of an evening television show next season.

This marathon talker lives in Bel Air, just outside of Los Angeles, and you might say she is a typical suburbanite. Guarded by electric gates, brick walls, and protective servants, pity poor Zsa Zsa when she wants to borrow a cup of sugar! But at least she can get around the supermarket, thanks to a fellow movie star who taught her companion shopping. Now while this may seem incongruous at first, remember that here is one girl who expresses particular attachment to furs, gowns, and "Jewels."

Gas, Food Games 'Pie-in-the-Sky'?

By ISABELLE HALL

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A tiny housewife with an even smaller budget stood on tiptoes and said she would rather gamble at the racetrack than have to pay a higher food bill for the slim chance of winning her grocery store's giveaway game.

"It's all pie in the sky," thundered Federal Trade Commission Chairman Paul Rand Dixon at hearings on the multimillion dollar business of luring buyers with giveaway games.

Patterned openly after gambling games like bingo, racing, slot machines and even the numbers racket, the games or sweepstakes have spread like wildfire into supermarkets and gas stations since they first appeared in 1964.

Now the FTC appears likely to ban them as an unfair and deceptive method of trade following nearly three years of investigation and six weeks of public hearings.

With a record totaling some 1,900 pages of testimony, Dixon promised a prompt ruling probably within the month.

The five-member commission started with the idea of regulating supermarket and gas station games. But there were strong indications an outright ban would result instead. It could even extend beyond the scope of the hearings to cover the newly burgeoning areas of giveaway games like collecting soda pop bottle caps or mailing in book publishers' "sweep-stake" tickets.

It is the big "come-on" that provides the main lure. The FTC staff study on the games reported, "The major appeal of the game to consumers appears to be the games to consumers appears to be the games to consumers appears to be the game piece that could result in winning a $1,000 prize in a single store visit were only about one in a million.

Who pays for the games in the end? Colston E. Warne, president of the Consumers Union, testified the consumer footed "a heavy bill for this follow-the-leader contest into crooked merchandising practices."

Although supermarket executives, and to a lesser extent oil company officials, conceded the games have now generally lost effectiveness as sales promotion, they argued for the right to use them.

Most supported some type of "reasonable" government regulation such as those originally proposed by the FTC.

But as the commissioners listened to the endless pages of testimony, it became clear they were appalled at the prospect of trying to police and regulate what Dixon and Commissioner Everett MacIntyre referred to as "a gambling casino."

Whatever the decision—trade regulation rules or prohibition—the merchandiser's right to use games as a sales promotion will certainly be taken to the courts.

William Simon, counsel for Humble Oil & Refining Co., told the FTC it had no jurisdiction to promulgate such rules and that even its hearings were "legally unsupportable."

He accused the commission of violating the due process guarantee of the Constitution by proposing to issue a rule without taking any sworn testimony or allowing cross-examination.

Illinois PTA Unit Opposes Aid to Non-Public Schools

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Illinois Congress of the Parents and Teachers Association is opposed to Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie's plan to give state aid to non-public schools, Mrs. V. J. Brazier, president of the state PTA group, said today.

The Illinois PTA feels public money given to private and parochial schools "would eventually cause public education to disappear," Mrs. Brazier of East Alton said in an interview.

"Private schools would proliferate and public schools would be only for those unable to get into private schools," if state aid is given to non-public schools, she said.

Mrs. Brazier said, "Public schools will find a way to handle added students if private schools must close down for lack of funds."

The 2,240 local PTA chapters in Illinois are meeting here.

Lion Thincclads Cop 2nd

"I was really surprised and pleased with the kids last weekend."

So spoke St. Viator varsity track coach Owen Fox after his Lion thincclads had swept to second in a triangular meet Saturday afternoon, with St. George and St. Ignatius.

St. George took the meet honors with 56-5/6 points, followed by the Lions with 51-1/3, with St. Ignatius in third with 50-5/6 points.

"I really expected St. Ignatius to win," Fox added. "Last year they walked away with everything in the conference on the varsity level. Our kids did a fine job."

Giving the coach reason for such praise was the fact that the Lions metted six of fifteen firsts in the meet, with Denny Foreman leading the way with a pair of wins.

Foreman grabbed the blue ribbon in the long jump on a 20-1/4 effort, and then the senior Leon swept to first in the low hurdles in 22.8 seconds.

Bob Batchelor cracked the school 100-yard dash record with a clocking of 10.1 seconds, a mark that ties the best time turned in by other schools in the Paddock area.

Other Viator firsts came in the pole vault, shot put and discus. Dan Baron copped pole vault honors by propelling himself to an even 10 feet, Greg Diem heaved the shot 44-10/16 for first in that event, and Ed Klingberg whirled the discus 126-2 to take honors there.

A surprise for the coach was the mile run clocking turned in by freshman Sam Galloto of an even five minutes, a fine effort for any freshman. "Sam's been improving continually through the season," says Fox. "He's cut his time down by 30 seconds in the last few weeks."

The Lion frosh-soph squad also took second in the triangular, though this time St. Ignatius accomplished what it was supposed to do on the varsity level. The Wolves counted a total of 105 points, while the Lions took 30, and St. George 20.

For Fremd Dan Pittenger won the mile in 4:38.3 and Rick Gaare won in the shot put. Mike Mennick was second in the 100, second in the 220 and ran on a winning relay team.

Morton College was a big hurdle for the Harper College tennis team. After whipping them last week, the Hawks had the tough assignment of going up against the defending Region IV champions — Rock Valley.

In a couple of extra matches, Steve Engler beat Bause 6-3 and was winning 4-0 when the rains came. In the other singles match Vince Engler, Steve's brother, lost the opening set to Gary Nimochs, 9-7, and then came back to win the second, 6-0.

Harper will play Prairie State there today in a makeup meet. The match was originally scheduled for last Monday but was rained out.

Playing on the Rockford team's home courts, however, didn't upset the Hawks as they polished off one of the toughest opponents they'll have all year by a 2-1 count last Tuesday.

"It was nice to have that," said Coach Roy Kearns of the outstanding victory. "They are one of the strongest teams in the junior college league."

Asked if Rock Valley considered itself the team to beat this year, Kearns said, "They thought so till they met us. I think."

Gaining the points for the Hawks were its strong singles players — Bill Von Boeckmann and Doug Mueller. Von Boeckmann captured the No. 1 singles in a breeze over sophomore Jim Elliot, 6-0 and 6-0.

Mueller put away freshman Jim Haugen in the No. 2 match by a score of 6-2 and 6-0.

Steve Engler and Ron McGregor, who are the doubles team for Harper, took it on the chin losing 6-1 and 6-2 to Bruce Carlson and Jay Bause, both are sophomores.

"They were very good," pointed out Kearns. "Carlson was one of the finalists last year in the region doubles championships."

He also added that Elliot, the hosts' No.

The Northwest Suburban YMCA boys swim team, coached by John Eliot, finished second in overall points in the state championship meet Saturday at Eastern Illinois University in Charleston.

The Prep division came home with a first place Marv Pastel who has been undefeated in the breaststroke came home with a first place medal for breaststroke as did gold medal winner, Phil Nychay, winning the 100 yd butterfly.

Discuss Program Changes

The Fourth Annual Illinois High School Athletic Directors' Association Meeting was completed recently in Springfield, Ill.

The program included leading people from the field of athletics.

The main order of business revolved around discussion of problems and suggestions relating to changes and improvements in the Illinois high school athletic programs.

After considerable deliberation it was decided to form committees from the I.H.S.A.D.A. to further study these areas: "Football State Tournament Series" (Gene McCarter, East Moline United Township High School, Chairman), "Class System in Basketball Series" (Chuck Rollins, Toluca High School, Chairman), and "Limitation of Sports Seasons" (Henry Hohe, Morton East High School, Chairman).

The assignment of these committees is to arrive at a desirable plan to present to the I.H.S.A. Board of Directors to bring to a vote of all the high schools in Illinois by this fall.

The I.H.S.A.D.A. went on record as supporting these ideas in general. The association also supported the movement by state colleges and universities to offer minor areas of study in sports and athletics so as to move towards a possible state "certification of coaches" in the future.

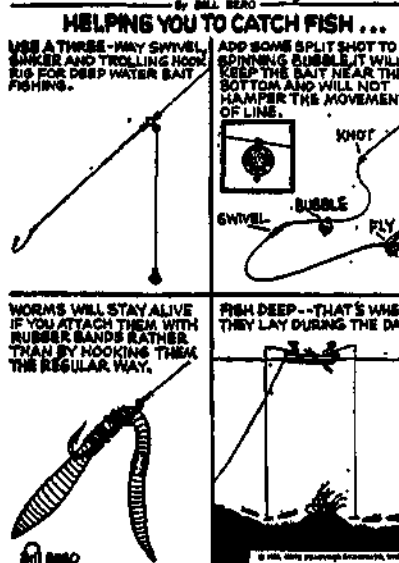

Reid Martin, Carbondale Central High School, is retiring president.

At Rolling Meadows

In recent competition in the St. Theresa Women's league Helen Weber hit a 526 series and Marge Cline came through with a 49th. Highways over the past two weeks have been a 197 by Marge Cline, 185 by Helen Weber, and 178 by Bert Bruns and Lorrie Keller. Split conversion awards went to Leola Hickman 5-10; Helen Weber 4-7-10, and Irene Drew 5-7.

Arlington Netmen Blank Fremd, 5-0

It's a pretty impressive way to kick off defense of a league championship.

Arlington's varsity tennis squad, defending Mid-Suburban League net champions, opened up defense of their conference crown Wednesday afternoon with a 5-0 shutout over a rugged Fremd squad, taking every match in only two sets while shutting out the Vikings in six of the ten sets in the meet.

Number one singles man Greg Harris had the rockiest time in the meet, downing Fremd's talented Randy Seiler 6-0, 6-3, but then second singles Cardinal Ken Jorgensen set the tempo of the meet with a

NIMAGA Boosts Junior Golf Play

Three years ago the Northern Illinois Men's Amateur Golf Association (NIMAGA) began sponsoring junior golf tournaments in the Chicago area. The 1968 season was a tremendous success, as evidenced by the 235 or more junior players that competed in each of the summer tournaments.

Since the response to the NIMAGA Junior Program has been so large and increasing, the Junior Golf Program is now a definite part of the NIMAGA organization. With the rapid increase in junior participation it has become necessary to establish a division of NIMAGA called the NIMAGA Junior Open Division. The Junior Division is, like the Senior Division, administered by a Board of Directors. Junior golf in the Chicago area is no longer a one man project, and it's still growing.

First for Ryder Cup

The first official Ryder Cup golf matches were held between British and American professionals at Worcester, Mass., in 1927, when the Americans won, 9 to 2.

The 1969 season will have four "Open" Tournaments at two week intervals beginning in late June at four different Chicago area country clubs. The tournaments are open to all amateur male golfers ages 14 thru 21, inclusive. The competition is divided into three flights depending on age, Junior 14-16 years old, Intermediate 17-18 years old, Senior 19-21 years old. The top four winners in each flight in each tournament will be awarded handsome trophies and will automatically qualify for the Championship Tournament in late August.

The purpose, simply is to assist and provide the young golfers in Chicagoland with the opportunity to participate in competitive golf, which in turn will benefit his mind, body, and golf.

Lion Golfers Keep 'Rollin' Along'

Whoever the man was who wrote "Ol' Man River" must have had the St. Vitor varsity golfers in mind, because the Lion linksters "just keep rollin' along."

After scoring four straight wins against varied competition, the charges of Father Patrick Durkin recorded their most impressive conquest to date Wednesday afternoon, a 151-153 squeaker over a talented Glenbrook North outfit at the Spartan home layout at Sportsman Golf Course in Northbrook.

The meet wasn't decided until the last Lion and Spartan checked in at the end of nine holes, but when both teams had finished their rounds, the Lions came out ahead.

Senior Don Weber and junior Mario Vitale shared medalist honors in the meet, posting identical scores of 36 on the par 35 course. Right behind those two came Glenbrook's Rich Bates with a 37, Don Evans with a 38 and Ken Bates and Larry Miller with 39's, but Lions Joe Dougherty and Ken Mattini kept Vitor ahead by carding a 39 and 40, respectively.

The Trojan frosh-soph squad took some of the sting out of the varsity loss by netting a 171-175 victory. The Lions' next meet is at Immaculate Conception today starting at 4 p.m.

Forest View Nips Prospect in Golf

It was billed as a close struggle and it was.

Two of the Mid-Suburban League's best golf teams — Prospect and Forest View — met last Monday afternoon and played nine holes over a very wet and muddy Mount Prospect Golf Course.

Both teams hold all their home meets there but the Knights were the hosts this time around. However, it proved to be a bad day for them as they dropped their first meet of the season to the Falcons, 180-162.

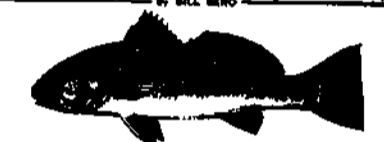

Leading Forest View to their second win of the season was junior Mike Morgan who fired a very fine one over par 36 over the 3.043 yard layout.

Right behind this Falcon medalist was Wayne Meier who turned in a solid 38. Then came Doug Dahle with a 41 and Gary Abramson with a 45.

Steve Orrell and Bruce Recher paced the Knights with a pair of 39s. Bruce Timko had a 41 and Scott Crawford came in with a 43.

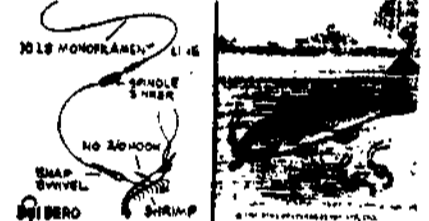

Prospect's frosh-soph team saved a possible sweep of the meet by defeating the young Falcons, 189-180.

Conant Tracksters Triumph

Frank DeGracia made a splendid comeback performance and Steve Peterson won two events as Conant's track team defeated Hersey 83-44 Tuesday on the Hunkie track.

DeGracia, who had a good track season last year, has had a long lay-off while resting a badly pulled muscle. Tuesday he made a fine comeback as he won the 220-yard dash in 23.4 and the 440-yard dash in 52.1 — both for victories.

Conant's Peterson was first in the 120-yard high hurdles in 14.9 and first in the 180-yard low hurdles in 20.7. Hersey's Skip Peterson was second in both hurdles events and second in the long jump which was won by Conant's Mike Renner with a leap of 19-4.

Conant took 1-2 in the two-mile with Glenn Lee's 10:10.2 and Dale Bond's 10:16.0. 1-2 in the half mile with Ron Schweigert's 2:108.4 and Hirm Lopestivero's 2:13.5 and 1-2 in the mile with Dave Guarno's 4:47 and Steve Feutz' 4:51.4.

Steve Schuler nabbed first for Hersey in the 100-yard dash with a 10.7 and was third in the long jump.

Conant's Mike Andrews won in the shot put, Tom Harmon was first in the discus and Tom Weeks was first in the pole vault.

Conant won the mile relay and Hersey won the 880-yard relay.

In the frosh-soph meet, Hersey defeated Conant 83-44.

The Paddock Classic Traveling League will stage an Inter-League Tournament this Saturday at 8:30 at Thunderbird Bowl. Competition will be among 16 two-man teams with five games across ten lanes. The public is invited.

Power Boat Race At Lake Zurich

The second annual Ice-Breaker Regatta power boat race will be held at Lake Zurich on Sunday, May 4. This event, sponsored by the Jaycees, is the first race of the year sanctioned by the American Power Boat Assn. (APBA).

Last year's race drew 116 entrants from eight states. The race this year will again feature such famous entrants as Stover Hyer of Syracuse, Indiana, four-time national champion and last year's point champion of B-Utility class boats. Dr. Stu Wilson of Great Lakes, Ill. will again be featured as he shows the way in his class B Hydroplane. Also racing will be the famous Berghauer brothers of Wisconsin.

More than 3,500 spectators attended last year's race and thrilled to the roar of the racing engines. Speed, spills and chills were all a part of last year's race, the first ever held in the Chicagoland area.

The race will be held on Lake Zurich about 30 miles north of Chicago on Route 12. Race day is May 4, 1:00 to 5:00 p.m. and admission is $1.00. Free parking is provided and refreshments will be available. Children under 12 free.

America's Religions

Despite Bitter Hardship, Mormons Endured

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer
One in a Series

From a tiny, persecuted sect to a world-wide denomination with 2 million members is a long way to go in 138 years. The Mormons have done it, and are still going strong.

The most distinctive of the numerous religious movements which had their inception in America, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, better known as the LDS Church or simply as the Mormon Church, has survived incredible hardships to attain its present strong position.

Its history begins with a farm boy named Joseph Smith Jr., who lived near the village of Palmyra, N.Y., in the early 19th century. He was strongly affected by revival meetings to which his mother took him, but did not join a church because he was confused by the great variety of doctrines that were being stridently proclaimed by various Protestant denominations jostling for converts in frontier communities. When he was 4 years old, Smith began to have religious visions. In these visions, he said, he was visited by an angel named Moroni, who had been chosen to receive a revelation that would restore the true Gospel.

Smith said the angel eventually led him to a secret cache in a hillside where he found a box full of golden plates left there by an ancient prophet. From these plates, he said, he obtained the text of the Book of Mormon, which he published in 1830.

Latter-day Saints regard the Book of Mormon as being equal to, "supporting but not supplanting," the Bible. It tells of a lost tribe of Israelites who migrated to America about 600 B.C. and became the ancestors of American Indians.

After his resurrection, Christ came to America to visit these people and establish his church among them. Members of the original church were wiped out in a tribal war in 385 A.D., after the last surviving prophet had hidden the golden plates on which their history is recorded.

The book ends with a prophecy that the true church of Christ someday would be restored in America by a group of "Latter-day Saints."

In 1830, Smith and his followers established the Church of Latter-day Saints at Fayette, N. Y., the new movement immediately ran into strong opposition, and in 1831 the Mormons left New York for Kirtland, Ohio.

They also founded a community at Independence, Mo. Again they came under persecution, and again they moved, this time to establish a new settlement at Nauvoo, Ill. Reports that polygamy was being practiced inflamed the emotions of frontier Protestants, who felt that Christian love need not extend to anyone who trifled with the institution of monogamy.

The Illinois militia was sent into Nauvoo, Joseph Smith was arrested and on the night of June 27, 1844, the militia stood by and allowed a mob to storm the jail and lynch him.

The mantle of the martyred prophet passed to Brigham Young, a Vermont housepainter who proved to be one of the greatest leaders ever produced on the American frontier. He decided that the only way the Mormons could avoid persecution was to move to a land so bleak and unpromising that no one else would want it. He found what he was looking for in the valley of the Great Salt Lake in Utah

(then a part of Mexico) and in 1847 he led the first Mormon pioneers on one of history's most grueling treks across desert and wilderness. Thousands walked every foot of the way, pushing their meager belongings in handcarts. Hundreds died along the way, but the hardy survivors who finally made it to Utah proceeded to turn an inhospitable desert into one of the most fertile, prosperous and beautiful parts of America.

Persecution of the Mormons did not end with the move to Utah. After the United States took Utah from Mexico in 1848, the government sent troops into Utah to depose Young as governor and put a stop to the practice of polygamy.

The civil war gave them some respite, but by 1877, anti-Mormon bigots were in action again, and Congress passed a law (which, incredibly, was upheld by the Supreme Court) denying Mormons the right to vote.

In 1890, the church outlawed the practice of polygamy, which appeased the guardians of public morality in Washington, and in 1896 Utah was finally admitted to the union as a state.

Because polygamy has played such a conspicuous part in Mormon history, it needs to be emphasized that only a very small percentage of Mormon families ever practiced plural marriage and their motives were not sexual lust but strong religious convictions.

One of the distinctive Mormon doctrines is that the future life in heaven will be a bodily one, including marriage and procreation of children. Only those who have entered into a "celestial marriage" while on earth can anticipate complete bliss in heaven.

To a Mormon woman, in a frontier community where women greatly outnumbered men, plural marriage was infinitely preferable to the prospect of spinsterhood throughout eternity.

In many respects, the Mormon faith resembles the theology of any fundamentalist Protestant denomination. But there are distinctive additions, besides "celestial marriage." They are derived from the "Book of Doctrine and Covenants" and "The Pearl of Great Price."

Mormons believe that God has a flesh-and-bones body. They practice baptism-by-proxy for the salvation of the dead.

And they hold that all human beings had a previous life in the spirit world before they were born into this one.

A corollary of the later doctrine—which has been very embarrassing to the presidential ambitions of Mormon George Romney—is that Negroes are born with black skins because of divine displeasure with their conduct in the life-before-birth. Thus, while Negroes are eligible for membership in the LDS church, they are barred from the Mormon priesthood, which is otherwise open to all males.

Mormons believe that revelation did not end with the Bible or even with the writings of Joseph Smith, but still goes on. The president of the church is considered "the mouthpiece of God" through whom new revelations come. Many progressive Mormons have been hoping that the current president, 94-year-old David McKay, will have a revelation modifying the teaching about Negroes, but President McKay has so far stood firm on the traditional doctrine.

Wild stories circulate about the enormous holdings of the LDS church in various U.S. corporations. They are untrue. The church does have an income of about $100 million a year, but it comes mostly from the offerings of its members, who are enjoined by church law to tithe.

The money is spent as fast as it comes in, with the largest share going into missions, education and youth programs. About 12,000 Mormon missionaries are now at work on every continent, and their diligent efforts net about 180,000 converts a year. Young Mormons are expected to contribute two years of voluntary service as missionaries, at their own expense.

In addition to the main LDS church, which has its headquarters in Salt Lake City, there are four other Mormon bodies, testimony to long-ago schisms. Largest of these is the Reorganized Church of Latter-day Saints, with headquarters at Independence, Mo. It has about 170,000 members. It never practiced polygamy, and it also does not accept the teaching that Negroes are under a divine curse. None of the other groups has more than 5,000 members.

Mormons observe strict rules of personal morality. They disapprove of tea, coffee, tobacco, alcohol, birth control and divorce.

What's Behind the ABM Flap?

by DONALD MAY

WASHINGTON (UPI)—In November, 1968, the "strategic balance" of U.S.-Soviet nuclear weapons was, from the Pentagon's point of view, comfortable.

Now, as Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird describes it to Congress, the picture is suddenly ominous.

What actually has changed?

On election day, Nov. 7, 1968, this was the way the Pentagon sized up the balance:

The Soviet Union—like the United States—appeared to be protecting its deterrent. It did not seem to be reaching for a "first strike" weapons system—a system that could mount a successful surprise attack and destroy U.S. power to retaliate.

Russia was rapidly catching up with the United States in number of intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM) launchers. But the expectation was that once it caught up, it would slow down.

Most Soviet ICBMs were SS 11's, a roughly one megaton weapon, in many ways similar to the U.S. Minuteman ICBM but not highly accurate. Because of this the SS 11 was considered good for destroying cities but not very good for destroying Minutemen in their underground silos, which could absorb almost a direct hit.

This was consistent with the theory that the Soviets were concentrating on their deterrent—the ability to destroy enemy cities if their own country were attacked.

The Russians were behind in nuclear bombers and in nuclear missile submarines. Theoretically they could launch 45 missiles from submarines, compared with 656 for the United States. Actually, the Russians were just learning the art. Mostly their missile subs stayed close to home.

The Soviets had experimented with a fractional orbital bombardment system (FOBS), which seemed a surprise attack weapon. But the United States was building radars to reduce this surprise.

Most importantly, U.S. intelligence did not then see signs of any really threatening Soviet development such as increased missile accuracy or big increases in the numbers or power of warheads which could threaten U.S. Minutemen.

Former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara had calculated that if Russia's nuclear capability reached its "highest expected point" in 1972, and if Russia then launched everything against U.S. Minutemen, half of the U.S. offensive forces would survive.

He also figured that of the surviving U.S. weapons three fourths would penetrate Soviet anti-ballistic missiles.

ABM's, that 100 million Soviets would be killed and that three-fourths of Soviet industry would be destroyed. McNamara considered this a very ample deterrent.

But even if Russia topped these expectations, the United States had a series of other options. It could step up existing plans for multiple warheads, add more Minutemen in superhard silos, add more Minutemen, build better land and submarine-based missiles. Or it could protect its Minutemen with an ABM system.

In November, 1968, the assessment was that these options could stay on the shelf a while longer.

In December two pieces of intelligence information came in:

1. The Soviet Union was installing big-payload missiles, SS 9's, faster than expected. At last report 200 SS 9's had been installed.

2. It was estimated that Russia was capable of building 12 of its new "Polaris-type" submarines a year, and was actually building them at a rate of 7 to 9 a year.

This was "raw" intelligence. As so often happens, it took many weeks to evaluate it. Because of the delay, the final defense posture statement of Secretary Clark Clifford, published Jan. 15, 1969, contained only generalized references to the new information.

After President Nixon's inauguration Jan. 20 the new administration began an intensive study of the nuclear balance, particularly the ABM issue. By this time the intelligence was more firm. The question was: What did it mean?

This question was considered by Pentagon nuclear experts who stayed on in the new administration as well as by Laird and his deputy, David Packard. Their thinking followed these lines:

The Soviet Union's deployment of the SS 9 looked outright irrational. The rocket, which first appeared in 1966, is somewhat similar to the Titan II, which is regarded as semi-obsolete although there still are 48 of them in the U.S. missile force.

The SS 9 can carry warheads ranging from 12 to 25 megatons. There are only 20 or 25 U.S. cities worth hitting with an SS 9. Most of its megatonnage would be wasted on smaller cities.

If the Russians wanted to be sure they could knock out these 25 U.S. cities, they might build 50 or 100 SS 9's. Even 150 SS 9's probably would not cause a change in U.S. policy. But 200, with deployment continuing, seemed inconceivable. Officials concluded that someone's thinking was off—either theirs or the Russians.

Could the SS 9's be aimed at Communist China, whose relations with Russia have continued to deteriorate in recent years? Officials said the basic argument still applies—the Soviet Union doesn't need 200 of the missiles to knock out all the targets worthy of its attention in the United States and China combined.

Could it be, officials asked, that Soviet generals simply weren't using common sense? Their answer was yes. But they also concluded that no U.S. administration could make such an assumption and live with it. There would be history to answer to.

Actually, 200 Soviet SS 9's are not considered catastrophic to U.S. security. Not even 300. Three hundred such missiles could stand on 80 or 90 per cent chance of knocking out 300 of this country's 1,000 Minutemen.

The surviving Minutemen, plus bombers and plus polaris missiles still could devastate Russia. On top of this, the United States will soon be installing multiple warheads on its land and sea missiles.

What worried U.S. officials was the possibility that in the next several years the Russians might build hundreds more SS 9's, equip them with multiple warheads and improve their inherent accuracy even more.

One result of that could be 400 SS 9's containing a total of 1,200 warheads, each aimed at a Minuteman. It was this possibility years from now which led the administration to decide on a step-by-step ABM system designed to protect the Minutemen as the Soviet threat emerges.

What about the U.S. bombers and Polaris? The Pentagon has always said that either force could devastate Russia; that each therefore is a separate deterrent. Why then worry unduly about losing the Minutemen?

The answer reached by the administration study was that the United States needs three separate deterrents. Any of them could somehow fail and each is subject to erosion by Soviet developments. Officials reasoned this way:

—The U.S. bomber force is threatened by Russia's emerging missile submarines. The Strategic Air Command (SAC) says it needs 15 minutes warning to get its bombers off the ground. Actually it can shave off some time. But depending on where a Soviet submarine launches its missiles, and depending on the location of SAC bases, it might have no more than five minutes warning in some cases. For this reason, one option included in the administration's proposed ABM system is to install radars and missiles to intercept submarine-launched missiles during the critical first few minutes while the bombers are taking off.

—The Polaris force now looks "good as gold" to officials. But officials have evidence of some Soviet developments which, if successfully carried farther, could someday threaten it.

The question of whether Russia has indeed chosen the "first strike" road is still wide open as far as most officials are concerned, despite some administration rhetoric in the heat of congressional hearings.

My Little Car is Bigger Than Yours!

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—American auto makers are finally moving into the small car field to challenge the little foreign imports that have become so popular in this country.

Well, lots of luck, Detroit! You're going to need it.

I'm sure the U.S. manufacturers will be able to compete with the foreign car companies. The big question is whether they will be able to compete with their own advertising agencies.

A small car has three advantages over a big car: it costs less to buy, it costs less to operate and it is easier to park. In short, it's small.

Ford's new Maverick coming out this month and the other domestic models to be introduced next year presumably will have these qualities. At first.

But what happens after they are all on the market and their advertising agencies take over?

Just as sure as God makes little green apples, one of the companies will start claiming that its small car is bigger than the other small cars.

"The Tiny Tim is half an inch longer than any other car in the small car field," the ads will say.

And just as sure as it rains in Indianapolis in the summertime, the other companies will start making their small cars one inch longer to frustrate their rivals' advertising agency.

Before long, all of the American small cars will have inched up to the size that the American "compacts" were when they were first introduced.

And then, just as sure as it snows in Minneapolis in the wintertime, the horsepower escalation will begin.

"The Tiny Tim is the only car in the small car field that offers an eight-cylinder, 360-horsepower motor," the ads will say.

And just as sure as there are Disneyland, a Dr. Seuss and a Mother Goose nursery rhyme, the ad agencies for the other companies will insist that their clients start installing even more powerful motors in their cars.

Then will come the expansion of seating capacity, trunk space and all the other elephantine features so dear to the hearts of Madison Avenue.

Within a few years, if Detroit isn't careful, the foreign imports will have the small car market all to themselves again.

For just as sure as God makes little green apples, advertising agencies turn them into big red ones.

The Almanac

By United Press International

Today is Friday, April 18, the 108th day of 1969 with 257 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter.

The morning stars are Venus, Saturn, Mars and Jupiter.

The evening star is Mercury.

On this day in history: In 1775 American patriot, Paul Revere, began his famed ride through the Massachusetts countryside, calling "The British are coming."

In 1906 the San Francisco earthquake began. When it ended, 3 days later, 500 persons were dead.

In 1942 Lt. Col. James Doolittle and a squadron of 16 B25's bombed Japan for the first time.

In 1964 17 servicemen were killed when two troop planes collided over Ohio.

A thought for the day: John Selden said, "They that govern the most make the least noise."

Will Chi Chi and An An Find Happiness?

by WILBORN HAMPTON

LONDON (UPI)—They lie in great furry heaps like two giant teddy bears.

Presently, they lurch up and begin to pace slowly back and forth occasionally casting disinterested glances at one another, oblivious to the fact that their time together is nearly spent and that zoologists around the world follow their every move. They are Chi Chi and An An, the giant pandas.

They likely will never see another of their kind as long as they live.

They are together now in a final attempt by the London and Moscow zoos to mate the only two giant pandas outside China. Unless their acquaintanceship blossoms into romance soon, they will be parted for good.

An An, the Moscow Zoo's male, has been in London since August on a monthly lease which is subject to monthly renewal or foreclosure by the Soviet Union.

Zoologists are hopeful that Chi Chi, the London Zoo's female, will soon come into a spring season during which she will be receptive to An An. But their behavior toward each other is disconcerting and there are growing fears that the mating will not take place.

The two beasts live in adjoining paddocks, sloped knolls with tufts of grass and a wire fence down the middle. Doors which join the paddocks stand open at either end. Two bare trees stand in one side for the giant pandas to lie on.

Like any other animal in a zoo, they occupy most of their time pacing. Chi Chi walks at the back of one paddock and An

An along the cement drainage walkway at the front of the other.

At one point, An An, appreciably the larger of the two, saunters into Chi Chi's side. She doesn't look at him. He ambles slowly toward her. An An gets about five yards from her when Chi Chi eyes him, then turns and walks in the opposite direction. An An follows, but without quickening his pace.

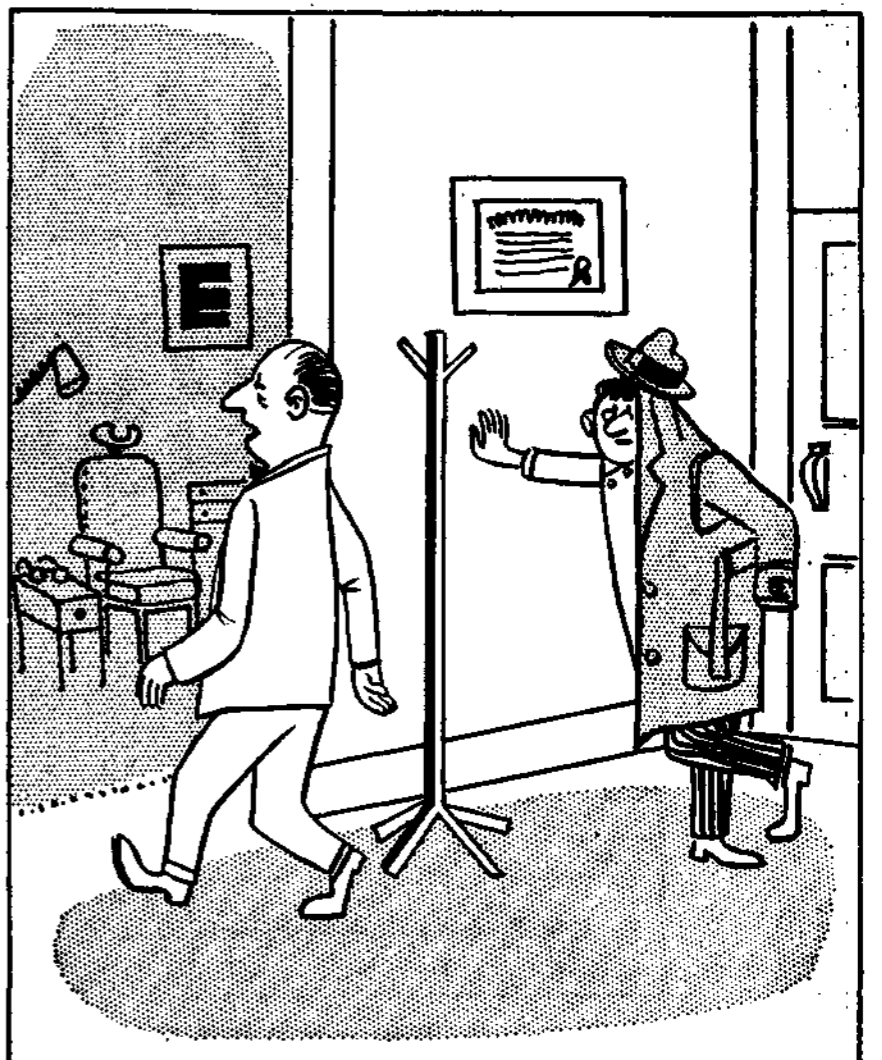

After following her from one paddock to the other, he stops, looks at a row of human onlookers at the fence and lies down on the logs.

The giant pandas still exist in Szechwan Province of China and there are specimens in zoos in Peking, Shanghai, Nanjing, Canton and in Pyongyang, North Korea.

Giant pandas number in the hundreds. The political climate of the world being what it is, it is unlikely the West will see another of these beautiful creatures for some time.

Red China has even refused to disclose any information about the giant panda's habits.

During the unsuccessful first attempt to mate Chi Chi and An An in Moscow in 1966-67, both Soviet and British zoologists wrote to the Peking Zoo for information about mating habits. Red China never replied.

Thompson Becomes Outstanding Salesman

John C. Thompson

John C. Thompson, 128 David Drive, Palatine, was named to SKF Industries' exclusive "Outstanding Salesman's Club" during a formal award ceremony that was held recently in Freeport, The Bahamas.

Membership in the ball and roller bearing manufacturer's organization is limited to SKF salesmen dedicated to professional selling who consistently demonstrate exceptional performance.

THOMPSON, A CHICAGO district field engineer and a five-year veteran of SKF, said his success stems from understanding customer's needs, then coordinating the resources of SKF to fulfill them.

He attended Gettysburg College, Gettysburg, Pa., and Temple University, Philadelphia. He is a member of the society of automotive engineers, the American management association, and is active in boys baseball in his community.

Feature Renewal

Certificates of deposit for the First National Bank of Des Plaines now are automatically renewable, announced Jack Lavold, cashier.

Lavold pointed out the most important benefit of the automatic renewable feature is that certificate holders no longer have to bring the certificates in to renew them at each maturity period.

"These certificates of deposit," Lavold added, "still earn a full 5 per cent guaranteed interest."

1968: Many Were Priced Out

The prices of new and established homes in the MAP area (Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Palatine) has increased by as much as 10 per cent during 1968, according to Herb Carl, executive sales manager of Arlington Realty, Inc., member broker of Homeric, Inc., national homefinding service.

This follows a national trend in which home prices increased an average of 10 per cent last year, and about 3 per cent during the final quarter alone, Carl said. These price increases reflect serious housing shortages in many areas of the United States, as revealed in a recent survey of the national home market conducted by Homeric through its more than 1200 member brokers across the country.

New homes construction in this area during 1968 was significant, noted Carl.

Reports of increased housing starts or issuance of residential building permits misled potential home buyers to believe that this would mean an easing of the market. Actually, the number of permits for single-family homes fell below the 1967 level while multiple-family dwelling permits increased, Carl noted.

Homeric, Inc., explained Carl, specializes in finding homes for relocating executives since 1955, surveys the housing situation in more than 4,000 communities across the country, Hawaii, Canada and Puerto Rico, through its offices in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and New Canaan, Conn. Arlington Realty, Inc., with 4 area offices, has been associated with Homeric since 1960.

To house hunters 1968 was the year that they were priced out of the housing market. Predictions of increased construction promised an easing of prices, while a change of administration and a forecast of an economic slowdown held out a glimmer of hope that mortgage rates would decline. Neither of these events, however, showed any signs of coming to pass as the year ended, Carl noted. The mortgage market did ease slightly, making home mortgages more readily available in the last half of the year, but the price for this was record high interest rates, which moved up to 7.23 per cent in December, compared to 6.54 per cent for the same month in 1967. By February 1969 the effective rate nationally rose to an average of 7.42 per cent.

The average national rate for March 1969 is expected to be even higher when the figures are available, Carl predicted. The situation here in Illinois is a little different, Carl explained. Because of the state usury laws placing the home loan ceiling at 7%, the average interest rate now being charged in the Chicago area is 6.93% and a term of 22.7 years. The situation is making it difficult for some home buyers to obtain a suitable mortgage loan. Down payments are higher and loan service charges have increased in the past several months in order to compensate for the lower interest rate ceiling. In the meantime, new and established home values continue to rise.

Carl feels that almost all Realtors, bankers and lenders agree that one way the tight money situation will ease itself in Illinois is if the interest rate ceiling is raised to something higher than the present 7% limit. A bill to accomplish this is now pending in Springfield.

According to the Homeric report, the forecasted national gains in new construction in 1969 will center on multiple-family homes, apartment buildings, and custom built single-family units, while the residential single-family home market will see little new construction that could significantly alleviate the current shortages. Homeric predicts that high prices will continue to be part of the single-family housing market at least for the remainder of 1969.

Country Atmosphere At King's Walk Apartments

A new garden apartment complex in the Plum Grove area of Rolling Meadows, featuring a "country life" atmosphere has been announced by Albert Riley Builders. It consists of 11 two-story buildings (216 apartments).

Marshall Rosenthal, vice-president of Albert Riley Builders, points out, "Kings Walk has been designed and developed with the idea that a planned community of garden apartments can offer its residents the beauty and relaxed comfort usually found only in a (country estate) type of residential area."

The visitor to Kings Walk will notice the handsome mansard roof styling, that no building is more than two stories high, that each apartment has its own private enclosed patio or balcony and that the casual winding roads and the wooded landscaping add to the country atmosphere.

One of the prime features of Kings Walk is its private clubhouse and swimming pool for residents. The air conditioned building includes showers, dressing room facilities, meeting rooms and comfortable lounge with a large stone fireplace. The swimming pool is surrounded by a large terrace.

The Kings Walk apartments are available in three floor plans: 1 bedroom and 1 bath, 2 bedrooms — 1½ baths and 3 bedrooms, 2 full baths. Each apartment includes two parking spaces in a lighted parking area. A single entry to a building serves no more than 8 apartments.

Among other amenities included with each apartment are: zone controlled air conditioning, electric heating, wall-to-wall carpeting (including special kitchen carpeting), all electric kitchens with range hood, disposal, dishwasher, and large refrigerator-freezer, individual 40-gallon water heaters, double-glazed windows and patio doors, lowered closet doors, tiled foyer floors, master TV antenna, storage areas, tiled baths with panoramic mirrors and vanities and formal size dining rooms.

Kings Walk is located at Plum Grove Road and Euclid Ave. in Rolling Meadows.

Centex Sales To Three Companies

Bennett and Kahweiler, Chicago-based real estate firm, has announced the completion of three land sales transactions in Centex Industrial Park, Elk Grove Village, totalling more than $175,000.

The first transaction, a land sale of 100,000 square feet adjacent to the newly opened Holiday Inn-Centex, was made to the Continental Machine Company, Chicago. A 22,000 square foot manufacturing facility will be built upon the site within a year. The firm manufactures its own line of machines and is a sales representative for other tube fabrication equipment manufacturers.

It was also announced that W. P. Brooms and Co., Chicago, had purchased 60,000 square feet of land on the north side of Devon Avenue just west of Elmhurst Road in the 2000 acre park. Sources from the company indicated that the building would be used in connection with future expansion.

The third transaction was the sale of 20,000 square feet of land at the corner of Jarvis and Lively to the Jay Instrument Co., Cincinnati, Ohio. The site will house a new building to be used as the Chicago headquarters for the Ohio based instrument company.

Philosophy Of Change

Eminent domain procedures must be modernized in order to protect property values and stop the adverse effect caused by well-intentioned public laws, according to Lloyd D. Hanford Jr., San Francisco, president of the Institute of Real Estate Management (IREM), a professional affiliate of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Writing in the current issue of "PM Aspects," publication of the institute, Hanford stated that "no one can argue the expediency or wisdom of governmentally-sponsored redevelopment requiring the exercise of eminent domain, since it is obvious that private capital could not hope to acquire adequate property in the open market to initiate re-use without this authority."

He then presented suggestions "which may ... begin a philosophy of change." Once a public announcement is made designating an area as one for redevelopment, Hanford said, the public agency involved should have a period of two years in which to commence acquisition or the area should have the blanket of condemnation lifted by precluding any public action, official or otherwise, for a period of at least five years.

Hanford suggested that the federal government might initiate some form of loan guarantee program to assure property owners in these areas of the ability to refinance "even though the property is under a blanket of condemnation."

Another major change urged by Hanford involved appraisals of condemned properties. In awarding valuation contracts, the specifications for the proposal should require the appraiser to detail the type of report that will be submitted and the approaches that will be taken to solve any specific appraisal problems. "To assure that market value, not uniform price, is the result of the appraisal, the area should be broken up on a grid pattern into groups of parcels so that each appraiser assigned a group of properties will be working on the same streets or blocks as the others," he said.

Other suggestions made by Hanford include offering a choice of settlement of claims to property owners; changing the law to allow as compensable damages any rental revenue loss from the date of announcement of condemnation to that of taking; prohibiting any agency to acquire property based on an appraisal over one year old; and changing the laws of evidence to assure that property owners may submit every type of testimony that would form a part of market thinking in condemnation cases.

Frantz Sees 'No Problem'

Recount Ballots

Itasca officials will meet at 8 o'clock tonight to recount and double check ballots in Tuesday's municipal election as a result of a petition challenging the results filed with Village Clerk Marcia Forke Wednesday.

Contested are the results of vote tallies for John Massel, 465 Lombard, Itasca, whose surprise write-in total came to 139, edging out incumbent trustee William Everham, who took only 121 votes.

The "no-opposition" election turned into a turmoil Tuesday night when tentative results were announced during a regular village board meeting. Wilbert Nottke, re-elected incumbent village president, said Wednesday.

"WE HAD WANTED to adjourn early and go out and celebrate," Nottke said. All incumbents believed they would be re-elected without opposition.

"We adjourned when we heard the early results," Nottke said, "and later went back into session. I was really surprised."

Nottke said Massel had applied to run with Nottke's Action Party slate when Trustee Roy Petherbridge indicated he might not run for reelection.

Massel then was turned down when Petherbridge "changed his mind and decided to run," Nottke said.

Itasca incumbents returned to office, and their vote totals, were Nottke, 236; Trustee Frank Atkinson, 249; Trustee Glenn Goodwin, 256; and Petherbridge, 242, the only trustee seeking a two-year unexpired term.

Newcomer Mrs. Marvin Griggs was elected to four years as village clerk, with 262 votes, to replace Mrs. Forke, who chose not to run for reelection.

MASSSEL, 64, WHO IS a retired president of Poetsch Interior Cabinet Co., said he did not campaign for election.

"I never expected it to be like that. What can I do," he said.

He said he intends to accept the office. "I didn't even write my own name in," he said. "I voted for Nottke."

Apparently, it was a telephone campaign which got 139 residents to write in Massel's name.

Massel was not saying who backed him. A resident for 1 1/2 years, Massel is a member of the Lions Club and responsible for changing the billboard at Walnut Street and Irving Park Road.

Library Board Vote Adds 4

The Roselle Library Board gained four new members in Tuesday's election. Elected for full four-year terms were William Myers, 957 votes; Mrs. Marjorie Engel, 962 votes; and Mrs. Jean Wheeler, 968 votes. James Birdsall, 904 votes, won an unexpired two-year term on the board.

Outgoing members of the board were Viola Voeltz, Virginia Fowler and Dorothy Sanborn. A new state law requires that library boards have seven members, thus the added seat to the board.

ONE INCUMBENT and two newcomers won seats on the Itasca Library Board. Incumbent Raymond Fricke, 262 votes, and newcomers Mrs. Elizabeth Mellor, 268 votes, and C. Frederick Risinger, 258 votes, were elected to fill six-year terms on the board.

Outgoing member was Mrs. Richard Bowman.

Country Fair Plans Under Way

Plans are underway for a country fair to be held May 17 by parents and teachers of both Lincoln and Salk schools in Roselle. The fair will be held from 3 to 7 p.m. at Lincoln School.

Events of the fair will include an art show, a white elephant sale, a country greenhouse and bakery, a hobby display and a talent show.

Chairman Mrs. Claraanne Zielinski said sponsors need items for the sales and displays. Anyone interested in making donations may call Lincoln School for information.

Funds from the fair will go towards purchasing an upright piano for use in the school by music classes.

ROBERT MEYERS

New Trustees Worked For Opponent

"I worked hard and had a lot of people believe in me," said a happy Robert Frantz, village president of Roselle who was elected to another four years in office Tuesday.

Frantz, seeking election as an independent, defeated William Florence, the United Party's choice for president and former village president.

Florence said he knew it would be hard for him to overcome his quitting as president two years ago. It turned out that this was the issue voters based their votes on. Frantz agreed and said he got this impression from his earliest contact with residents.

FRANTZ SAID he will have "no problem" with the six newly-elected trustees, four of whom are incumbents. "They staked their position and they were repudiated by the voters," he said.

All of the incumbents, including Village Clerk Mildred Winkler, backed Florence. All were elected, including newcomers Joseph Devlin and Ken Kummer, but Florence was not. He lost to Frantz by 30 votes, 529 to 499. Independent William Sedon got 68 votes.

Now Frantz faces the next few years with trustees who worked against his election.

They include Anthony Bonavolonta, Raymond Casperson, and Devlin, elected to four-year terms, and Mrs. Betty Lou Mann, Raymond Berg, and Kummer, elected to two-year terms.

"I look forward to four years of continuing progress," said Frantz.

TRUSTEE Bonavolonta, however, was still "downhearted" Wednesday. "As a man and individual we like him (Frantz)," he said, "but all the trustees did not feel he was fit for the mayor's position."

Tuesday night Berg seemed to be the most optimistic about working with Frantz in the future. He said village work would have to continue.

At a meeting of the DuPage County Mayors-Managers Conference in Bensenville Wednesday, Frantz was smiling, but arrived alone.

The incumbent trustees arrived earlier in a group. Later, however, they all sat together.

When asked if Frantz had come with her group, Mrs. Mann said, "No. I don't even know if he's here. Is he here? Would he dare?"

SHE SAID OF Florence's campaign, "We worked every night. Door-to-door. When it was over, and he lost, I cried. I was still in tears this morning."

After Frantz arrived, a friend commented to Mrs. Mann that her "leader" had arrived.

"A leader we don't have," she retorted bitterly. "I slammed him so much. But, it was all the truth, all the truth."

Accompanying Mrs. Mann were Berg and Robert Gurke, outgoing trustee who did not run for reelection. Berg was not as vocal as Mrs. Mann about the election results, but he nodded frequently during her remarks.

Frantz, when asked whether he feared a canvass of ballots would tip the election toward Florence, smiled broadly and said, "We counted the ballots pretty carefully." (For a breakdown of how balloting went in Roselle's three districts turn to the inside pages.)

He's Anxious to Work

John Varble, Bensenville's village president for the next four years, said Thursday he looks forward to working with the incumbent trustees.

Incumbents who were not up for election Tuesday are William Hegebarth, Frank Focht, and William Bychowski.

They are faced with working with Varble and his slate of Action Party candidates including Maynard Unger, William Bourke, and David Sloan for trustees and Fred Valentino for clerk.

Varble said he won't say what immediate changes he'll make but they will not be made until they are discussed with all board members.

"I hope they'll work with us," he said.

Varble said he did not condone the anonymous newsletters that went out to residents several weeks ago attacking the incumbents.

HE SAID SOME young people sent them out but he did not approve.

Fred Steging, who has served as president for four years, said he wishes Varble and the new trustees good luck and he hopes they follow the wishes of the people.

"We knew we were in for a tough battle," said Steging, whose complete slate including incumbent trustees Mildred Richter, Fred Hilton, and Robert Riley, and clerk candidate Mrs. Dorothy Bielak were defeated.

"We ran a clean race and we lost," he said, adding that he is never surprised at the way elections turn out.

At a meeting Wednesday in Bensenville of the DuPage County Mayors-Managers Conference, officials discussed the election.

HEGEBARTH, whose term does not expire until 1971, said of Steging:

"He is the nicest guy. This (Varble's victory) and (Steging's defeat) is like having a death in the family."

"Fred's taking it real hard, too. He was depending, he had faith in the good will of the community. He was quite shocked."

According to retiring Village Clerk Herbert Dierking, "There are a lot of downhearted people in Bensenville today."

"You know, the old-timers used to swing the elections. But, not today, not today. The old-timers, they're dying off."

Bychowski, whose term extends to 1971, said he will wait with apprehension for the results of what may become a 4-3 vote split on the village board.

He said, however, "Unger is bound to be cooperative, and I sure will be. Before I say anything, I want to wait and see."

"It's hard losing Fred (Steging)," Bychowski said, and he referred to Mrs. Richter and Hilton as great losses to the board. "All four of them, Fred, Mildred,

John Varble

Fred Steging and Bob Riley — I never met more dedicated people."

HEGEBARTH SAID, in discussing the ouster of all incumbents, "When we (he and Bychowski) were elected, our platform was to do what's good for the community. We're going to continue to do what's good for the community."

Bychowski added, "What's good for the community is good for me."

Harold Koehler, village administrator, had a word of caution for the three trustees whose terms did not expire this year — Hegebarth, Bychowski and Focht.

He said, "It's a bitter pill the incumbents are swallowing, but I hope they can work together for the betterment of the community."

"Everybody's in a state of shock right now, and there may be accusations. But this does no good."

A breakdown of voting in Bensenville's five precincts appears inside today's Register.

OK Co-Op Board

The board of education of the Joliet Diocese voted Monday to allow three North DuPage County Catholic high schools to form a cooperative board of education.

According to Charles Clark, director of student services at Driscoll High School in Addison, the program will bring unification to the area schools and allow for reduced spending.

Each school, he said, will retain its own identity, yet will benefit from the program. If developed fully it will be the first parochial school district created in the United States.

Teachers from all three schools will meet at Driscoll May 15 for a special institute day.

They will divide into groups to discuss how they can share equipment and teaching responsibilities. According to Clark, the teacher-sharing will occur mostly at upper level courses where it is sometimes difficult to find qualified persons to teach.

THE IDEA OF combining several parochial schools into a single district is a new one.

The Driscoll, Montini, and St. Francis board will consist of six members. Three will be parents of children graduated from or presently enrolled in each of the schools. One member will be elected at large by parishioners in the schools involved, one member appointed, and one member representing the lay faculty.

Clark said he hopes the board can be chosen by the end of the school year so the program can go into effect this fall. A cooperative summer school program already has been planned for June.

According to Clark, parents and teachers have reacted "very favorably" to the cooperative idea.

"In fact," Clark said, "Many of the ideas have already come from the faculty."

Koehler Nominated

Harold Koehler, Bensenville village administrator, Wednesday was nominated secretary-treasurer of the DuPage County Mayors and Managers Conference.

Wilbert Nottke, Itasca village president and also vice-president of the conference for the past year, was nominated president, a traditional step up for his year of service.

Besides Koehler, one other new officer was nominated — newly elected Mayor Marget Hamilton of Wheaton for vice president, for the post Nottke will be vacating.

Election will be held in May, following possible additional nominations from the floor.

The vote for the slate was unanimous Wednesday, with the following representatives of north DuPage communities attending:

ADDISON: TRUSTEES Reed Carlson and Ted Johnson, and Administrator William Drury.

Bensenville: Trustees William Hegebarth and William Bychowski, outgoing Village Clerk Herbert Dierking, Police Chief Walter Tett, Lt. Arthur Garcia, and Koehler.

Elk Grove Village: Finance Officer Donald Epley.

Itasca: Village Pres. Wilbert Nottke and Trustee Eldon Corbin.

Roselle: Village Pres. Robert Frantz, Trustees Betty Lou Mann and Ramon Berg and outgoing Trustee Robert Gurke.

Wood Dale (long absent from mayor-manager meetings): Mayor Ralph Hansen and Village Atty. Samuel LaSusa.

Park Districts Each Elect 2

Itasca and Medinah Park districts each elected two commissioners to six-year terms Tuesday.

The uncontested Itasca election of Mrs. Joan C. Lawson, 200 S. Walnut, and Glenn A. Morrison, 237 Forest Ave., brought a good turnout with nearly 300 votes cast. Eight write-in candidates received one vote each.

Mrs. Lawson received 261 votes and Morrison, 264. About 15 ballots were spoiled due to improper markings on them.

In Medinah, the voter turnout was described as "lousy" by park district Pres.

Joseph Riha. Though three candidates were running for two positions, only about 150 out of a potential 1,500 voters went to the polls.

ELECTED WERE Gordon Manary, 6N002 Laurel Drive, and Joseph Rand, 22W410 Walnut St., both of Medinah.

Manary received 60 votes and Rand, 58. The losing contender was M. Richard Miller, 5N358 Fairway Lane, Nordic Park, with 49 votes. According to Riha, Miller didn't cast a vote.

Manary and Rand both are involved in Little League baseball.

Claims 'Smear Campaign'

Stanley Haverkamp, Bloomingdale village president who was defeated Tuesday in a bid for reelection, accused Robert Meyers of using a "smear campaign" to get elected president.

Meyers denied the charge, saying, "We wouldn't tolerate a smear campaign."

He said he knew some rumors were started but he had nothing to do with them.

Meyers, president of the homeowners association in the Indian Lakes subdivision, defeated Haverkamp 372 to 304.

P. Brendan O'Dea, independent candidate for president, took 45 votes.

One trustee on his Alert Bloomingdale Citizens ticket, Ralph Johnston, was elected with 387 votes. A former trustee, Johnston was the leading vote getter.

Two trustees on Haverkamp's Forward Party ticket, incumbent Paul Ahlrich and Werner Troesken were elected, receiving 371 and 358 votes, respectively.

INCUMBENT TRUSTEE Robert McLaughlin was voted out of office, receiving 344 votes. He was a candidate on Haverkamp's ticket.

Two candidates who ran for trustee on Meyers' ticket but lost were James McIntosh, 356 votes, and Frank Johnson, 342 votes.

The new clerk is Mrs. Dorothy Gallo of the ABC party. She defeated the Forward Party's candidate, Mrs. Arlene Malek, 363 to 356.

Meyers, who is 31, said he hopes he can work with the remaining incumbents on the board.

ONE OF THOSE WEEKS: First a line was dropped in an editorial endorsing Maynard Unger among others for election as trustee on the Bensenville Village Board. Then, at press time Tuesday — right under the wire, in fact — we were ready to go with election results in Bensenville.

Cliff phoned up to the newsroom from the shop and wanted to know if John Varble's victorious slate was called the Action or the United Party. He was holding two pieces of copy. One said it was Action, the other said United. United, he was told, after considerable shuffling among election name lists for five towns, two park boards and two library boards. "Guess I must be wrong," Cliff said to himself. "Could have sworn it was Action." A few minutes later, Kathy called up to the newsroom to ask the same question. Now, she was in possession of the two contradictory pieces of news copy.

"United, United," she was told. "We have this copy here that says it's Action," Kathy persisted. "Nope, United," she was assured. So, that's why United Party appears in the headlines of Wednesday's Registers. Instead of Action Party, under which John Varble's slate moved to victory. Things around here have been like that all month.

Change Ahead?

by SYD JAMIESON

This month as voters went to the polls to cast their ballots for candidates seeking municipal office, Wood Dale, under its commission form of government, remained relatively quiet except for school board and township elections.

The next municipal election in Wood Dale is not until April, 1971, when registered voters will choose a mayor and four commissioners to serve on the council for four-year terms.

The candidates will have survived a primary election two months earlier which is generally the bell-ringer for weeding out the also-rans for the post of commissioner. Once in a while the primary finds more than two candidates running for mayor, but the number of applicants or candidates seeking this office is small compared with those seeking a seat as commissioners.

WHEN THE VOTES all have been counted in the general election voters will have selected those who will guide the village and the decision-makers for the next four years.

Wood Dale is one of the few municipalities in Illinois still operating under the commission form of government.

Most of its neighbors operate under a village board of trustees with staggered terms of office. Most of its neighbors have a mayor or village president with six trustees serving as the elected governing body.

In Wood Dale there are four commissioners serving a community of more than 8,000 population and by the 1970 census its populace is expected to reach 10,000 or more.

Recently the village manager screening committee recommended that the village consider changing its present form of government to perhaps a village board of trustees or aldermanic and that the number of elected officials be expanded to provide better representation for the population boom it is experiencing.

STAGGERED TERMS OF office was another recommendation, including a new referendum on the managerial form of government sanctioned by the voters in 1967, but later declared invalid.

A tip on which way local residents may be thinking could be found when the results of an attitude and opinion survey is completed in May by McFadden and Everly, Ltd., a consulting firm hired by the Wood Dale Park District.

Included in the questions asked of village residents will be one seeking comments on a possible change in government.

The present village administration is co-operating with the local park district in the survey and village officials will weigh carefully the results of this key question when it is tabulated in final form.

PARK COMMISSIONERS have the foresight to spend money wisely during the district's initial years of operation by engaging a qualified consultant to prepare a master park and recreation plan based on the attitudes and opinions of those residing within its boundaries.

Wood Dale has long needed a master plan to guide its orderly growth. Council members are hopeful something can be done about developing such a comprehensive document within the immediate future, finances permitting.

Perhaps there should be a separate study related to governmental services or the feasibility of a new look in its present mode of operation.

The park district survey may act as the catalyst in getting such a study started.

There is always the chance those interviewed in the survey may not welcome such a change, but I have a hunch it will go the other way.

Ponder Repeal of Landfill

The zoning committee of the DuPage County Board of Supervisors is deciding whether to recommend a repeal of a vote earlier this year allowing a combustible landfill operation near Barrington and Fisher Roads in Bloomingdale Township near Hanover Park.

Residents from Bloomingdale and Wayne Townships met with the committee Wednesday morning to discuss the reconsideration. The site borders Wayne Township. Objections have brought the matter from a simple board consideration to a fight.

Residents claimed Wednesday the landfill operation allowed under the county's special use and zoning variation would lower land values, pollute air and water, pose a fire hazard, increase traffic congestion and damage nearby roads.

ATTY. LEE Daniels, from Elmhurst, is representing what he called "30 concerned landowners of 1,000 acres surrounding the dump."

Woman Assaulted

A Bensenville man on leave from the Navy was charged with the rape of a 22-year-old Wood Dale woman Wednesday night, Bensenville police reported.

Ronald B. Kutella, 18, of 108 N. York Road, allegedly attacked the woman at the rear of a vacant lot between 53 and 49 Greenlawn Ave. The woman told police she screamed and struggled but no one heard her.

She had been dropped off by her husband at about 8:30 p.m. at Roosevelt Avenue and the railroad tracks just east of York Road.

When her husband left her she waited for a train to go by and then planned to walk to a friend's home on Orchard Street while her husband attended classes at College of DuPage.

Police reported the victim met Kutella after the train had passed. He began a conversation with her as she walked along Roosevelt Avenue, police said.

Schuster Named Successor to Varble

John Varble resigned from the Bensenville Park District Wednesday night as previously announced, and Jack Schuster, whose term of office had expired, was appointed to fill the vacancy.

Merle Hummel, who was elected last week to fill Schuster's expiring term, was sworn in as commissioner in the park version of "musical chairs."

Schuster had been president of the district before announcing he would not seek reelection.

Commissioner Donald Carroll will act as president pro tem until a reorganization meeting next month at which new officers may be elected.

VARBLE RESIGNED because his Action Party slate was voted into municipal office Tuesday. He will become Bensenville's village president May 1 when Fred Staging's term expires.

Staging was defeated in his reelection bid.

Schuster's appointment will run the remaining two years of Varble's term. Hummel has a six year term.

When Hummel was sworn-in, Varble quickly said, "Welcome to the club."

Varble has spent nine years with the district, including a term as president. Carroll said without Varble the board will be impaired.

"I DON'T FEEL like we are losing him because he will always be close," Wilbur Burde, commissioner, said. The park district building is across the street from the village hall.

"I feel it necessary to answer some recent charges that Varble could have resigned earlier and his position could have been elected by the people," Robert Nichols, commissioner, said. "This board can only appoint someone when a commissioner resigns," he said. "There can be no election."

HIS STATEMENT was backed by park district attorney Edward Vertovec and the other commissioners.

Varble announced last fall he would resign from the board after village elections, win or lose.

Besides Hummel, another man has filed for election to a commissioner position. Jerome W. Bochniak, 1213 W. Green Valley, Bensenville, was defeated by Hummel by a 100-vote margin.

Study Student Behavior

Dr. Lester Przewlocki, superintendent of Addison Elementary School Dist. 4, and Lawrence Berson, executive director of Family Service Association of DuPage County, have announced establishment of a new seminar, titled "Youngsters, An Inquiry."

The seminar is meeting weekly at Indian Trails Junior High School in Addison. It is led by Dorothy McElvain, social worker for Family Service. It will continue to the end of this school semester.

Teachers bring to the meetings situations they have with their students. The collective experience of other teachers and knowledge from the field of social work may be used to understand the behavior of some students which is not conducive to their education.

TEACHERS AND social workers, by pooling their experience and intuitive as well as formalized knowledge can enlarge the school experience of the student, Berson said.

Przewlocki explained this is an official program for the district.

Berson said that working with Dist. 4 in this area is a further extension of the Family Service Agency in a program of making available to schools on a local basis the professional social workers from the agency.

Miss McElvain, a native of Pinckneyville, Ill., graduated with a bachelor degree in education from Southern Illinois University. She went on to get her master's degree from the University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration.

She did a third year of study at Smith College School of Social Work in Northampton, Mass. Her experience, in addition to working for Family Service here, includes working for the Infant Welfare Society as a mental health consultant for about 14 years, working with public health nurses and, in the nursery school for emotionally disturbed children as a part of a clinical team which included doctors, pediatricians, psychologists and public health nurses.

Elect Zoltek President of Medinah Dist.

Steven Zoltek, 22W364 Thorndale Ave., Medinah, was elected president of the Medinah Park District Wednesday night.

Former Pres. Joseph Riha was elected treasurer in the annual turnover of park district officers. His term ends in 1971.

Riha said the change was for the better because of his extended business travel. "Steve is more available to attend meetings," Riha said.

Zoltek was vice-president of the district and has four more years to serve in his term. Park commissioners are elected for six-year terms.

The new vice-president is Stuart Goodenough, who was appointed to the board several months ago. His term also ends in 1971.

Mrs. Helen E. Riha is park secretary but not an elected official.

ALSO DISCUSSED at Wednesday's meeting were proposed summer recreation programs which may include girls' softball, arts and crafts, ballet, library use, baton twirling and band sessions.

The possibility of swimming lessons is being investigated.

The park board also is working on a master plan for development of Medinah Park sites. Details are expected to be available soon, Riha said.

18-Year-Old Dies

Gary Lio, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Lio, 21W236 Woodview Drive, Itasca, died unexpectedly Tuesday at St. Alexius Hospital.

Lio, a former Lake Park High School student and golfer, died from a blood infection he contracted about a month ago.

He became ill at Arizona State University where he was attending school. He spent a week in a hospital there before returning home. He was in St. Alexius for about three and a half weeks.

GARY ATTENDED Lake Park High School for four years, where he was one of the four best golfers in his senior year, according to Jerry Wiseman, golf coach. He was graduated last year.

Wiseman said Gary averaged 44.4 in dual meets during the 1968 golfing season.

"He was the longest hitting student golfer I have ever seen," Wiseman said. He was a left-handed golfer, Wiseman added.

Mrs. Lio said Gary was an avid hockey fan and played with the Rangers, a hockey team of young men.

HE ATTENDED the University of Arizona until December when he transferred to Arizona State.

The Lio family has lived in Itasca for 14 years.

Gary is survived by his parents, his brothers, Kevin, 14, and Gregg, 6, and a sister Liane, 8.

The funeral mass is at 10 a.m. today at St. Peter's Church in Itasca. Burial will be at Queen of Heaven Cemetery, Hilldale.

Frantz Sees 'No Problem'

Recount Ballots

Itasca officials will meet at 8 o'clock tonight to recount and double check ballots in Tuesday's municipal election as a result of a petition challenging the results filed with Village Clerk Marcia Forke Wednesday.

Contested are the results of vote tallies for John Massel, 465 Lombard, Itasca, whose surprise write-in total came to 139, edging out incumbent trustee William Everham, who took only 121 votes.

The "no-opposition" election turned into a turmoil Tuesday night when tentative results were announced during a regular village board meeting. Wilbert Nottke, re-elected incumbent village president, said Wednesday.

"WE HAD WANTED to adjourn early and go out and celebrate," Nottke said. All incumbents believed they would be re-elected without opposition.

"We adjourned when we heard the early results," Nottke said, "and later went back into session. I was really surprised."

Nottke said Massel had applied to run with Nottke's Action Party slate when Trustee Roy Petherbridge indicated he might not run for reelection.

Massel then was turned down when Petherbridge "changed his mind and decided to run," Nottke said.

Itasca incumbents returned to office, and their vote totals, were Nottke, 236; Trustee Frank Atkinson, 248; Trustee Glenn Goodwin, 256; and Petherbridge, 242, the only trustee seeking a two-year unexpired term.

Newcomer Mrs. Marvin Griggs was elected to four years as village clerk, with 282 votes, to replace Mrs. Forke, who chose not to run for reelection.

MASSEL, 64, WHO IS a retired president of Poetsch Interior Cabinet Co., said he did not campaign for election.

"I never expected it to be like that. What can I do," he said.

He said he intends to accept the office. "I didn't even write my own name in," he said. "I voted for Nottke."

Apparently, it was a telephone campaign which got 139 residents to write in Massel's name.

Massel was not saying who backed him. A resident for 1½ years, Massel is a member of the Lions Club and responsible for changing the billboard at Walnut Street and Irving Park Road.

Library Board Vote Adds 4

The Roselle Library Board gained four new members in Tuesday's election. Elected for full four-year terms were William Myers, 957 votes; Mrs. Marjorie Engel, 982 votes; and Mrs. Jean Wheeler, 998 votes. James Birdsall, 904 votes, won an unexpired two-year term on the board.

Outgoing members of the board were Viola Voelz, Virginia Fowler and Dorothy Sanborn. A new state law requires that library boards have seven members, thus the added seat to the board.

ONE INCUMBENT and two newcomers won seats on the Itasca Library Board. Incumbent Raymond Fricke, 262 votes, and newcomers Mrs. Elizabeth Mellor, 268 votes, and C. Frederick Risinger, 258 votes, were elected to fill six-year terms on the board.

Outgoing member was Mrs. Richard Bowman.

Country Fair Plans Under Way

Plans are underway for a country fair to be held May 17 by parents and teachers of both Lincoln and Salk schools in Roselle. The fair will be held from 3 to 7 p.m. at Lincoln School.

Events of the fair will include an art show, a white elephant sale, a country greenhouse and bakery, a hobby display and a talent show.

Chairman Mrs. Claraanne Zielinski said sponsors need items for the sales and displays. Anyone interested in making donations may call Lincoln School for information.

Funds from the fair will go towards purchasing an upright piano for use in the school by music classes.

ROBERT MEYERS

New Trustees Worked For Opponent

"I worked hard and had a lot of people believe in me," said a happy Robert Frantz, village president of Roselle who was elected to another four years in office Tuesday.

Frantz, seeking election as an independent, defeated William Florence, the United Party's choice for president and former village president.

Florence said he knew it would be hard for him to overcome his quitting as president two years ago. It turned out that this was the issue voters based their votes on. Frantz agreed and said he got this impression from his earliest contact with residents.

FRANTZ SAID he will have "no problem" with the six newly-elected trustees, four of whom are incumbents. "They stated their position and they were repudiated by the voters," he said.

All of the incumbents, including Village Clerk Mildred Winkler, backed Florence. All were elected, including newcomers Joseph Devlin and Ken Kummer, but Florence was not. He lost to Frantz by 30 votes, 529 to 499. Independent William Sedon got 68 votes.

Now Frantz faces the next few years with trustees who worked against his election.

They include Anthony Bonavolonta, Raymond Casperson, and Devlin, elected to four-year terms, and Mrs. Betty Lou Mann, Raymon Berg, and Kummer, elected to two-year terms.

"I look forward to four years of continuing progress," said Frantz.

TRUSTEE Bonavolonta, however, was still "downhearted" Wednesday. "As a man and individual we like him (Frantz)," he said, "but all the trustees did not feel he was fit for the mayor's position."

Tuesday night Berg seemed to be the most optimistic about working with Frantz in the future. He said village work would have to continue.

At a meeting of the DuPage County Mayors-Managers Conference in Bensenville Wednesday, Frantz was smiling, but arrived alone.

The incumbent trustees arrived earlier in a group. Later, however, they all sat together.

When asked if Frantz had come with her group, Mrs. Mann said, "No. I don't even know if he's here. Is he here? Would he dare?"

SHE SAID OF Florence's campaign, "We worked every night. Door-to-door. When it was over, and he lost, I cried. I was still in tears this morning."

After Frantz arrived, a friend commented to Mrs. Mann that her "leader" had arrived.

"A leader we don't have," she retorted bitterly. "I slammed him so much. But, it was all the truth, all the truth."

Accompanying Mrs. Mann were Berg and Robert Gurke, outgoing trustee who did not run for reelection. Berg was not as vocal as Mrs. Mann about the election results, but he nodded frequently during her remarks.

Frantz, when asked whether he feared a canvass of ballots would tip the election toward Florence, smiled broadly and said, "We counted the ballots pretty carefully."

WILBERT NOTTKE

John Massel

He's Anxious to Work

John Varble, Bensenville's village president for the next four years, said Thursday he looks forward to working with the incumbent trustees.

Incumbents who were not up for election Tuesday are William Hegebarth, Frank Focht, and William Bychowski.

They are faced with working with Varble and his slate of Action Party candidates including Maynard Unger, William Bourke, and David Sloan for trustees and Fred Valentino for clerk.

Varble said he won't say what immediate changes he'll make but they will not be made until they are discussed with all board members.

"I hope they'll work with us," he said.

Varble said he did not condone the anonymous newsletters that went out to residents several weeks ago attacking the incumbents.

HE SAID SOME young people sent them out but he did not approve.

Fred Steging, who has served as president for four years, said he wishes Varble and the new trustees good luck and he hopes they follow the wishes of the people.

"We knew we were in for a tough battle," said Steging, whose complete slate including incumbent trustees Mildred Richter, Fred Hilton, and Robert Riley, and clerk candidate Mrs. Dorothy Bielak were defeated.

"We ran a clean race and we lost," he said, adding that he is never surprised at the way elections turn out.

At a meeting Wednesday in Bensenville of the DuPage County Mayors-Managers Conference, officials discussed the election.

HEGEBARTH, whose term does not expire until 1971, said of Steging:

"He is the nicest guy. This (Varble's victory) and (Steging's defeat) is like having a death in the family."

"Fred's taking it real hard, too. He was depending, he had faith in the good will of the community. He was quite shocked."

According to retiring Village Clerk Herbert Dierking, "There are a lot of downhearted people in Bensenville today."

"You know, the old-timers used to swing the elections. But, not today, not today. The old-timers, they're dying off."

Bychowski, whose term extends to 1971, said he will wait with apprehension for the results of what may become a 4-3 vote split on the village board.

He said, however, "Unger is bound to be cooperative, and I sure will be. Before I say anything, I want to wait and see."

"It's hard losing Fred (Steging)," Bychowski said, and he referred to Mrs. Richter and Hilton as great losses to the board. "All four of them, Fred, Mildred,

John Varble

Fred Steging and Bob Riley — I never met more dedicated people."

HEGEBARTH SAID, in discussing the ouster of all incumbents, "When we (he and Bychowski) were elected, our platform was to do what's good for the community. We're going to continue to do what's good for the community."

Bychowski added, "What's good for the community is good for me."

Harold Koehler, village administrator, had a word of caution for the three trustees whose terms did not expire this year — Hegebarth, Bychowski and Focht.

He said, "It's a bitter pill the incumbents are swallowing, but I hope they can work together for the betterment of the community."

"Everybody's in a state of shock right now, and there may be accusations. But this does no good."

A breakdown of voting in Bensenville's five precincts appears inside today's Register.

OK Co-Op Board

The board of education of the Joliet Diocese voted Monday to allow three North DuPage County Catholic high schools to form a cooperative board of education.

According to Charles Clark, director of student services at Driscoll High School in Addison, the program will bring unification to the area schools and allow for reduced spending.

Each school, he said, will retain its own identity, yet will benefit from the program. If developed fully it will be the first parochial school district created in the United States.

Teachers from all three schools will meet at Driscoll May 15 for a special institute day.

They will divide into groups to discuss how they can share equipment and teaching responsibilities. According to Clark, the teacher-sharing will occur mostly at upper level courses where it is sometimes difficult to find qualified persons to teach.

THE IDEA OF combining several parochial schools into a single district is a new one.

The Driscoll, Montini, and St. Francis board will consist of six members. Three will be parents of children graduated from or presently enrolled in each of the schools. One member will be elected at large by parishioners in the schools involved, one member appointed, and one member representing the lay faculty.

Clark said he hopes the board can be chosen by the end of the school year so the program can go into effect this fall. A cooperative summer school program already has been planned for June.

According to Clark, parents and teachers have reacted "very favorably" to the cooperative idea.

"In fact," Clark said, "Many of the ideas have already come from the faculty."

Koehler Nominated

Harold Koehler, Bensenville village administrator, Wednesday was nominated secretary-treasurer of the DuPage County Mayors and Managers Conference.

Wilbert Nottke, Itasca village president and also vice-president of the conference for the past year, was nominated president, a traditional step up for his year of service.

Besides Koehler, one other new officer was nominated — newly elected Mayor Marquet Hamilton of Wheaton for vice president, for the post Nottke will be vacating.

Election will be held in May, following possible additional nominations from the floor.

The vote for the slate was unanimous Wednesday, with the following representatives of north DuPage communities attending:

ADDISON: TRUSTEES Reed Carlson and Ted Johnson, and Administrator William Drury.

Bensenville: Trustees William Hegebarth and William Bychowski, outgoing Village Clerk Herbert Dierking, Police Chief Walter Tett, Lt. Arthur Garcia, and Koehler.

Elk Grove Village: Finance Officer Donald Eppey.

Itasca: Village Pres. Wilbert Nottke and Trustee Eldon Corbin.

Roselle: Village Pres. Robert Frantz, Trustees Betty Lou Mann and Ramon Berg and outgoing Trustee Robert Gurke.

Wood Dale (long absent from mayor-manager meetings): Mayor Ralph Hansen and Village Atty. Samuel LaSusa.

Park Districts Each Elect 2

Itasca and Medinah Park districts each elected two commissioners to six-year terms Tuesday.

The uncontested Itasca election of Mrs. Joan C. Lawson, 200 S. Walnut, and Glenn A. Morrison, 237 Forest Ave., brought a good turnout with nearly 300 votes cast. Eight write-in candidates received one vote each.

Mrs. Lawson received 261 votes and Morrison, 264. About 15 ballots were spoiled due to improper markings on them.

In Medinah, the voter turnout was described as "lousy" by park district Pres.

Joseph Riha. Though three candidates were running for two positions, only about 150 out of a potential 1,500 voters went to the polls.

ELECTED WERE Gordon Manary, 6N02 Laurel Drive, and Joseph Rand, 22W410 Walnut St., both of Medinah.

Manary received 60 votes and Rand, 58. The losing contender was M. Richard Miller, 5N358 Fairway Lane, Nordic Park, with 49 votes. According to Riha, Miller didn't cast a vote.

Manary and Rand both are involved in Little League baseball.

Claims 'Smear Campaign'

Stanley Haverkamp, Bloomingdale village president who was defeated Tuesday in a bid for reelection, accused Robert Meyers of using a "smear campaign" to get elected president.

Meyers denied the charge, saying, "We wouldn't tolerate a smear campaign."

He said he knew some rumors were started but he had nothing to do with them.

Meyers, president of the homeowners association in the Indian Lakes subdivision, defeated Haverkamp 372 to 304.

P. Brendan O'Dea, independent candidate for president, took 45 votes.

One trustee on his Alert Bloomingdale Citizens ticket, Ralph Johnston, was elected with 387 votes. A former trustee, Johnston was the leading vote getter.

Two trustees on Haverkamp's Forward Party ticket, incumbent Paul Ahlrich and Werner Troestlen were elected, receiving 371 and 358 votes, respectively.

INCUMBENT TRUSTEE Robert McLaughlin was voted out of office, receiving 344 votes. He was a candidate on Haverkamp's ticket.

Two candidates who ran for trustee on Meyers' ticket but lost were James McIntosh, 356 votes, and Frank Johnson, 342 votes.

The new clerk is Mrs. Dorothy Gallo of the ABC party. She defeated the Forward Party's candidate, Mrs. Arlene Malek, 363 to 356.

Meyers, who is 31, said he hopes he can work with the remaining incumbents on the board.

Cliff phoned up to the newsroom from the shop and wanted to know if John Varble's victorious slate was called the Action or the United Party. He was holding two pieces of copy. One said it was Action, the other said United. United, he was told, after considerable shuffling among election name lists for five towns,

"Guess I must be wrong," Cliff said to himself. "Could have sworn it was Action." A few minutes later, Kathy called up to the newsroom to ask the same question. Now, she was in possession of the two contradictory pieces of news copy.

"United, United," she was told. "We have this copy here that says it's Action," Kathy persisted. "Nope, United," she was assured. So, that's why United Party appears in the headlines of Wednesday's Registers, instead of Action Party, under which John Varble's slate moved to victory. Things around here have been like that all month.

Village Beat

Change Ahead?

by SYD JAMIESON

This month as voters went to the polls to cast their ballots for candidates seeking municipal office, Wood Dale, under its commission form of government, remained relatively quiet except for school board and township elections.

The next municipal election in Wood Dale is not until April, 1971, when registered voters will choose a mayor and four commissioners to serve on the council for four-year terms.

The candidates will have survived a primary election two months earlier which is generally the bell-ringer for weeding out the also-rans for the post of commissioner. Once in a while the primary fluids more than two candidates running for mayor, but the number of applicants or candidates seeking this office is small compared with those seeking a seat as commissioners.

WHEN THE VOTES all have been counted in the general election voters will have selected those who will guide the village and the decision-makers for the next four years.

Wood Dale is one of the few municipalities in Illinois still operating under the commission form of government.

Most of its neighbors operate under a village board of trustees with staggered terms of office. Most of its neighbors have a mayor or village president with six trustees serving as the elected governing body.

In Wood Dale there are four commissioners serving a community of more than 8,000 population and by the 1970 census its populace is expected to reach 10,000 or more.

Recently the village manager screening committee recommended that the village consider changing its present form of government to perhaps a village board of trustees or aldermanic and that the number of elected officials be expanded to provide better representation for the population boom it is experiencing.

STAGGERED TERMS of office was another recommendation, including a new referendum on the managerial form of government sanctioned by the voters in 1967, but later declared invalid.

A tip on which way local residents may be thinking could be found when the results of an attitude and opinion survey is completed in May by McFadden and Everly, Ltd., a consulting firm hired by the Wood Dale Park District.

Included in the questions asked of village residents will be one seeking comments on a possible change in government.

The present village administration is co-operating with the local park district in the survey and village officials will weigh carefully the results of this key question when it is tabulated in final form.

PARK COMMISSIONERS have the foresight to spend money wisely during the district's initial years of operation by engaging a qualified consultant to prepare a master park and recreation plan based on the attitudes and opinions of those residing within its boundaries.

Wood Dale has long needed a master plan to guide its orderly growth. Council members are hopeful something can be done about developing such a comprehensive document within the immediate future, finances permitting.

Perhaps there should be a separate study related to governmental services or the feasibility of a new look in its present mode of operation.

The park district survey may act as the catalyst in getting such a study started.

There is always the chance those interviewed in the survey may not welcome such a change, but I have a hunch it will go the other way.

Schuster Named Successor to Varble

John Varble resigned from the Bensenville Park District Wednesday night as previously announced, and Jack Schuster, whose term of office had expired, was appointed to fill the vacancy.

Merle Hummel, who was elected last week to fill Schuster's expiring term, was sworn in as commissioner in the park version of "musical chairs."

Schuster had been president of the district before announcing he would not seek reelection.

Commissioner Donald Carroll will act as president pro tem until a reorganization meeting next month at which new officers may be elected.

VARBLE RESIGNED because his Action Party slate was voted into municipal office Tuesday. He will become Bensenville's village president May 1 when Fred Steging's term expires.

Steging was defeated in his reelection bid.

Schuster's appointment will run the remaining two years of Varble's term. Hummel has a six year term.

When Hummel was sworn-in, Varble quickly said, "Welcome to the club."

Varble has spent nine years with the district, including a term as president. Carroll said without Varble the board will be impaired.

"I DON'T FEEL like we are losing him because he will always be close," Wilbur Burde, commissioner, said. The park district building is across the street from the village hall.

"I feel it necessary to answer some recent charges that Varble could have resigned earlier and his position could have been elected by the people," Robert Nichols, commissioner, said. "This board can only appoint someone when a commissioner resigns," he said. "There can be no election."

HIS STATEMENT was backed by park district attorney Edward Vertovec and the other commissioners.

Varble announced last fall he would resign from the board after village elections, win or lose.

Besides Hummel, another man has filed for election to a commissioner position. Jerome W. Bochniak, 1213 W. Green Valley, Bensenville, was defeated by Hummel by a 100-vote margin.

Study Student Behavior

Dr. Lester Przewlocki, superintendent of Addison Elementary School Dist. 4, and Lawrence Berson, executive director of Family Service Association of DuPage County, have announced establishment of a new seminar, titled "Youngsters, An Inquiry."

The seminar is meeting weekly at Indian Trails Junior High School in Addison. It is led by Dorothy McElvain, social worker for Family Service. It will continue to the end of this school semester.

Teachers bring to the meetings situations they have with their students. The collective experience of other teachers and knowledge from the field of social work may be used to understand the behavior of some students which is not conducive to their education.

TEACHERS AND social workers, by pooling their experience and intuitive as well as formalized knowledge can enlarge the school experience of the student, Berson said.

Przewlocki explained this is an official program for the district.

Berson said that working with Dist. 4 in this area is a further extension of the Family Service Agency in a program of making available to schools on a local basis the professional social workers from the agency.

Miss McElvain, a native of Pinckneyville, Ill., graduated with a bachelor degree in education from Southern Illinois University. She went on to get her master's degree from the University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration.

She did a third year of study at Smith College School of Social Work in Northampton, Mass. Her experience, in addition to working for Family Service here, includes working for the Infant Welfare Society as a mental health consultant for about 14 years, working with public health nurses and, in the nursery school for emotionally disturbed children as a part of a clinical team which included doctors, pediatricians, psychologists and public health nurses.

Elect Zoltek President of Medinah Dist.

Steven Zoltek, 22W384 Thorndale Ave., Medinah, was elected president of the Medinah Park District Wednesday night.

Former Pres. Joseph Riha was elected treasurer in the annual turnover of park district officers. His term ends in 1971.

Riha said the change was for the better because of his extended business travel. "Steve is more available to attend meetings," Riha said.

Zoltek was vice-president of the district and has four more years to serve in his term. Park commissioners are elected for six-year terms.

The new vice-president is Stuart Goodenough, who was appointed to the board several months ago. His term also ends in 1971.

Mrs. Helen E. Riha is park secretary but not an elected official.

ALSO DISCUSSED at Wednesday's meeting were proposed summer recreation programs which may include girls' softball, arts and crafts, ballet, library use, baton twirling and band sessions.

The possibility of swimming lessons is being investigated.

The park board also is working on a master plan for development of Medinah Park sites. Details are expected to be available soon, Riha said.

18-Year-Old Dies

Gary Lio, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Lio, 21W236 Woodview Drive, Itasca, died unexpectedly Tuesday at St. Alexius Hospital.

Lio, a former Lake Park High School student and golfer, died from a blood infection he contracted about a month ago.

He became ill at Arizona State University where he was attending school. He spent a week in a hospital there before returning home. He was in St. Alexius for about three and a half weeks.

GARY ATTENDED Lake Park High School for four years, where he was one of the four best golfers in his senior year, according to Jerry Wiseman, golf coach. He was graduated last year.

Wiseman said Gary averaged 44.4 in dual meets during the 1968 golfing season.

"He was the longest hitting student golfer I have ever seen," Wiseman said. He was a left-handed golfer, Wiseman added.

Mrs. Lio said Gary was an avid hockey fan and played with the Rangers, a hockey team of young men.

HE ATTENDED the University of Arizona until December when he transferred to Arizona State.

The Lio family has lived in Itasca for 14 years.

Gary is survived by his parents, his brothers, Kevin, 14, and Gregg, 6, and a sister Liane, 8.

The funeral mass is at 10 a.m. today at St. Peter's Church in Itasca. Burial will be at Queen of Heaven Cemetery, Hillside.

Ponder Repeal of Landfill

The zoning committee of the DuPage County Board of Supervisors is deciding whether to recommend a repeal of a vote earlier this year allowing a combustible landfill operation near Barrington and Fisher Roads in Bloomingdale Township near Hanover Park.

Residents from Bloomingdale and Wayne Townships met with the committee Wednesday morning to discuss the reconsideration. The site borders Wayne Township.

Objections have brought the matter from a simple board consideration to a fight.

Residents claimed Wednesday the landfill operation allowed under the county's special use and zoning variation would lower land values, pollute air and water, pose a fire hazard, increase traffic congestion and damage nearby roads.

ATTY. LEE Daniels, from Elmhurst, is representing what he called "30 concerned landowners of 1,000 acres surrounding the dump."

Daniels said he hoped the fight would end with Wednesday's meeting and come before the county board later this month for repeal.

The county board may choose to rescind its approval, Daniels said, since formal opposition has been filed.

Zoning Committee Chairman C. L. James, assistant supervisor from Downers Grove Township, said his committee would meet soon to decide its recommendation to the county board.

The zoning committee overruled a DuPage County Zoning Board of Appeals recommendation, after that board conducted a public hearing on the matter last summer. The zoning board recommended denial of the special use and variation.

The operation would fill low land in the area with wood and other refuse collected by E and E Excavating in its salvage from wrecked buildings.

NO GARBAGE would be allowed, James said, and the area either would be divided by mounds of dirt or covered with dirt to avoid large-spread fires.

According to James, the land once filled in would be used for farming.

Daniels said, according to farm experts, the land is already suitable for farming and need not be filled with such waste material.

Donald Jack Wall, assistant supervisor of Bloomingdale Township told the Register he would vote against the measure when presented to the county board again.

Wall said he was unaware there was so much opposition to the operation.

Pat Savaiano, Bloomingdale Township supervisor, said he would probably vote against the operation if brought up for another vote. Wall and Savaiano were at the meeting Wednesday.

SAVAIANO SAID Bloomingdale Township opposition was slight, and most objectors were from Wayne Township which borders the proposed site.

The zoning board of appeals in a letter of recommendation to the zoning committee said the dumping operation would adversely affect nearby living conditions.

When the county board originally approved the zoning committee request to grant the special use permit there were no opposing votes.

Woman Assaulted

A Bensenville man on leave from the Navy was charged with the rape of a 22-year-old Wood Dale woman Wednesday night, Bensenville police reported.

Ronald B. Kutella, 18, of 108 N. York Road, allegedly attacked the woman at the rear of a vacant lot between 53 and 49 Greenlawn Ave. The woman told police she screamed and struggled but no one heard her.

She had been dropped off by her husband at about 8:30 p.m. at Roosevelt Avenue and the railroad tracks just east of York Road.

When her husband left her she waited for a train to go by and then planned to walk to a friend's home on Orchard Street while her husband attended classes at College of DuPage.

Police reported the victim met Kutella after the train had passed. He began a conversation with her as she walked along Roosevelt Avenue, police said.

Kutella told her he had a gun in his coat, police said, and persuaded her to walk to the lot with him.

AFTER THE ALLEGED rape, the woman, who gave birth to a baby about six weeks ago, ran to her friend's home and awaited the arrival of her husband before calling police.

Kutella was found by police at about 11:30 p.m., sleeping in a parked car near 26 O'Hare Court.

He later was identified by the woman and charged with rape and deviate sexual assault. Bond was set at $5,000 on each charge with a court appearance scheduled April 25 in DuPage County Circuit Court.

Recount Ballots

Itasca officials will meet at 8 o'clock tonight to recount and double check ballots in Tuesday's municipal election as a result of a petition challenging the results filed with Village Clerk Marcia Forke Wednesday.

Contested are the results of vote tallies for John Masel, 465 Lombard, Itasca, whose surprise write-in total came to 139, edging out incumbent trustee William Everham, who took only 121 votes.

The "no-opposition" election turned into a turmoil Tuesday night when tentative results were announced during a regular village board meeting. Wilbert Nottke, re-elected incumbent village president, said Wednesday.

"WE HAD WANTED to adjourn early and go out and celebrate," Nottke said. All incumbents believed they would be re-elected without opposition.

"We adjourned when we heard the early results," Nottke said, "and later went back into session. I was really surprised."

Nottke said Masel had applied to run with Nottke's Action Party slate when Trustee Roy Petherbridge indicated he might not run for reelection.

Masel then was turned down when Petherbridge "changed his mind and decided to run," Nottke said.

Itasca incumbents returned to office, and their vote totals, were Nottke, 236; Trustee Frank Atkinson, 248; Trustee Glenn Goodwin, 256; and Petherbridge, 242, the only trustee seeking a two-year unexpired term.

Newcomer Mrs. Marvin Griggs was elected to four years as village clerk, with 262 votes, to replace Mrs. Forke, who chose not to run for reelection.

MASEL, 64, WHO IS a retired president of Poetsch Interior Cabinet Co., said he did not campaign for election.

"I never expected it to be like that. What can I do," he said.

He said he intends to accept the office.

"I didn't even write my own name in," he said. "I voted for Nottke."

Apparently, it was a telephone campaign which got 139 residents to write in Masel's name.

Masel was not saying who backed him. A resident for 1 1/2 years, Masel is a member of the Lions Club and responsible for changing the billboard at Walnut Street and Irving Park Road.

Library Board Vote Adds 4

The Roselle Library Board gained four new members in Tuesday's election. Elected for full four-year terms were William Myers, 957 votes; Mrs. Marjorie Engel, 982 votes; and Mrs. Jean Wheeler, 998 votes. James Birdsall, 904 votes, won an unexpired two-year term on the board.

Outgoing members of the board were Viola Voelz, Virginia Fowler and Dorothy Sanborn. A new state law requires that library boards have seven members, thus the added seat to the board.

ONE INCUMBENT and two newcomers won seats on the Itasca Library Board. Incumbent Raymond Fricke, 282 votes, and newcomers Mrs. Elizabeth Mellor, 258 votes, and C. Frederick Risinger, 258 votes, were elected to fill six-year terms on the board.

Outgoing member was Mrs. Richard Bowman.

Country Fair Plans Under Way

Plans are underway for a country fair to be held May 17 by parents and teachers of both Lincoln and Salk schools in Roselle. The fair will be held from 3 to 7 p.m. at Lincoln School.

Events of the fair will include an art show, a white elephant sale, a country greenhouse and bakery, a hobby display and a talent show.

Chairman Mrs. Claraanne Zielinski said sponsors need items for the sales and displays. Anyone interested in making donations may call Lincoln School for information.

Funds from the fair will go towards purchasing an upright piano for use in the school by music classes.

ROBERT MEYERS

He's Anxious For Work

John Varble, Bensenville's village president for the next four years, said Thursday he looks forward to working with the incumbent trustees.

Incumbents who were not up for election Tuesday are William Hegebarth, Frank Pocht, and William Bychowski.

They are faced with working with Varble and his slate of Action Party candidates including Maynard Unger, William Bourke, and David Sloan for trustees and Fred Valentino for clerk.

Varble said he won't say what immediate changes he'll make but they will not be made until they are discussed with all board members.

"I hope they'll work with us," he said.

Varble said he did not condone the anonymous newsletters that went out to residents several weeks ago attacking the incumbents.

HE SAID SOME young people sent them out but he did not approve.

Fred Steging, who has served as president for four years, said he wishes Varble and the new trustees good luck and he hopes they follow the wishes of the people.

"We knew we were in for a tough battle," said Steging, whose complete slate including incumbent trustees Mildred Richter, Fred Hilton, and Robert Riley, and clerk candidate Mrs. Dorothy Bielak were defeated.

"We ran a clean race and we lost," he said, adding that he is never surprised at the way elections turn out.

At a meeting Wednesday in Bensenville of the DuPage County Mayors-Managers Conference, officials discussed the election.

HEGEBARTH, whose term does not expire until 1971, said of Steging:

"He is the nicest guy. This (Varble's victory) and (Steging's defeat) is like having a death in the family."

"Fred's taking it real hard, too. He was depending, he had faith in the good will of the community. He was quite shocked."

According to retiring Village Clerk Herbert Dierking, "There are a lot of downhearted people in Bensenville today."

"You know, the old-timers used to swing the elections. But, not today, not today. The old-timers, they're dying off."

Bychowski, whose term extends to 1971, said he will wait with apprehension for the results of what may become a 4-3 vote split on the village board.

He said, however, "Unger is bound to be cooperative, and I sure will be. Before I say anything, I want to wait and see.

"It's hard losing Fred (Steging)," Bychowski said, and he referred to Mrs. Richter and Hilton as great losses to the board. "All four of them, Fred, Mildred, Fred Steging and Bob Riley — I never met more dedicated people."

HEGEBARTH SAID, in discussing the ouster of all incumbents, "When we (he and Bychowski) were elected, our platform was to do what's good for the community. We're going to continue to do what's good for the community."

Bychowski added, "What's good for the community is good for me."

Harold Koehler, village administrator, had a word of caution for the three trustees whose terms did not expire this year — Hegebarth, Bychowski and Pocht.

He said, "It's a bitter pill the incumbents are swallowing, but I hope they can work together for the betterment of the community."

"Everybody's in a state of shock right now, and there may be accusations. But this does no good."

A breakdown of voting in Bensenville's five precincts appears inside today's Register.

OK Co-Op Board

The board of education of the Joliet Diocese voted Monday to allow three North DuPage County Catholic high schools to form a cooperative board of education.

According to Charles Clark, director of student services at Driscoll High School in Addison, the program will bring unification to the area schools and allow for reduced spending.

Each school, he said, will retain its own identity, yet will benefit from the program. If developed fully it will be the first parochial school district created in the United States.

Teachers from all three schools will meet at Driscoll May 15 for a special institute day.

They will divide into groups to discuss how they can share equipment and teaching responsibilities. According to Clark, the teacher-sharing will occur mostly at upper level courses where it is sometimes difficult to find qualified persons to teach.

THE IDEA OF combining several parochial schools into a single district is a new one.

The Driscoll, Montini, and St. Francis board will consist of six members. Three will be parents of children graduated from or presently enrolled in each of the schools. One member will be elected at large by parishioners in the schools involved, one member appointed, and one member representing the lay faculty.

Clark said he hopes the board can be chosen by the end of the school year so the program can go into effect this fall. A cooperative summer school program already has been planned for June.

According to Clark, parents and teachers have reacted "very favorably" to the cooperative idea.

"In fact," Clark said, "Many of the ideas have already come from the faculty."

Koehler Nominated

Harold Koehler, Bensenville village administrator, Wednesday was nominated secretary-treasurer of the DuPage County Mayors and Managers Conference.

Wilbert Nottke, Itasca village president and also vice-president of the conference for the past year, was nominated president, a traditional step up for his year of service.

Besides Koehler, one other new officer was nominated — newly elected Mayor Margaret Hamilton of Wheaton for vice president, for the post Nottke will be vacating.

Election will be held in May, following possible additional nominations from the floor.

The vote for the slate was unanimous Wednesday, with the following representatives of north DuPage communities attending:

ADDISON: TRUSTEES Reed Carlson and Ted Johnson, and Administrator William Drury.

Bensenville: Trustees William Hegebarth and William Bychowski, outgoing Village Clerk Herbert Dierking, Police Chief Walter Tett, Lt. Arthur Garcia, and Koehler.

Elk Grove Village: Finance Officer Donald Epplay.

Itasca: Village Pres. Wilbert Nottke and Trustee Eldon Corbin.

Roselle: Village Pres. Robert Frantz, Trustees Betty Lou Mann and Ramon Berg and outgoing Trustee Robert Gurke.

Wood Dale (long absent from mayor-manager meetings): Mayor Ralph Hansen and Village Atty. Samuel LaSusa.

Frantz Forsees Unity

"I worked hard and had a lot of people believe in me," said a happy Robert Frantz, village president of Roselle who was elected to another four years in office Tuesday.

Frantz, seeking election as an independent, defeated William Florence, the United Party's choice for president and former village president.

Florence said he knew it would be hard for him to overcome his quitting as president two years ago. It turned out that this was the issue voters based their votes on.

Frantz agreed and said he got this impression from his earliest contact with residents.

FRANTZ SAID he will have "no problem" with the six newly-elected trustees, four of whom are incumbents. "They staked their position and they were repudiated by the voters," he said.

All of the incumbents, including Village Clerk Mildred Winkler, backed Florence.

YWCA Notes 22nd Birthday

The Elgin Young Women's Christian Association, in celebration of the 22nd annual national YWCA Week, April 20 to 27, has offered a challenge — "Be yourself — you do count."

In joining with other YW's throughout the nation, Mrs. Henry J. Poston, executive director, said, "This theme is especially important today when all women and girls are called upon to make meaningful contributions to their community, nation and world."

The YWCA, through program and services, encourages each woman and girl to be an individual and to develop her mind, body and spirit to the fullest measure. In the United States today, more than two million women are girls of all economic, racial, occupational, religious and cultural groups, are counted as members or registered participants in programs.

YWCA Week in Elgin will be launched Sunday. The annual dinner meeting will be held Wednesday in the YW with a fellowship hour scheduled for 6 p.m.

Mrs. Lawson received 261 votes and Morrison, 254. About 15 ballots were spoiled due to improper markings on them.

In Medinah, the voter turnout was described as "lousy" by park district Pres.

All were elected, including newcomers Joseph Devlin and Ken Kummer, but Florence was not. He lost to Frantz by 39 votes, 529 to 490. Independent William Sedon got 68 votes.

Now Frantz faces the next few years with trustees who worked against his election.

They include Anthony Bonavolonta, Raymond Casperson, and Devlin, elected to four-year terms, and Mrs. Betty Lou Mann, Raymond Berg, and Kummer, elected to two-year terms.

"I look forward to four years of continuing progress," said Frantz.

TRUSTEE Bonavolonta, however, was still "downhearted" Wednesday. "As a man and individual we like him (Frantz)," he said, "but all the trustees did not feel he was fit for the mayor's position."

Tuesday night Berg seemed to be the most optimistic about working with Frantz in the future. He said village work would have to continue.

At a meeting of the DuPage County Mayors-Managers Conference in Bensenville Wednesday, Frantz was smiling, but arrived alone.

The incumbent trustees arrived earlier in a group. Later, however, they all sat together.

When asked if Frantz had come with her group, Mrs. Mann said, "No. I don't even know if he's here. Is he here? Would he dare?"

SHE SAID OF Florence's campaign, "We worked every night. Door-to-door."

Park Districts Each Elect 2

Itasca and Medinah Park districts each elected two commissioners to six-year terms Tuesday.

The uncontested Itasca election of Mrs. Joan C. Lawson, 200 S. Walnut, and Glenn A. Morrison, 237 Forest Ave., brought a good turnout with nearly 300 votes cast. Eight write-in candidates received one vote each.

Mrs. Lawson received 261 votes and Morrison, 254. About 15 ballots were spoiled due to improper markings on them.

In Medinah, the voter turnout was described as "lousy" by park district Pres.

When it was over, and he lost, I cried. I was still in tears this morning."

After Frantz arrived, a friend commented to Mrs. Mann that her "leader" had arrived.

"A leader we don't have," she retorted bitterly. "I slammed him so much. But, it was all the truth, all the truth."

Accompanying Mrs. Mann were Berg and Robert Gurke, outgoing trustee who did not run for reelection. Berg was not as vocal as Mrs. Mann about the election results, but he nodded frequently during her remarks.

Frantz, when asked whether he feared a canvass of ballots would tip the election toward Florence, smiled broadly and said, "We counted the ballots pretty carefully."

(For a breakdown of how balloting went in Roselle's three districts turn to the inside pages.)

Joseph Riha. Though three candidates were running for two positions, only about 150 out of a potential 1,500 voters went to the polls.

ELECTED WERE Gordon Manary, 6N002 Laurel Drive, and Joseph Rand, 22W410 Walnut St., both of Medinah.

Manary received 60 votes and Rand, 58. The losing contender was M. Richard Miller, 5N358 Fairway Lane, Nordic Park, with 49 votes. According to Riha, Miller didn't cast a vote.

Manary and Rand both are involved in Little League baseball.

Catchall

ONE OF THOSE WEEKS: First a line was dropped in an editorial endorsing Maynard Unger among others for election as trustee on the Bensenville Village Board. Then, at press time Tuesday — right under the wire, in fact — we were ready to go with election results in Bensenville.

Cliff phoned up to the newsroom from the shop and wanted to know if John Varble's victorious slate was called the Action or the United Party. He was holding two pieces of copy. One said it was Action, the other said United. He was told, after considerable shuffling among election name lists for five towns, two park boards and two library boards. "Guess I must be wrong," Cliff said to himself. "Could have sworn it was Action." A few minutes later, Kathy called up to the newsroom to ask the same question. Now, she was in possession of the two contradictory pieces of news copy. "United, United," she was told. "We have this copy here that says it's Action," Kathy persisted. "Nope, United," she was assured. So, that's why United Party appears in the headlines of Wednesday's Registers, instead of Action Party, under which John Varble's slate moved to victory. Things around here have been like that all month.

Village Beat

Change Ahead?

by SYD JAMIESON

This month as voters went to the polls to cast their ballots for candidates seeking municipal office, Wood Dale, under its commission form of government, remained relatively quiet except for school board and township elections.

The next municipal election in Wood Dale is not until April, 1971, when registered voters will choose a mayor and four commissioners to serve on the council for four-year terms.

The candidates will have survived a primary election two months earlier which is generally the bell-ringer for weeding out the also-rans for the post of commissioner. Once in a while the primary finds more than two candidates running for mayor, but the number of applicants or candidates seeking this office is small compared with those seeking a seat as commissioners.

WHEN THE VOTES all have been counted in the general election voters will have selected those who will guide the village and the decision-makers for the next four years.

Wood Dale is one of the few municipalities in Illinois still operating under the commission form of government.

Most of its neighbors operate under a village board of trustees with staggered terms of office. Most of its neighbors have a mayor or village president with six trustees serving as the elected governing body.

In Wood Dale there are four commissioners serving a community of more than 8,000 population and by the 1970 census its populace is expected to reach 10,000 or more.

Recently the village manager screening committee recommended that the village consider changing its present form of government to perhaps a village board of trustees or aldermanic and that the number of elected officials be expanded to provide better representation for the population boom it is experiencing.

STAGGERED TERMS OF office was another recommendation, including a new referendum on the managerial form of government sanctioned by the voters in 1967, but later declared invalid.

A tip on which way local residents may be thinking could be found when the results of an attitude and opinion survey is completed in May by McFadden and Everly, Ltd., a consulting firm hired by the Wood Dale Park District.

Included in the questions asked of village residents will be one seeking comments on a possible change in government.

The present village administration is co-operating with the local park district in the survey and village officials will weigh carefully the results of this key question when it is tabulated in final form.

PARK COMMISSIONERS have the foresight to spend money wisely during the district's initial years of operation by engaging a qualified consultant to prepare a master park and recreation plan based on the attitudes and opinions of those residing within its boundaries.

Wood Dale has long needed a master plan to guide its orderly growth. Council members are hopeful something can be done about developing such a comprehensive document within the immediate future, finances permitting.

Perhaps there should be a separate study related to governmental services or the feasibility of a new look in its present mode of operation.

The park district survey may act as the catalyst in getting such a study started.

There is always the chance those interviewed in the survey may not welcome such a change, but I have a hunch it will go the other way.

Residents from Bloomingdale and Wayne Townships met with the committee Wednesday morning to discuss the reconsideration. The site borders Wayne Township. Objections have brought the matter from a simple board consideration to a fight.

Residents claimed Wednesday the landfill operation allowed under the county's special use and zoning variation would lower land values, pollute air and water, pose a fire hazard, increase traffic congestion and damage nearby roads.

ATTY. LEE Daniels, from Elmhurst, is representing what he called "30 concerned landowners of 1,000 acres surrounding the dump."

Ponder Repeal of Landfill

The zoning committee of the DuPage County Board of Supervisors is deciding whether to recommend a repeal of a vote earlier this year allowing a combustible landfill operation near Barrington and Fisher Roads in Bloomingdale Township near Hanover Park.

Schuster Named Successor to Varble

John Varble resigned from the Bensenville Park District Wednesday night as previously announced, and Jack Schuster, whose term of office had expired, was appointed to fill the vacancy.

Merle Hummel, who was elected last week to fill Schuster's expiring term, was sworn in as commissioner in the park version of "musical chairs."

Schuster had been president of the district before announcing he would not seek reelection.

Commissioner Donald Carroll will act as president pro tem until a reorganization meeting next month at which new officers may be elected.

VARBLE RESIGNED because his Action Party slate was voted into municipal office Tuesday. He will become Bensenville's village president May 1 when Fred Steging's term expires.

Steging was defeated in his reelection bid.

Schuster's appointment will run the remaining two years of Varble's term. Hummel has a six year term.

When Hummel was sworn-in, Varble quickly said, "Welcome to the club."

Varble has spent nine years with the district, including a term as president. Carroll said without Varble the board will be impaired.

"I DON'T FEEL like we are losing him because he will always be close," Wilbur Burde, commissioner, said. The park district building is across the street from the village hall.

"I feel it necessary to answer some recent charges that Varble could have resigned earlier and his position could have been elected by the people," Robert Nichols, commissioner, said. "This board can only appoint someone when a commissioner resigns," he said. "There can be no election."

HIS STATEMENT was backed by park district attorney Edward Vertovec and the other commissioners.

Varble announced last fall he would resign from the board after village elections, win or lose.

Besides Hummel, another man has filed for election to a commissioner position. Jerome W. Bochniak, 1215 W. Green Valley, Bensenville, was defeated by Hummel by a 100-vote margin.

Study Student Behavior

Dr. Lester Przewlocki, superintendent of Addison Elementary School Dist. 4, and Lawrence Berson, executive director of Family Service Association of DuPage County, have announced establishment of a new seminar, titled "Youngsters, An Inquiry."

The seminar is meeting weekly at Indian Trails Junior High School in Addison. It is led by Dorothy McElvain, social worker for Family Service. It will continue to the end of this school semester.

Teachers bring to the meetings situations they have with their students. The collective experience of other teachers and knowledge from the field of social work may be used to understand the behavior of some students which is not conducive to their education.

TEACHERS AND social workers, by pooling their experience and intuitive as well as formalized knowledge can enlarge the school experience of the student, Berson said.

Przewlocki explained this is an official program for the district. Berson said that working with Dist. 4 in this area is a further extension of the Family Service Agency in a program of making available to schools on a local basis the professional social workers from the agency.

Miss McElvain, a native of Pinckneyville, Ill., graduated with a bachelor degree in education from Southern Illinois University. She went on to get her master's degree from the University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration.

She did a third year of study at Smith College School of Social Work in Northampton, Mass. Her experience, in addition to working for Family Service here, includes working for the Infant Welfare Society as a mental health consultant for about 14 years, working with public health nurses and, in the nursery school for emotionally disturbed children as a part of a clinical team which included doctors, pediatricians, psychologists and public health nurses.

Elect Zoltek President of Medinah Dist.

Steven Zoltek, 22W364 Thorndale Ave., Medinah, was elected president of the Medinah Park District Wednesday night.

Former Pres. Joseph Riha was elected treasurer in the annual turnover of park district officers. His term ends in 1971.

Riha said the change was for the better because of his extended business travel. "Steve is more available to attend meetings," Riha said.

Zoltek was vice-president of the district and has four more years to serve in his term. Park commissioners are elected for six-year terms.

The new vice-president is Stuart Goodenough, who was appointed to the board several months ago. His term also ends in 1971.

Mrs. Helen E. Riha is park secretary but not an elected official.

ALSO DISCUSSED at Wednesday's meeting were proposed summer recreation programs which may include girls' softball, arts and crafts, ballet, library use, baton twirling and band sessions.

The possibility of swimming lessons is being investigated. The park board also is working on a master plan for development of Medinah Park sites. Details are expected to be available soon, Riha said.

18-Year-Old Dies

Gary Lio, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Lio, 21W236 Woodview Drive, Itasca, died unexpectedly Tuesday at St. Alexius Hospital.

Lio, a former Lake Park High School student and golfer, died from a blood infection he contracted about a month ago.

He became ill at Arizona State University where he was attending school. He spent a week in a hospital there before returning home. He was in St. Alexius for about three and a half weeks.

GARY ATTENDED Lake Park High School for four years, where he was one of the four best golfers in his senior year, according to Jerry Wiseman, golf coach. He was graduated last year.

Wiseman said Gary averaged 44.4 in dual meets during the 1968 golfing season. "He was the longest hitting student golfer I have ever seen," Wiseman said. He was a left-handed golfer, Wiseman added.

Mrs. Lio said Gary was an avid hockey fan and played with the Rangers, a hockey team of young men.

HE ATTENDED the University of Arizona until December when he transferred to Arizona State.

The Lio family has lived in Itasca for 14 years.

Gary is survived by his parents, his brothers, Kevin, 14, and Gregg, 6, and a sister Liane, 8.

Gary Lio

The funeral mass is at 10 a.m. today at St. Peter's Church in Itasca. Burial will be at Queen of Heaven Cemetery, Hillside.

Recount Ballots

Itasca officials will meet at 8 o'clock tonight to recount and double check ballots in Tuesday's municipal election as a result of a petition challenging the results filed with Village Clerk Marcia Forke Wednesday.

Contested are the results of vote tallies for John Massel, 463 Lombard, Itasca, whose surprise write-in total came to 139, edging out incumbent trustee William Everham, who took only 121 votes.

The "no-opposition" election turned into a turmoil Tuesday night when tentative results were announced during a regular village board meeting. Wilbert Nottke, re-elected incumbent village president, said Wednesday.

"WE HAD WANTED to adjourn early and go out and celebrate," Nottke said. All incumbents believed they would be re-elected without opposition.

"We adjourned when we heard the early results," Nottke said, "and later went back into session. I was really surprised."

Nottke said Massel had applied to run with Nottke's Action Party slate when Trustee Roy Petherbridge indicated he might not run for reelection.

Massel then was turned down when Petherbridge "changed his mind and decided to run," Nottke said.

Itasca incumbents returned to office, and their vote totals, were Nottke, 238; Trustee Frank Atkinson, 248; Trustee Glenn Goodwin, 256; and Petherbridge, 242, the only trustee seeking a two-year unexpired term.

Newcomer Mrs. Marvin Griggs was elected to four years as village clerk, with 282 votes, to replace Mrs. Forke, who chose not to run for reelection.

MASSEL, 64, WHO IS a retired president of Poetsch Interior Cabinet Co., said he did not campaign for election.

"I never expected it to be like that. What can I do," he said.

He said he intends to accept the office. "I didn't even write my own name in," he said. "I voted for Nottke."

Apparently, it was a telephone campaign which got 139 residents to write in Massel's name.

Massel was not saying who backed him. A resident for 1½ years, Massel is a member of the Lions Club and responsible for changing the billboard at Walnut Street and Irving Park Road.

John Varble

He's Anxious For Work

John Varble, Bensenville's village president for the next four years, said Thursday he looks forward to working with the incumbent trustees.

Incumbents who were not up for election Tuesday are William Hegebarth, Frank Focht, and William Bychowski.

They are faced with working with Varble and his slate of Action Party candidates including Maynard Unger, William Bourke, and David Sloan for trustees and Fred Valentino for clerk.

Varble said he won't say what immediate changes he'll make but they will not be made until they are discussed with all board members.

"I hope they'll work with us," he said. Varble said he did not condone the anonymous newsletters that went out to residents several weeks ago attacking the incumbents.

HE SAID SOME young people sent them out but he did not approve.

Fred Steging, who has served as president for four years, said he wishes Varble and the new trustees good luck and he hopes they follow the wishes of the people.

"We knew we were in for a tough battle," said Steging, whose complete slate including incumbent trustees Mildred Richter, Fred Hilton, and Robert Riley, and clerk candidate Mrs. Dorothy Bielak were defeated.

"We ran a clean race and we lost," he said, adding that he is never surprised at the way elections turn out.

At a meeting Wednesday in Bensenville of the DuPage County Mayors-Managers Conference, officials discussed the election.

HEGEBARTH, whose term does not expire until 1971, said of Steging:

"He is the nicest guy. This (Varble's victory) and (Steging's defeat) is like having a death in the family."

"Fred's taking it real hard, too. He was depending, he had faith in the good will of the community. He was quite shocked."

According to retiring Village Clerk Herbert Dierking, "There are a lot of downhearted people in Bensenville today."

"You know, the old-timers used to swing the elections. But, not today, not today. The old-timers, they're dying off."

Bychowski, whose term extends to 1971, said he will wait with apprehension for the results of what may become a 4-3 vote split on the village board.

He said, however, "Unger is bound to be cooperative, and I sure will be. Before I say anything, I want to wait and see.

"It's hard losing Fred (Steging)," Bychowski said, and he referred to Mrs. Richter and Hilton as great losses to the board. "All four of them, Fred, Mildred, Fred Steging and Bob Riley — I never met more dedicated people."

HEGEBARTH SAID, in discussing the ouster of all incumbents, "When we (he and Bychowski) were elected, our platform was to do what's good for the community. We're going to continue to do what's good for the community."

Bychowski added, "What's good for the community is good for me."

Harold Koehler, village administrator, had a word of caution for the three trustees whose terms did not expire this year — Hegebarth, Bychowski and Focht.

He said, "It's a bitter pill the incumbents are swallowing, but I hope they can work together for the betterment of the community."

"Everybody's in a state of shock right now, and there may be accusations. But this does no good."

A breakdown of voting in Bensenville's five precincts appears inside today's Register.

Library Board Vote Adds 4

The Roselle Library Board gained four new members in Tuesday's election. Elected for full four-year terms were William Myers, 967 votes; Mrs. Marjorie Engel, 982 votes, and Mrs. Jean Wheeler, 998 votes. James Birdsall, 904 votes, won an unexpired two-year term on the board.

Outgoing members of the board were Viola Voelz, Virginia Fowler and Dorothy Sanborn. A new state law requires that library boards have seven members, thus the added seat to the board.

ONE INCUMBENT and two newcomers won seats on the Itasca Library Board. Incumbent Raymond Fricke, 262 votes, and newcomers Mrs. Elizabeth Mellor, 268 votes, and C. Frederick Risinger, 259 votes, were elected to fill six-year terms on the board.

Outgoing member was Mrs. Richard Bowman.

Country Fair Plans Under Way

Plans are underway for a country fair to be held May 17 by parents and teachers of both Lincoln and Salk schools in Roselle. The fair will be held from 3 to 7 p.m. at Lincoln School.

Events of the fair will include an art show, a white elephant sale, a country greenhouse and bakery, a hobby display and a talent show.

Chairman Mrs. Claraanne Zielinski said sponsors need items for the sales and displays. Anyone interested in making donations may call Lincoln School for information.

Funds from the fair will go towards purchasing an upright piano for use in the school by music classes.

ROBERT MEYERS

Frantz Forsees Unity

"I worked hard and had a lot of people believe in me," said a happy Robert Frantz, village president of Roselle who was elected to another four years in office Tuesday.

Frantz, seeking election as an independent, defeated William Florence, the United Party's choice for president and former village president.

Florence said he knew it would be hard for him to overcome his quitting as president two years ago. It turned out that this was the issue voters based their votes on. Frantz agreed and said he got this impression from his earliest contact with residents.

FRANTZ SAID he will have "no problem" with the six newly-elected trustees, four of whom are incumbents. "They staked their position and they were repudiated by the voters," he said.

All of the incumbents, including Village Clerk Mildred Winkler, backed Florence.

YWCA Notes 22nd Birthday

The Elgin Young Women's Christian Association, in celebration of the 22nd annual national YWCA Week, April 20 to 27, has offered a challenge — "Be yourself — you do count."

In joining with other YW's throughout the nation, Mrs. Henry J. Poston, executive director, said, "This theme is especially important today when all women and girls are called upon to make meaningful contributions to their community, nation and world."

The YWCA, through program and services, encourages each woman and girl to be an individual and to develop her mind, body and spirit to the fullest measure. In the United States today, more than two million women are girls of all economic, racial, occupational, religious and cultural groups, are counted as members or registered participants in programs.

YWCA Week in Elgin will be launched Sunday. The annual dinner meeting will be held Wednesday in the YW with a fellowship hour scheduled for 6 p.m.

Claims 'Smear Campaign'

Stanley Haverkamp, Bloomingdale village president who was defeated Tuesday in a bid for reelection, accused Robert Meyers of using a "smear campaign" to get elected president.

Meyers denied the charge, saying, "We wouldn't tolerate a smear campaign." He said he knew some rumors were started but he had nothing to do with them.

Meyers, president of the homeowners association in the Indian Lakes subdivision, defeated Haverkamp 372 to 304.

All were elected, including newcomers Joseph Devlin and Ken Kummer, but Florence was not. He lost to Frantz by 30 votes, 529 to 499. Independent William Seddon got 68 votes.

Now Frantz faces the next few years with trustees who worked against his election.

They include Anthony Bonavolonta, Raymond Casperson, and Devlin, elected to four-year terms, and Mrs. Betty Lou Mann, Raymond Berg, and Kummer, elected to two-year terms.

"I look forward to four years of continuing progress," said Frantz.

TRUSTEE Bonavolonta, however, was still "downhearted" Wednesday. "As a man and individual we like him (Frantz)," he said, "but all the trustees did not feel he was fit for the mayor's position."

Tuesday night Berg seemed to be the most optimistic about working with Frantz in the future. He said village work would have to continue.

At a meeting of the DuPage County Mayors-Managers Conference in Bensenville Wednesday, Frantz was smiling, but arrived alone.

The incumbent trustees arrived earlier in a group. Later, however, they all sat together.

When asked if Frantz had come with her group, Mrs. Mann said, "No. I don't even know if he's here. Is he here? Would he dare?"

SHE SAID OF Florence's campaign, "We worked every night. Door-to-door."

Robert Frantz

When it was over, and he lost, I cried. I was still in tears this morning."

After Frantz arrived, a friend commented to Mrs. Mann that her "leader" had arrived.

"A leader we don't have," she retorted bitterly. "I slammed him so much. But, it was all the truth, all the truth."

Accompanying Mrs. Mann were Berg and Robert Gurke, outgoing trustee who did not run for reelection. Berg was not as vocal as Mrs. Mann about the election results, but he nodded frequently during her remarks.

Frantz, when asked whether he feared a canvass of ballots would tip the election toward Florence, smiled broadly and said, "We counted the ballots pretty carefully."

(For a breakdown of how balloting went in Roselle's three districts turn to the inside pages.)

Park Districts Each Elect 2

Itasca and Medinah Park districts each elected two commissioners to six-year terms Tuesday.

The uncontested Itasca election of Mrs. Joan C. Lawson, 200 S. Walnut, and Glenn A. Morrison, 237 Forest Ave., brought a good turnout with nearly 300 votes cast. Eight write-in candidates received one vote each.

Mrs. Lawson received 261 votes and Morrison, 264. About 15 ballots were spoiled due to improper markings on them.

In Medinah, the voter turnout was described as "lousy" by park district Pres.

Joseph Riha. Though three candidates were running for two positions, only about 150 out of a potential 1,500 voters went to the polls.

ELECTED WERE Gordon Manary, 6N002 Laurel Drive, and Joseph Rand, 22W410 Walnut St., both of Medinah.

Manary received 66 votes and Rand, 58. The losing contender was M. Richard Miller, 5N358 Fairway Lane, Nordic Park, with 49 votes. According to Riha, Miller didn't cast a vote.

Manary and Rand both are involved in Little League baseball.

WILBERT NOTTKE

John Massel

OK Co-Op Board

The board of education of the Joliet Diocese voted Monday to allow three North DuPage County Catholic high schools to form a cooperative board of education.

According to Charles Clark, director of student services at Driscoll High School in Addison, the program will bring unification to the area schools and allow for reduced spending.

Each school, he said, will retain its own identity, yet will benefit from the program. If developed fully it will be the first parochial school district created in the United States.

Teachers from all three schools will meet at Driscoll May 15 for a special institute day.

They will divide into groups to discuss how they can share equipment and teaching responsibilities. According to Clark, the teacher-sharing will occur mostly at upper level courses where it is sometimes difficult to find qualified persons to teach.

THE IDEA OF combining several parochial schools into a single district is a new one.

The Driscoll, Montini, and St. Francis board will consist of six members. Three will be parents of children graduated from or presently enrolled in each of the schools. One member will be elected at large by parishioners in the schools involved, one member appointed, and one member representing the lay faculty.

Clark said he hopes the board can be chosen by the end of the school year so the program can go into effect this fall. A cooperative summer school program already has been planned for June.

According to Clark, parents and teachers have reacted "very favorably" to the cooperative idea.

"In fact," Clark said, "Many of the ideas have already come from the faculty."

Koehler Nominated

Harold Koehler, Bensenville village administrator, Wednesday was nominated secretary-treasurer of the DuPage County Mayors and Managers Conference.

Wilbert Nottke, Itasca village president and also vice-president of the conference for the past year, was nominated president, a traditional step up for his year of service.

Besides Koehler, one other new officer was nominated — newly elected Mayor Marget Hamilton of Wheaton for vice president, for the past Nottke will be vacating.

Election will be held in May, following possible additional nominations from the floor.

The vote for the slate was unanimous Wednesday, with the following representatives of north DuPage communities attending:

ADDISON: TRUSTEES Reed Carlson and Ted Johnson, and Administrator William Drury.

Bensenville: Trustees William Hegebarth and William Bychowski, outgoing Village Clerk Herbert Dierking, Police Chief Walter Tett, Lt. Arthur Garcia, and Koehler.

Elk Grove Village: Finance Officer Donald Epley.

Itasca: Village Pres. Wilbert Nottke and Trustee Eldon Corbin.

Roselle: Village Pres. Robert Frantz, Trustees Betty Lou Mann and Ramon Berg and outgoing Trustee Robert Gurke.

Wood Dale (long absent from mayor-manager meetings): Mayor Ralph Hansen and Village Atty. Samuel LaSusa.

Catchall

ONE OF THOSE WEEKS: First a line was dropped in an editorial endorsing Maynard Unger among others for election as trustee on the Bensenville Village Board. Then, at press time Tuesday — right under the wire, in fact — we were ready to go with election results in Bensenville.

Cliff phoned up to the newsroom from the shop and wanted to know if John Varble's victorious slate was called the Action or the United Party. He was holding two pieces of copy. One said it was Action, the other said United. He was told, after considerable shuffling among election name lists for five towns, two park boards and two library boards. "Guess I must be wrong," Cliff said to himself. "Could have sworn it was Action." A few minutes later, Kathy called up to the newsroom to ask the same question. Now, she was in possession of the two contradictory pieces of news copy.

"United, United," she was told. "We have this copy here that says it's Action," Kathy persisted. "Nope, United," she was assured. So, that's why United Party appears in the headlines of Wednesday's Registers, instead of Action Party, under which John Varble's slate moved to victory. Things around here have been like that all month.

Village Beat

Change Ahead?

by SYD JAMIESON

This month as voters went to the polls to cast their ballots for candidates seeking municipal office, Wood Dale, under its commission form of government, remained relatively quiet except for school board and township elections.

The next municipal election in Wood Dale is not until April, 1971, when registered voters will choose a mayor and four commissioners to serve on the council for four-year terms.

The candidates will have survived a primary election two months earlier which is generally the bell-ringer for weeding out the also-rans for the post of commissioner. Once in a while the primary finds more than two candidates running for mayor, but the number of applicants or candidates seeking this office is small compared with those seeking a seat as commissioners.

WHEN THE VOTES all have been counted in the general election voters will have selected those who will guide the village and the decision-makers for the next four years.

Wood Dale is one of the few municipalities in Illinois still operating under the commission form of government.

Most of its neighbors operate under a village board of trustees with staggered terms of office. Most of its neighbors have a mayor or village president with six trustees serving as the elected governing body.

In Wood Dale there are four commissioners serving a community of more than 8,000 population and by the 1970 census its populace is expected to reach 10,000 or more.

Recently the village manager screening committee recommended that the village consider changing its present form of government to perhaps a village board of trustees or aldermanic and that the number of elected officials be expanded to provide better representation for the population boom it is experiencing.

STAGGERED TERMS of office was another recommendation, including a new referendum on the managerial form of government sanctioned by the voters in 1967, but later declared invalid.

A tip on which way local residents may be thinking could be found when the results of an attitude and opinion survey is completed in May by McFadden and Everly, Ltd., a consulting firm hired by the Wood Dale Park District.

Included in the questions asked of village residents will be one seeking comments on a possible change in government.

The present village administration is co-operating with the local park district in the survey and village officials will weigh carefully the results of this key question when it is tabulated in final form.

PARK COMMISSIONERS have the foresight to spend money wisely during the district's initial years of operation by engaging a qualified consultant to prepare a master park and recreation plan based on the attitudes and opinions of those residing within its boundaries.

Wood Dale has long needed a master plan to guide its orderly growth. Council members are hopeful something can be done about developing such a comprehensive document within the immediate future, finances permitting.

Perhaps there should be a separate study related to governmental services or the feasibility of a new look in its present mode of operation.

The park district survey may act as the catalyst in getting such a study started.

There is always the chance those interviewed in the survey may not welcome such a change, but I have a hunch it will go the other way.

Ponder Repeal of Landfill

The zoning committee of the DuPage County Board of Supervisors is deciding whether to recommend a repeal of a vote earlier this year allowing a combustible landfill operation near Barrington and Fisher Roads in Bloomingdale Township near Hanover Park.

Residents from Bloomingdale and Wayne Townships met with the committee Wednesday morning to discuss the reconsideration. The site borders Wayne Township. Objections have brought the matter from a simple board consideration to a fight.

Residents claimed Wednesday the landfill operation allowed under the county's special use and zoning variation would lower land values, pollute air and water, pose a fire hazard, increase traffic congestion and damage nearby roads.

ATTY. LEE Daniels, from Elmhurst, is representing what he called "30 concerned landowners of 1,000 acres surrounding the dump."

Woman Assaulted

A Bensenville man on leave from the Navy was charged with the rape of a 22-year-old Wood Dale woman Wednesday night, Bensenville police reported.

Ronald B. Kutella, 18, of 108 N. York Road, allegedly attacked the woman at the rear of a vacant lot between 53 and 49 Greenlawn Ave. The woman told police she screamed and struggled but no one heard her.

She had been dropped off by her husband at about 8:30 p.m. at Roosevelt Avenue and the railroad tracks just east of York Road.

When her husband left her she waited for a train to go by and then planned to walk to a friend's home on Orchard Street while her husband attended classes at College of DuPage.

Police reported the victim met Kutella after the train had passed. He began a conversation with her as she walked along Roosevelt Avenue, police said.

Schuster Named Successor to Varble

John Varble resigned from the Bensenville Park District Wednesday night as previously announced, and Jack Schuster, whose term of office had expired, was appointed to fill the vacancy.

Merle Hummel, who was elected last week to fill Schuster's expiring term, was sworn in as commissioner in the park version of "musical chairs."

Schuster, had been president of the district before announcing he would not seek reelection.

Commissioner Donald Carroll will act as president pro tem until a reorganization meeting next month at which new officers may be elected.

VARBLE RESIGNED because his Action Party slate was voted into municipal office Tuesday. He will become Bensenville's village president May 1 when Fred Steging's term expires.

Steging was defeated in his reelection bid.

Schuster's appointment will run the remaining two years of Varble's term. Hummel has a six year term.

When Hummel was sworn-in, Varble quickly said, "Welcome to the club."

Varble has spent nine years with the district, including a term as president. Carroll said without Varble the board will be impaired.

"I DON'T FEEL like we are losing him because he will always be close," Wilbur Burde, commissioner, said. The park district building is across the street from the village hall.

"I feel it necessary to answer some recent charges that Varble could have resigned earlier and his position could have been elected by the people," Robert Nichols, commissioner, said. "This board can only appoint someone when a commissioner resigns," he said. "There can be no election."

HIS STATEMENT was backed by park district attorney Edward Vertovec and the other commissioners.

Varble announced last fall he would resign from the board after village elections, win or lose.

Besides Hummel, another man has filed for election to a commissioner position. Jerome W. Bochniak, 1213 W. Green Valley, Bensenville, was defeated by Hummel by a 100-vote margin.

Study Student Behavior

Dr. Lester Przewlocki, superintendent of Addison Elementary School, Dist. 4, and Lawrence Berson, executive director of Family Service Association of DuPage County, have announced establishment of a new seminar, titled "Youngsters, An Inquiry."

The seminar is meeting weekly at Indian Trails Junior High School in Addison. It is led by Dorothy McElvain, social worker for Family Service. It will continue to the end of this school semester.

Teachers bring to the meetings situations they have with their students. The collective experience of other teachers and knowledge from the field of social work may be used to understand the behavior of some students which is not conducive to their education.

TEACHERS AND social workers, by pooling their experience and intuitive as well as formalized knowledge can enlarge the school experience of the student, Berson said.

Przewlocki explained this is an official program for the district.

Berson said that working with Dist. 4 in this area is a further extension of the Family Service Agency in a program of making available to schools on a local basis the professional social workers from the agency.

Miss McElvain, a native of Pinckneyville, Ill., graduated with a bachelor degree in education from Southern Illinois University. She went on to get her masters degree from the University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration.

She did a third year of study at Smith College School of Social Work in Northampton, Mass. Her experience, in addition to working for Family Service here, includes working for the Infant Welfare Society as a mental health consultant for about 14 years, working with public health nurses and, in the nursery school for emotionally disturbed children as a part of a clinical team which included doctors, pediatricians, psychologists and public health nurses.

Elect Zoltek President of Medinah Dist.

Steven Zoltek, 22W364 Thorndale Ave., Medinah, was elected president of the Medinah Park District Wednesday night.

Former Pres. Joseph Riha was elected treasurer in the annual turnover of park district officers. His term ends in 1971.

Riha said the change was for the better because of his extended business travel. "Steve is more available to attend meetings," Riha said.

Zoltek was vice-president of the district and has four more years to serve in his term. Park commissioners are elected for six-year terms.

The new vice-president is Stuart Goodenough, who was appointed to the board several months ago. His term also ends in 1971.

Mrs. Helen E. Riha is park secretary but not an elected official.

ALSO DISCUSSED at Wednesday's meeting were proposed summer recreation programs which may include girls' softball, arts and crafts, ballet, library use, baton twirling and band sessions.

The possibility of swimming lessons is being investigated.

The park board also is working on a master plan for development of Medinah Park sites. Details are expected to be available soon, Riha said.

18-Year-Old Dies

Gary Lio, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Lio, 21W236 Woodview Drive, Itasca, died unexpectedly Tuesday at St. Alexius Hospital.

Lio, a former Lake Park High School student and golfer, died from a blood infection he contracted about a month ago.

He became ill at Arizona State University where he was attending school. He spent a week in a hospital there before returning home. He was in St. Alexius for about three and a half weeks.

GARY ATTENDED Lake Park High School for four years, where he was one of the four best golfers in his senior year, according to Jerry Wiseman, golf coach. He was graduated last year.

Wiseman said Gary averaged 44.4 in dual meets during the 1968 golfing season.

"He was the longest hitting student golfer I have ever seen," Wiseman said. He was a left-handed golfer, Wiseman added.

Mrs. Lio said Gary was an avid hockey fan and played with the Rangers, a hockey team of young men.

HE ATTENDED the University of Arizona until December when he transferred to Arizona State.

The Lio family has lived in Itasca for 14 years.

Gary is survived by his parents, his brothers, Kevin, 14, and Gregg, 6, and a sister Liane, 8.

The funeral mass is at 10 a.m. today at St. Peter's Church in Itasca. Burial will be at Queen of Heaven Cemetery, Hillside.

Herald Will Begin Daily Publication Monday

The Herald will become a daily newspaper effective Monday, May 5.

It will continue as an early morning, home-delivered community newspaper, but will be published Monday through Friday instead of tri-weekly, to offer virtually instantaneous reporting of important local news along with numerous reader features and services.

The move, reflecting the success of Paddock Publications' existing daily newspapers, is a major acceleration of expansion plans previously announced by the suburban publishing firm.

ANNOUNCEMENT was made by Stuart R. Paddock Jr., president.

He said reader and advertiser acceptance of the four existing dailies has indicated that both groups regard the additional news and advertising coverage as a significant service.

"Our response has been overwhelming," Paddock said. "Suburbanites like our new dailies so much we felt we should extend daily frequency as rapidly as possible, consistent with maintaining high editorial standards."

"We are convinced the community will be pleased by this new daily and will give it the same warm reception our dailies have received in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Rolling Meadows."

The change will place all of Paddock Publications' Cook County newspapers on a daily basis. Five papers serving communities in north DuPage County will be retained, for the present, on a tri-weekly publication schedule.

Paddock said the newest dailies represent the firm's greatest potential for future growth in terms of new readers and advertisers.

"THE RAPID GROWTH of this community holds great promise for the community and its newspaper. We intend to strengthen and enhance our news coverage," Paddock said, "while aggressively building lineage with advertisers serving the community.

"Our increased frequency will permit us to develop more varieties of news and human interest material, and it will give us a chance to offer advertisers added impact as well as exposure any week day of their choosing."

To accommodate the increased frequency, additional news, advertising and circulation personnel will be secured.

The new daily Herald is only one in a series of innovations made by Paddock Publications in recent years. Only two years ago, it converted all 16 newspapers from weekly to tri-weekly frequency. While the weekly often published 90 to 120 pages, the tri-weekly offered more compact, easier to read editions.

A month ago, the six-column "op" format was adopted, providing an uncluttered appearance and a new column width designed for optimum ease of reading. At the same time, the news departments were reorganized and a page numbering system instituted. Carrier delivery replaced the former mail distribution system, an improvement which received considerable favorable response from readers and a necessary prelude to the daily frequency.

BESIDES MORE timely news and added feature coverage, Herald readers can look forward on May 5 to:

—A daily news summary of important national and international events from United Press International sources

—Daily results of prep sporting events.

—Daily Suburban Living features for the family, and daily news about women.

—Daily Arts of Living coverage of suburban cultural and entertainment events, including a daily horoscope.

—Daily editorials focusing on the concerns of the community and the Northwest suburbs.

Trustee Results

Turning in a plurality in Precinct 7, Tom Ullmann won the third seat open on the Elk Grove Village Board by a margin of 178 votes over Alvin Krasnow.

But Ullmann trailed incumbents George Coney and Charles Zetek, who were easily reelected to second and third terms, respectively.

Final unofficial returns showed Zetek with 2,112; Coney, 2,067; Ullmann, 1,909; and Krasnow, 1,731.

BUT DESPITE running in fourth position, Krasnow might be appointed to the village board to fill out a term formerly owned by Eugene Keith.

In a surprise move on election night, Keith, trailing badly in the presidential race, announced he would resign from the village board. His term expires in 1971.

Immediately opposed to that was Ullmann, who thought a special election might be in order. He had beaten Krasnow in all but one precinct, although some margins were thin. Precinct 4, at Grant Wood School, gave Ullmann only eight votes more than Krasnow, while Precinct 1 at Arcade Park and Shop, gave the winner only 12 votes more than the fourth-running candidate.

The race between Coney and Zetek became a sort of friendly dual as the evening wore on, to see who would get more than who. In the end, Coney "conceded" that he had been out-pollied by Zetek.

IT WAS ZETEK'S fourth campaign for the village board, and he became the first trustee to be elected to a third term. He and Coney led in six precincts, upset by

Keith WILL Leave Post

EUGENE KEITH said Wednesday that he meant it — after losing the mayoral race, he'll resign Tuesday from the village board.

Elk Grove Village Trustee Eugene Keith, who ran third in Tuesday's mayoral election, said Wednesday he's still planning to resign from the board.

His comments Tuesday night, Keith said, will be presented to the board next Tuesday in the form of a letter of resignation.

Asked about the possibility of appointing fourth-running trustee candidate Alvin Krasnow, Keith suggested that the board consider candidate Robert Fleming, who ran second to Jack Pahl in the presidential race.

KEITH SAID THAT his comment, "I no longer have personal respect for any individual with whom I would be required to serve," was not directed at Pahl and Fleming alone, as was reported Wednesday. Keith also added that his statement was not prepared in advance, as was reported.

When asked about the parliamentary procedure involved, Keith wondered if the present board or the new board should act on his resignation, but made no immediate request. The only difference between the old and new boards would be the seating of Tom Ullmann in place of Trustee James Gibson.

Keith served on the village board for a total of six years, from 1961 to 65 and from 1967 to present. In his first campaign he ran as an independent, but was a member of Jack Pahl's slate in 1965. He ran independently in 1967.

FOR KEITH, TUESDAY was a bitter day. He had hoped for a voter turnout of 3,500, and felt that it would be a very close race. Instead, 3,171 voted in the mayoral election, and Pahl beat him by a 2 to 1 margin.

He had election night headquarters set up at the Maitre d' Restaurant, immediately adjacent to Pahl's meeting place. But few of his supporters showed up, in sharp contrast to Pahl's victory celebration.

Ball Death Probed

An inquest into the death of Douglas Hayhurst, 10, of 937 Wilshire, Elk Grove Village, will be held today at the Lauterburg and Oehler Funeral Home in Arlington Heights.

The youth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hayhurst, was killed Wednesday afternoon when struck by a baseball in the playground behind Grant Wood Elementary School, 225 E. Elk Grove Blvd.

According to investigating officer Ray Rose, the boy was struck in the chest by a batted ball. He cried out, and fell to the ground.

A neighbor, Mrs. Pauline Kubas, 916 Victoria, ran to the scene and tried to revive the boy by mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Police and firemen arrived a few minutes later, and for 20 minutes attempted to aid the boy.

ALL EFFORTS failed, however, and he was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Alexius Hospital, by Dr. Thomas at 4:40 p.m.

He was a fifth grade student at Queen of the Rosary School, Elk Grove Village.

Hospital officials said the exact cause of death has not yet been determined.

In addition to his parents, Hayhurst is survived by a brother, Robert, a sister, Deborah, and grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilhelm and Forrest P. Drake.

Funeral services have been scheduled for 9:45 a.m. tomorrow at Queen of the Rosary Church, Elk Grove Village, with the Rev. J. Ward Morrison officiating. Interment will be at All Saint's Cemetery.

Easy Wins Go To Four

Four candidates, all unopposed, won easy victories Tuesday in Elk Grove Village. They included Village Clerk Eleanor Turner, who won a third term with 2,906 votes, and library board candidates John Gayer, with 2,151 votes; Mrs. Darleen Greaves, 2,468, and Frederick Klink, 1,933.

All returns are unofficial, and will probably be canvassed Tuesday night.

'Posse' Guards Bank's Move

Like an 1870s posse waiting for the bad guys to ride into town, Elk Grove Village police armed themselves with shotguns, carbines and the usual revolvers this week, and swarmed around Arlington Heights and Higgins Roads.

Object of concern was the Bank of Elk Grove, which was moving into a new building and planning to open Monday. Bank records, securities, safety deposit boxes and cash are involved in the trek across Higgins Road.

A tight security ring was set up, which included officers William Kohnke (at right) and Chris Markussen (below), sealing off the area.

THE MOVE WILL be completed over the weekend, and the bank will be open for business Monday, according to Neil Cooney, bank president. Portions of the bank's operations have been in the new building for several weeks.

While the shift across Higgins is a short one, it has required detailed planning, Cooney said.

"It's like a safari," he noted.

Designed by architects Loeb, Schlossman, Bennett and Darr of Chicago, the new quarters are "like a new world," Cooney added.

It is a two-story contemporary building with 15,000 square feet of space, on a 131,000 square foot site to accommodate a large parking area and extensive landscaping. The bank has four drive-in windows.

THE MAIN BANKING floor has a 12-window teller line, private offices, conference rooms and a safety deposit vault. Bookkeeping space and the staff coffee room are located on the second floor, which extends over the teller line.

Organized in 1963, the Bank of Elk Grove had deposits totalling $2,151,302 at the end of the first business year. Since then, deposits have grown to $13,655,562 as of Dec. 31. The bank has a staff of 40 persons.

Cooney added that an open house announcement will be made soon.

Elk Horn Goodbye, Eugene

by GEOFFREY MEHL
When the polls closed at Clearmont School Tuesday, Trustee Eugene Keith and park board candidate Martin Durkin were there. They cleaned up all the little signs stuck into the soft spring earth by those hoping for a seat at the table of government in Elk Grove Village.

It was a sort of good samaritan act, and both went their separate ways: Durkin home, and Keith to the Makre d' Restaurant to have an election night dinner with his wife.

Bill Rose was expecting a mob over there, we're told, because both Keith and Pres. Jack Pahl had set up headquarters in adjacent basement banquet rooms.

Keith had been talking about a healthy vote — over 3,000, and very close — and it looked as though that just might be the way it would go. But early returns proved otherwise. Embittered, losing badly, and with all political stratagems falling apart, Eugene Keith got even with everybody and announced he would not only concede victory to Pahl, but that he would also resign from the village board. He had two years to go as a trustee, but apparently Keith couldn't respect anybody on the panel anymore.

So, in a dramatic gesture in, as he puts it, "my own inimitable style," he snuffed out his dissenting voice, closed his empty headquarters and retired.

Well, it might have been a dramatic gesture, with five of seven precincts in, but we wonder how those people who voted for him feel today. They believed in what Eugene Keith had to say, no matter how controversial it was. They believed him when he said win or lose, he'd be around a long time. They believed him when he said that someone on the board has to say "no." So here was Keith, tossing in the towel, hurt and bitter, not even interested in the 291 votes he got in the last precincts

Tom Ullmann, who has the makings of a dissident, thought it was kind of stupid. Others expressed sympathy, while still others rolled their tongues and sampled the bad taste in their mouths.

A lot of people thought it was a rash action, poorly timed, and definitely lacking of good sportsmanship. Some thought it was like the little kid that couldn't compete with the older boys, and took his marbles home.

Wednesday, Keith confirmed that he really did mean what he had to say Tuesday night, but he said he'd be around now and then when there was something to talk about, sort of like Robert Fleming. But we doubt if anybody will be listening.

There's an old political cliché about getting out of the kitchen if you can't stand the heat, which seems to be what Keith has done. But we'd like to add that those who scramble out of the kitchen really don't have much to say about what's baking in the oven.

Farwell, Eugene Keith. You tried your best to represent 722 people who voted for you, but you blew it — in your own inimitable way.

Last Was A Crucial Precinct

by GEOFFREY MEHL

It was late, the room was crowded, and the happy but exhausted supporters of Jack Pahl gathered around their leader to hear about the last and a crucial precinct.

"Keith, 164," he barked, and the crowd booed. "Fleming, 212." More jeers. "Pahl, 257!" It was the crowning touch on a solid victory, and the Pahl organization demonstrated the feelings that go with winning.

The precinct in question voted at Salt Creek School, and was important to the incumbent Elk Grove Village president primarily because it was the home of his two opponents, Trustee Eugene Keith and Robert Fleming.

PAHL DEFEATED Fleming by 436 votes and outran Keith 2-1, collecting 1,442 votes and all seven precincts. Unofficial returns showed Pahl receiving 45.48 per cent of the vote, trailed by Fleming's 31.76, and Keith's 22.76 per cent.

Pahl opened up thin leads in the first two precincts. Precinct 1, which voted at Arcade Park and Shop, gave the village president 135 votes to Fleming's 117 and Keith's 44. Precinct 2, which has expressed dissatisfaction with everything from parks to bond issues, helped Keith close the gap. Pahl got 196 there, while Fleming picked up 182 and Keith received 118.

Concern about Precinct 3, voting at Ridge School, had been privately expressed in the Pahl camp in the past few days. A concerted effort was made through late afternoon on Tuesday there, and it paid off. The precinct delivered 243 votes to Pahl, 133 to Fleming, and 94 to Keith.

THE INCUMBENT'S lead continued to build in the fourth and fifth precincts, at the rate of about 50 votes per precinct. Grant Wood School area voters went 145 for Pahl, 102 for Fleming, and 84 for Keith, while Clearmont voters turned in 199 for Pahl, 141 for Fleming, and 111 for Keith.

At that point, Keith conceded victory by announcing he wouldn't even remain on the village board. The trustee said he would resign Tuesday, because "I no longer have personal respect for many individuals with whom I would be required to serve."

The move surprised observers, and it wasn't until yesterday morning that thought began to be given to who would replace Keith on the panel.

Precinct 7, home of Pahl, which voted at Admiral Byrd School, was next in, delivering a heavy vote for Pahl. While the president received 268 votes, Fleming got 120 and Keith, out of the race, received 117.

With a healthy margin, the Pahl victory party moved into high gear; all that had to be done was get a reasonable vote in Precinct 6, and it would be all over.

IT WASN'T until very late in the evening when the last vote was in, but when it came, it was another 45 vote plurality for Pahl, making him the first Elk Grove Village president to be reelected.

The final unofficial count was Pahl, 1,442; Fleming, 1,007; and Keith, 722.

Cleaner Issue Stirs Mothers

A bright orange aerosol can, appearing on door steps and milk boxes in the area, has been arousing maternal ire among customers of Willow Farm dairy products.

The can contains Tuf Oven Cleaner, and the can bears a warning: "Keep out of the reach of children. Contains potassium hydroxide."

It is being left by milkmen this week as a promotional venture by Tuf, Inc., a Chicago firm, to boost product sales. A flyer accompanies the can, asking Willow Farm customers to try it. If they like it, they're billed $1.29. If they don't, they're instructed to leave the can on the doorstep, and the milkman will pick it up the next time he visits.

ONE ELK GROVE Village housewife was upset when her 3-year-old child went out to get the milk and returned with the oven cleaner. Wednesday she complained about it.

Officials at the Willow Farm distributor in Rolling Meadows said that the can has an inner plastic seal on it to protect children.

"It's one-shot promotion," according to Robert Lawler, senior supervisor at the distribution point. "It was distributed on Monday and Wednesday, and homes that didn't get it will receive it Friday."

ASKED ABOUT the potential hazard to children, Lawler said the can has an outer lid, with an inner plastic seal. "Stuff like this is on grocery store shelves, within reach of children, and it doesn't have the inner seal," he said.

He explained the flyer that was accompanying the product, and was asked about the housewife who tries it, doesn't like it, and leaves it for the milkman to pick up. There's no inner seal on it.

"Well, you've got a point there," Lawler said. He admitted that there have been complaints, but said this was the only week the offer would be in effect.

Talk of Black and White

by SANDRA COMSTOCK

"I felt very much at home. It's not something that I expected because we have visited other schools and not felt so welcome," the teenage girl said.

She was one of 29 students from John M. Harlan High School, 9632 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, who visited Hersey High in Arlington Heights yesterday.

"The point about wanting to be called black is they don't call us Caucasians, why should they call us Negroes? Black was chosen because it contrasts with white," another girl in the group argued.

Another Harlan student commented, "I'm not rebelling against you because you're white, I'm rebelling against the system."

A Harlan teacher explained, "Most of you kids out here live in an almost completely white world. Some of us from Harlan come from an almost all black world. The object of today's trip is to get kids together of approximately the same economic and social class and let you talk."

AND THE STUDENTS certainly did talk. During history and sociology classes, during walks down the hall, while eating lunch. They talked, and tried to understand each other's point of view.

One student was aligned with the Black Panther's militant philosophy. He said the Panthers are not trying to overthrow the government. Included as number one in their 10-point plan for improving the blacks' situation is full employment, he said.

Another goal is to make all blacks exempt from the army, he said.

During discussion in a sociology class, a white student countered this by saying if a person wants to live in this country, he should be willing to fight for it. The problem of black vs. white should be worked out as a whole, not as two separate but equal societies.

"LOOK HOW LONG we've tried this one whole idea," the black student said. "What has it gotten us?"

White students said, "Look what we've done to help you during the last 30 years."

"That's one of the problems. What is your concept of help? You allow us to do things. The only way you can help us is by stepping aside and letting us through," a black girl said.

Talking about the high percentage of

"THEY DON'T CALL you Caucasians, why should they call us Negroes?" a student from Harlan High School in Chicago asks during a history class discussion yesterday at

Hersey High School. A group of 29 black students visited Hersey yesterday and participated in classes and discussions with Hersey students.

black soldiers in the Vietnam war, one white student said, "We say you're fighting for freedom for someone else when you don't have it yourself. How can we expect that?"

A black girl said, "I wouldn't die for any society where I am not accepted."

Students discussed Operation Bread Basket and other programs to get black businesses together. The idea for these groups is to get blacks together to support blacks.

HARLAN STUDENTS agreed white businessmen are raping the black community. White merchants do their business in the black areas and then flee with the money they make to the suburbs, one person charged.

"We're not going to kick the white merchants out. But we are going to say, 'If you're going to stay you are going to be more responsive to this community,'" another black person stated.

The situation was not left as a hopeless and insoluble problem. After an hour of discussion, the Black Panther supporter said, "We've got to work it out together or there will be a confrontation."

Blacks seem to want to be able to meet whites on a firm economic basis. "The situation is more rich versus poor than it is black versus white. Some people want to keep it in the terms of black vs. white to keep all the have-nots from banding together," the Harlan teacher said.

ONE BLACK STUDENT who had let her hair grow out in a "natural" style said, "It just comes out like this. Just like your hair comes out straight, mine comes out curly. So I let it grow this way."

"One Hersey student said she felt cheated because she can't take an Afro-American history course at the school. "There are too many parents out here who would object," she said.

Many students agreed, saying their parents were afraid of something like that. They said the school was afraid to do anything the parents didn't like because parents can vote down referendums.

The Harlan teacher told the white students not to place all the blame at their parents' feet. "In a few years you will be adults and parents, and it's your job to make things right from there."

THROUGHOUT the discussion yesterday afternoon, students had crowded into the back of the room. They sat on tables or stood so they could hear what was being said. Some had gotten passes from their typing or drama classes. Everyone was intensely interested.

Alex Schmidt, head of the social science department at Hersey and the man who helped to arrange the visit from Harlan students, wrapped up the discussion. He said, "I don't know if I can say this of all days at Hersey, but I know today there has been some education at Hersey High School."

It's Official: Gilbert Is Elected

Elk Grove Park District commissioners wasted no time in getting their election returns canvassed, and after a recheck to correct minor inconsistencies, made it official this week.

Daniel Gilbert, appointed two years ago to the board, was elected to a six-year term. Martin Durkin was second by more than 300 votes, followed by Lewis Smith and Frank Epstein.

Durkin's effort won't go unrewarded however. He ran neck-and-neck with Gilbert through the first five precincts, winning three. Gilbert won three, and Smith beat all opponents in Precinct 2, which voted at Rupley School.

Because of the resignation of Kenneth Kerwin just prior to the election, Durkin is virtually guaranteed appointment to a two-year vacancy on the board. However, park district officials said yesterday that the runner-up hasn't been formally asked.

IF HE ACCEPTS, he will probably be seated at the board's May 8 meeting, the same time that Gilbert will begin his new term.

The Tuesday race was tight prior to moving into the western edge of the community.

Gilbert held a one-vote lead in unofficial returns after five precincts, but clobbered Durkin in Precinct 6, Salt Creek School, by a 3-1 margin, and easily won Precinct 7, Admiral Byrd School.

As was expected, Smith ran strongest in his home precinct, which includes the 1-E section of the village. That area is generally dissatisfied with the park district.

There Smith received 204 votes to Gilbert's 108, Durkin's 120, and Epstein's 53.

BUT SMITH FAILED to get more than 85 votes in any other precinct; Durkin was in three digits all the way, while Gilbert's weakest showing was in Precinct 1 where he received only 69 votes.

Epstein ranged from a low of 17 votes in Precinct 4 to a high of 83 in Precinct 6.

Durkin's strong run won't go unrewarded, however. With last week's resignation of park Comr. Kenneth Kerwin, he is guaranteed appointment to the two-year vacancy.

Vote spread was Gilbert, 1,234, Durkin 957; Smith, 545; and Epstein, 343.

Returns included:

Precinct 1 (Arcade Park and Shop) — Durkin, 111; Gilbert, 69; Smith, 55; Epstein, 53.

Precinct 2 (Rupley School) — Smith, 204; Durkin, 120; Gilbert, 108; Epstein, 53.

Precinct 3 (Ridge School) — Durkin, 170; Gilbert, 157; Smith, 72; Epstein, 60.

Precinct 4 (Grant Wood School) — Durkin, 156; Gilbert, 117; Smith, 37; Epstein, 17.

Precinct 5 (Clearmont School) — Gilbert, 215; Durkin, 121; Smith, 83; Epstein, 35.

Precinct 6 (Salt Creek School) — Gilbert, 362; Durkin, 110; Epstein, 87; Smith, 48.

Precinct 7 (Admiral Byrd School) — Gilbert, 238; Durkin, 169; Smith, 46; Epstein, 38.

Two Teens Charged

Two Elk Grove Village teenagers were released on $1,000 recognizance bonds yesterday afternoon after being charged with a $3,200 mail theft in Elk Grove Village.

An arraignment hearing was continued to Tuesday at 11 a.m., because neither youth had legal counsel.

The pair, identified as Antonio Pinnelli, 18, of 19 Ridgewood, and Steve Smith, 17, of 213 Tanglewood, both of Elk Grove Village, appeared before U.S. Commissioner James Balog of the Department of Justice.

THEY WERE CAPTURED Wednesday night by Elk Grove Village police, turned over to federal postal authorities and given into custody at the U.S. Marshal's office in Chicago.

Investigating police said stolen property ranging from magazines to tape recorders was valued at $3,201.15. Pinnelli and Smith allegedly stole the merchandise from the loading dock at the Elk Grove Post Office Tuesday and Wednesday.

They were picked up by police at Greenleaf and Nicholas in Elk Grove, shortly after 8 p.m. Four hours later they were turned over to federal authorities and charged with mail theft.

PINNELLI, POLICE SAID, is a former postal clerk, while Smith is a student at Elk Grove High School.

One Elk Grove police officer said the village post office had been repeatedly warned about poor security in the loading dock area but had done very little to improve it.

Officers participating in the arrest included Jon Scharpenter, William Kohnke and Raymond Marinac.

Youth Unit Helps Teens Find Jobs

Neighborhood teens from low-income families can combine summer employment experience with cultural education this summer, through the local Neighborhood Youth Corps, 3411 Kirchoff Road, Rolling Meadows.

Mrs. Florence Anderson of the group reports that 140 youths were placed through the program last year, and that more jobs are available than the number of applicants.

Employers in this project are not-for-profit concerns such as police departments, churches, swimming pools and camps run by local municipalities and federal agencies.

RESIDENTS OF six townships are eligible to apply for jobs through the NYC: Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Palatine, Hanover, Wheeling and Barrington. Youths between the ages of 16 and 21 should call Mrs. Anderson at 255 4654.

Those persons placed by the NYC usually work 30 hours a week and will be taken periodically on cultural trips to plays, museums or other places of interest.

AESOP SAYS:

The Dog that Froze

In the winter time, a dog rolled himself together and coiled up in as small a space as possible. He was so cold that he resolved to make himself a house when summer came.

But with the return of warm weather he lay lazily in the sun, stretched at his full length. He gazed upon his large size and decided that the task would be too difficult to make a house that would accommodate him.

The next winter was especially severe and the dog froze to death.

It is easy in good times to put the bad out of mind.

One reason why the 2,500-year-old stories of this Greek slave have endured among all peoples is that they accurately reflect human strengths and weaknesses.

It is easier to lie in the sun than to work, easier to spend than to save. But prudence suggests that our best interests lie in providing for the future by present effort.

Dialing Elk Grove

From Santa Anna, Calif., came John Doering, son of the E. L. Doerings, 792 Brantwood, last week. It was a combination business and pleasure trip, prefaced with stops at Grand Rapids and Cleveland.

It has become a tradition for grandparents, Clarence Nielsons of Chicago, to bring the homemade and artistic birthday cakes to family celebrations. A "Superman" motif was in order April 5 for their grandson, Fred Fink's eighth birthday; he is the son of the F. P. Finks, 508 Crest Ave. Neighborhood pals, Steve and Keith Rink, Wayne Kentzel, Jo Zaogina and Jeff fink were taken bowling at the local alleys. On Sunday, in addition to grandparents, aunts and uncles also arrived for the birthday festivities.

Twenty-five relatives were invited to the Easter dinner party at Marian and Gerry Maroney's home, 165 Crest. They were from Libertyville, Zion and Chicago.

Easter celebrations were coupled with a christening party at the home of Bill and Eleanor Elliott, 280 Tanglewood. Kristine Marie was baptized in Queen of the Rosary Church by Father J. Ward Morrison. Godparents in attendance were Charles Le Brun, Morton Grove, and Carol Schwander, Skokie. Grandparents, Dean Elliott and the Carl Corso's, Edgemoor, were also there, as were Kristine's sister, Lynn, and brother, Billy.

AN EASTER REUNION at Cherry Point, N.C., meant Marie and Dick Reynolds, 114 Tanglewood, were together with their son and family, Capt. and Mrs. D. J. Reynolds and two daughters. Ocean swims, sightseeing tours and dinner parties held forth for all.

Back from Fort Myers, Fla., are Edward and Marian Oehlerking, 115 S. Arlington Heights Road. Their daughter, Myra, a freshman at Northern Illinois University, DeKalb, and two girlfriends, Nancy Frazier and Denise Biedermann, also joined the vacationers. They returned with tans, earned by long hours of relaxing on the beach, swimming and sightseeing.

Carol Weiner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Weiner, 219 Brighton, celebrated her 18th birthday April 1 with dinner at De Leo's, Niles, with her parents and brother, David, and then at the Chicago Theatre.

Former Evergreen Lane resident, Toni Kinney, now living in LaGrange Park, held a reunion Tuesday night for ex-Elk Grove neighbors, Lynn Westerberg, Betty Schultz, Ethel Dunn, Frances Eining and Jean Griffith.

KATHY GREENHOLDT, daughter of the Hank Greenholds, 24 Wildwood, was 5 April 5. A relative party was held Sunday, Saturday she entertained 12 neighborhood moppets for an Easter theme luncheon party, supplemented with an Easter Egg Hunt in conjunction with the Jaycee's annual event in the forest preserves. Later a Jaycee clown-costumed member, who had been on the hunt, entertained the party guests in the Greenholdt home.

Another christening in Queen of the Rosary Church included Michael Patrick, son of the John Howletts, 654 Charringcross. Peggy Marro and Ray Davis, Chicago, served as godparents. Grandparents there were the senior Roy Davises and the John Howletts, Chicago. Thirty other guests attended a dinner held later in the Howlett home.

Brian Daniel, son of Heinz and Karen Mantel, 342 Birchwood, was christened recently in Queen of the Rosary Church. Godparents were Ariana Jaros, Chicago, and Walter Kuetner, Bramalea, Ontario, Canada. The Henry Mantels and John Gawrons, grandparents from Chicago, were in attendance, as were an aunt, Ruth Gawron, and the Jim Maros.

Donald and Marcia Ish, Mitchell, Mary Ann, Mark and Tom, moved into their 29 Woodcrest Lane home two months ago, but are relocating this week. They will be 651 Charringcross Road residents. The family moved here from New Richmond, Ind.. Donald is associated with the J. C. Penney Co.

GREEK EASTER, APRIL 13, was celebrated by Bob and Eunice Eltzenhofer, Steve, Bill and Vicky, 261 Tower Lane, at the home of Eunice's mother, Bessie Ver-veniotis, with a large family reunion.

Another Greek Easter celebration party took Chrysa and Jim Lippert, 263 Wildwood Road, to McKeesport, Pa., to join a family party at the home of John and Vera Potter. Mountain sightseeing was also on their plans for the week.

A 68th birthday party, also feting the retiree day for Donald Ericson, Niles, was hosted April 6 by his daughter and family, the Earl Marshalls, 170 Willow Lane.

Pat Beaupre invited eight bridge club members to her 543 Ridgewood home Wednesday night for their regular session.

Houseguests from Bethesda, Md., visiting Ed and Ethel Lack and Nancy, 70 Woodcrest, during Easter weekend were Elfrida and Gordon Kefe and children.

Vacationing in Spring Hill, Fla., were John and Cyrella Hough, 148 Crest, the past several weeks. Despite heavy rains en route, a car accident in Memphis, sans personal injuries, plus the theft of clothing in an Indianapolis motel, they still report a good holiday.

Paul Dickman came home from pheasant hunting in Springfield in time to greet his daughter, Laura Stroman, and infant son, Shawn, on a visit from Oklahoma, at 11 Ridgewood.

A tonsillectomy in St. Alexius Hospital was scheduled for Kenny Heard, son of the Robert Heards, 75 Ridgewood, prior to Easter. On Easter, he was able to join his family at the home of grandparents in Norridge, the G. W. Heards, where Marilyn's mother, Katherine McMann, also celebrated her Easter, April 6, birth date.

Sympathy is extended to Pat Keegan, 173 Crest, on the death of her mother, Margaret Denigan, in McHenry recently.

The day before his 11th birthday, April 8, Gene Christenson underwent a tonsillectomy in Northwest Community Hospital. Neighborhood friends brought him presents and cards while he was recuperating from surgery in his Hemlock Drive home.

48 in Drive Meet

People who complain constantly about poor teenage drivers are in for a surprise tomorrow when 48 students from Northwest suburban area high schools compete in Operation Driver Excellence (DE) at Wheeling High School.

Sponsored by the Phillip Carpenter Amvet Post 66 in Wheeling, the contest is the local beginning of a state and national competition for a new car and three $1,000 scholarships. Six students each from eight area high schools will compete with their classmates and one student from each school will be chosen to attend the state finals next weekend in Jacksonville, Ill.

A STIFF DRIVING competition, Operation DE requires that students be graduates of a driver education program with either a learner's permit or a driver's license. The nationwide contest is co-sponsored by the Dodge division of Chrysler Corp. and the Amvets.

Designed to stress skillful driving, the contest uses high school driving instructors as judges. The students are also selected for the competition by their driving instructors.

Winners of Saturday's competition will be awarded a plaque and expense-paid trips to the state finals next weekend. State winners receive expense-paid weekends in Detroit on May 16-18 for the national finals.

STUDENTS FROM Wheeling, Arlington, Prospect, Elk Grove, Forest View, Hersey, St. Viator, and Sacred Heart of Mary high schools will compete.

The public is welcome at the competition from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., Saturday, in the rear parking lot of Wheeling High School, Elmhurst and Hintz roads in Wheeling.

Koehler Nominated

Harold Koehler, Bensenville village administrator, Wednesday was nominated secretary-treasurer of the DuPage County Mayors and Managers Conference.

Wilbert Nottke, Itasca village president and also vice-president of the conference for the past year, was nominated president, a traditional step up for his year of service.

Besides Koehler, one other new officer

Teacher Joins School Aid Increase Backers

An Elk Grove High School teacher was among Illinois Education Association and state American Legion officials who this week jointly called for a $400 million increase in state aid to public schools.

He is Tom O'Driscoll of Palatine, director of pupil personnel services at Elk Grove.

The action puts the two committees behind state aid spending at just about the level proposed by Gov. Richard Ogilvie.

OGILVIE'S BUDGET message, issued April 1, called for a state public school aid increase of $390 million.

Illinois Education Association research director, David Elder issued a statement at that time expressing disappointment with Ogilvie's recommendations.

Ogilvie said the $390 million would provide an increase in the state aid foundation level from $400 to $500.

The state School Problems Commission had recommended an increase to $550.

was nominated — newly elected Mayor Marget Hamilton of Wheaton for vice president, for the post Nottke will be vacating.

Election will be held in May, following possible additional nominations from the floor.

The vote for the slate was unanimous Wednesday, with the following representatives of north DuPage communities attending:

ADDISON: TRUSTEES Reed Carlson and Ted Johnson, and Administrator William Drury.

Bensenville: Trustees William Hegebarth and William Bychowski, outgoing Village Clerk Herbert Dierking, Police Chief Walter Tett, Lt. Arthur Garcia, and Koehler.

Elk Grove Village: Finance Officer Donald Eppley.

Itasca: Village Pres. Wilbert Nottke and Trustee Eldon Corbin.

Roselle: Village Pres. Robert Frantz, Trustees Betty Lou Mann and Ramon Berg and outgoing Trustee Robert Gurke.

Wood Dale (long absent from mayor-manager meetings): Mayor Ralph Hansen and Village Atty. Samuel LaSusa.

3 To Attend Reunion

Three area residents plan to attend the Morton Class of 1945 reunion next year.

Mrs. Julie (Rezak) Jackson of Mount Prospect, Louis Barone of Hanover Park, and Robert Turza of Palatine were all members of the class, which will hold the 25-year reunion April 25, 1970, at the Chateau Royale.

Norwesco OKs Fund Transfer To Center

A long-standing feud between some Norwesco members and the Northwest Opportunity Center which Norwesco founded broke into the open Wednesday night with a vengeance.

Several Norwesco members vehemently opposed transfer of $5,400 to the Opportunity Center which Norwesco has held for a year since it was donated by church and community groups for the Opportunity Center's use.

Their effort failed. A MAJORITY of Norwesco members attending the meeting in Wheeling High School voted to finally transfer the funds, which has been held in a non-interest bearing checking account under the supervision of Norwesco treasurer, Mrs. Rene Maddock of Des Plaines.

Mrs. Rene Trevor, League of Women Voters president and a Norwesco member serving on the center advisory committee, answered a barrage of questions about how the funds will be used before the crucial vote.

The burden of argument against transfering the funds was borne by Reuben Conrad, a High School Dist. 214 teacher, and Mrs. James Gawne of Prospect Heights.

Mrs. Gawne charged that the advisory committee, which includes elected representatives from Norwesco and two other local opportunity councils — Schaumburg and Palatine's Community Effort Organization — is improperly constituted.

Conrad said he was also worried about the advisory committee representation.

"WE ARE NOT sure right now if they have a place to put the money. I don't even know if they have a checking account," Conrad commented.

Other Norwesco members questioned the right of the Opportunity Center to receive money from the Hike for the Hungry.

Mrs. Amado Garcia, Norwesco secretary, commented pointedly, "We understood that the Hunger Hike money was to be used to feed the hungry," and asked if the center money from the hike will go for staff salaries.

Center director Don Maklonado told Mrs. Garcia that Hunger Hike planners had chosen to give a third of the funds they raised to the Opportunity Center after being given a full explanation of the center's services to poor people.

AN ECUADOR farm training project, also aimed at improving people's capabilities — instead of just feeding the poor, will get another third of the Hike for the Hungry funds.

Mrs. Trevor explained that the money held by Norwesco will be used by the opportunity center for its services to low-income families in the Northwest suburbs.

The center, located in Rolling Meadows, offers a variety of self-help services — literacy classes, adult basic education, consumer education, sewing classes, a medical referral service and free legal aid.

The center budget for the current year will be $115,287.

Of this, $63,432 is expected to come from a federal grant from the U. S. Office of Economic Opportunity. Local cash contributions, including the $5,400 held by Norwesco, must provide $24,000 for the center's operation this year while another $27,000 of the budget will come from in-kind contributions in the form of donated labor and goods.

The local money will support one professional social worker and a clerk and pay the center's rent.

Correction

An earlier Paddock Publications report of the Norwesco meeting incorrectly reported that Norwesco had been holding $54,000 donated by community groups for the Northwest Opportunity Center's use. The amount held was $5,400. We regret the error.

Hospital Adds Cobalt Treatment Unit

Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights recently installed a new cobalt treatment machine to provide controlled, deep radiation therapy for cancer patients.

The unit, put into operation Monday, is housed in a room with four-foot walls and ceiling and floor made of cement containing two layers of lead shielding.

Built-in safety factors include a "fail safe" shut-off control which assures radiation stoppage in event of an electrical failure. The unit has a two-ton head which houses a piece of cobalt that is about two centimeters square. The head provides a shield of lead and uranium to eliminate stray radiation, and elaborate lead and uranium controls to regulate the desired beams of radiation.

ABOUT 95 per cent of the patients who will be treated by the cobalt unit will be cancer patients. Dr. Constantine Soter, radiologist at Northwest, said.

"Cobalt treatment can be used on cancer patients in conjunction with or without an operation," Dr. Soter said. The treatment is most often used for patients with deep-seated cancers in the lungs, brain and other areas of the body, he said.

Advance planning was partially responsible for the hospital being able to offer the new treatment. When the new wing to the hospital was constructed in 1965, it included a special room to house the unit.

"Actually, the room is more expensive than the unit," Dr. Soter said. The unit was ordered soon after construction of the room. "If we were to order one now, it would take two to three years for delivery," he said.

EMPLOYEES wear badges which indicate if they are reaching a level of dangerous radiation exposure. Dr. Soter said department employees also undergo regular checks for overexposure.

Gamma rays are released from radioactive cobalt in the unit in a controlled beam to destroy undesirable tissue. The rays can be controlled to cover a limited area through the use of shielding blocks and wedges.

A normal course of treatment occurs once a day five days a week, for four to six weeks. Each exposure of the patient to the rays takes a few minutes. During the treatment, the nondirected radiation emanating from the unit is minimal and is not dangerous to the patient.

FACILITIES include an intercom so that the therapist can talk with the patient during treatment. Therapists position the patient, under the unit, then leave the room to operate a control panel in a radiation-safe hallway.

The control panel includes a timing device which turns the unit on and off and a light system which turns on a red light over the door to the room to warn employees to stay out. The room also has a safety window which allows the therapist to watch the patient but protects the therapist from radiation.

The Cobalt 60 machine has been added to the two other nuclear devices at the radiology and nuclear medicine department of the hospital and cost about $50,000.

Research as early as 1951 proved that radioactive cobalt is an effective way to treat many tumors. Cobalt exposure provides a greater depth of penetration, better systemic and organic tolerance, and creates less effects on the skin than other radioactive materials.

In the Chicago area, Northwest Community Hospital's cobalt unit is the first one west of Lutheran General Hospital, Des Plaines. The primary advantage will be its proximity to residents in northwest Cook and western Lake counties.

1,100 Teacher Slots Available in Suburbs

About 1,100 teaching positions in suburban schools are available for the 1969-70 school year, Ray Wehmhoefer, director of teacher placement for Cook County schools, reported today.

"These vacancies represent 5 per cent of the number of jobs that we expect to list before school starts next fall. About 20 per cent of our teachers change jobs or retire each year," Wehmhoefer said.

WITH 54 per cent of the elementary and 75 per cent of the high school districts reporting, he said, teacher shortages are the highest in these areas: English, special education (teaching the handicapped), science, mathematics, industrial arts and girls' physical education.

Wehmhoefer urged potential teacher candidates to visit the placement bureau in Room 407, Chicago Civic Center, or call 321-7606 or 7610 for application information. No fee is charged.

There will be a vehicle inspection, safety check and a list of driving skills for the Explorer drivers. Explorers who do not have drivers licenses will serve as team navigators and observers.

Sacred Heart Asks Help

by MARY SCHLOTT

Sacred Heart of Mary High School in Rolling Meadows is going to the community for help in meeting its budget deficit for the current year.

Even the school's first-year typing students are carrying a share of the solicitation project. The neophyte typists are drafting individual letters to 500 area business and industrial leaders.

"It's a mammoth typing job, and a hard one for someone who is inexperienced," business manager Donald Stoegbauer pointed out. "I give them a lot of credit."

MERCHANTS IN Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Palatine and Mount Prospect are being solicited for patron contributions for the school's Fine Arts Festival, scheduled for May 18. The school hopes to raise $3,000 from the festival — and as much more as it can from the industrial contributions to make a dent in the $45,000 deficit Sacred Heart projects for the current year, Stoegbauer said.

Sister Columba principal, is candid about the school's financial needs in the letter to local industrialists. "We are faced with a serious financial problem which could very well jeopardize our plans for the future and threaten our very existence," she says.

"CURRENT INCOME (tuition) is not sufficient to meet current obligations — nor would a substantial increase in tuition solve this problem. It is a known fact that tuition in any school does not meet the total financial obligation and, therefore, it is essential to seek other sources of income," she said.

Though the letters don't mention it, all donations to the Sacred Heart fund are tax deductible, Stoegbauer says.

Whatever deficit remains after contributions will have to be covered by the Religious of the Sacred Heart of Mary, the order which provides 16 sisters to help staff the private girls' school.

PRACTICE ISN'T the only goal of Sacred Heart of Mary High School typing students Marie Rafols and Jeanne Dolson. Every first-year typing student in the school has pitched in to type 500 individually-prepared solicitation letters to suburban Northwest industrial leaders.

Dunton Mixup Beneficial

by JOAN KLUSMANN

"Our third-graders play better baseball than a lot of the other fourth-grade kids." Boys in a Dunton School class for 8- and 9-year-olds mix pride and protectiveness in their voices when they talk about younger members of the group.

There are several classes in Dist. 25 where children of different grades learn together. The mixed groups are established when about a dozen students in two successive grades are "left over" after classroom allotments are made.

Putting the kids together eliminates overcrowding in other rooms.

THE ATMOSPHERE in the Dunton class is informal, busy and cheerful. Three third-grade girls put down their reading workbooks and decide they would like to do artwork in seclusion. They simply push their desks into a corner and talk quietly while they use their crayons.

Fourth-graders, arranging a hundred strips containing facts on Switzerland into proper order for a composition, take time out to create designs with colored blocks.

The kids like being together. One thoughtful girl explained, "I have to set a good example for the younger ones and it helps me be more responsible." Older boys say, "The third-graders look up to us and they are great to play ball with."

The third-graders grin and say they feel sort of special being with the older students.

THEY ALL agree they have more time to do things "on their own" as their teacher must spend time working individually with students working on other assignments.

The teacher, Mrs. Cathy Hall, is as enthusiastic about the set-up as the kids are. An energetic woman interested in trying new things, she is completing her first year with a mixed grouping. She has six years of prior experience in regular elementary grades.

They can sense when it is necessary to follow rules. They are trusted to a certain extent and know reasons why they can or cannot be free."

While the children read and do arithmetic at their own levels, they often get

KIDS OFTEN GO OFF into a corner for private study in mixed classrooms. Chris Caldwell (left) a student in an Olive School third and fourth grade class, arranges attribute blocks while Paul Contino, Sam DeMarie and Greg Weir cover their eyes.

She divides classroom time into huge chunks within which the students can progress in different subjects at their own speeds.

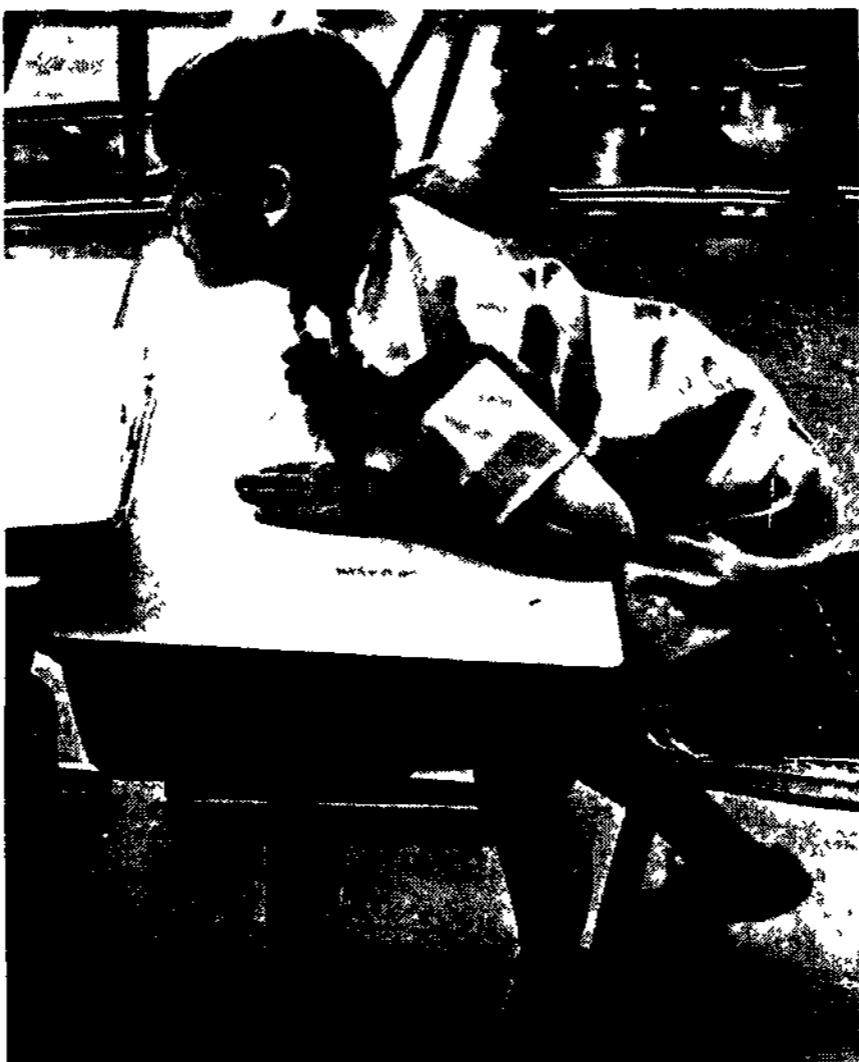

"Formerly I worked with reading from 9 to 10 a.m. and then all the children started arithmetic together. This year I set the whole morning for certain subjects and they can switch from one to the other when they are ready."

SHE HAS FOUND that during a week, students will cover all the material she expects them to do even though they may spend more time one or two days with certain projects.

"I have very little difficulty getting assignments in from this class," she says.

When Mrs. Hall received the combined classroom assignment, she asked for "good, average kids who tend to be co-operative." The spirit of co-operation has lasted.

"Since they are given certain freedom, BETWEEN THIRD and fourth grade fourth grader Penny Hart (not pictured there is help and affection. Third grader Laura Piczko checks with problem.

together for sessions relating to biology or chemistry and have done some social studies work as a team.

Dr. Bernard Spodek, consultant for the multi-age program planned for Olive School in September, considers placing children from different grades together a vehicle for helping educators give special attention to each child.

MRS. HALL agrees "The classroom set-up forces a teacher to do more individual work." She also admits that her classroom is louder than most but calls it "constructive noise" which doesn't interfere with student learning.

The layout of the Olive room for first, second and third graders will be different than in present classrooms.

Certain areas will be set aside for work on science, math or drama projects.

To a certain extent, the kids at Dunton can create a similar atmosphere by pulling desks about and retreating to corners.

Math Class Makes Movie On Central

by GERRY DE ZONNA

"The Rise and Fall of Central School" is not an account of a revolutionary student power movement in the suburban area.

"It's the title for a film about Mount Prospect's Central School and the teachers and students who are the old building's heartbeat."

The film is a student project for an eighth grade honors math class.

George Bookless, whose students are making the film, assigned the project because "we were moving so rapidly through our math textbook and I needed a project to supplement the course."

"So, I decided that a project in film production could be tied in with mathematics," explained Bookless, "and yet offer the students some background in a subject that's not usually included in a junior high school curriculum."

THE FILM, which will run approximately five minutes, is being made from a series of still pictures and animations. The soundtrack for the film will be provided by a tape recorded narration.

Before any of the actual work began on the film, Bookless tied the movie project into the math class by discussing the mathematical settings for lens apertures, film and shutter speeds, and depth of field.

"Since the film was going to be made from a series of still pictures, the students had to become familiar with operating a camera," explained Bookless, who spent two years with the Peace Corps in Nigeria working with educational television and film production.

In preparation for the filming, the students have been taking pictures of the building and its classrooms, teachers, student, and the various activities at the school.

SOME OF THE pictures have been staged to produce a desired effect, while others are candid shots. Also, members of the class are drawing cartoons and animated characters to supplement the still pictures.

One technique used in the film is picture and dialogue contradiction. At times the accompanying narration is a direct contradiction of the picture shown on the screen.

Parts of the film take a swipe at the old school building. The narrator is explaining how wonderful the classrooms and the facilities are, while the pictures shown on the screen are of classrooms equipped with cracks and falling plaster.

The students tease the faculty by criticizing the teacher's fashions as Principal John Gatto appears on the screen in a basketball uniform. Or there is a comment on strict student-teacher discipline as one student is shown playing jokes on a teacher behind her back.

"THE STUDENTS are handling every phase of the production by themselves," explained Bookless. "They've taken all the still pictures, written the script, and set the general theme for the film. I've only been developing the still pictures for them since I have my own darkroom, and occasionally advising them on how to handle a certain sequence or develop a technique."

The film is giving the students an opportunity to voice their own opinions, develop their skills in working with movie cameras and equipment, and stimulate their creativity and innovation.

"I expect that the total cost of the film will be about $25," said Bookless. "Working with still pictures and supplementary animation is low cost, and yet provides the students with a variety of skills with which to work."

Using still photos, the camera can zoom in and out on various pictures for a desired effect, caricatures can be superimposed, and special effects can be created at little expense and complication.

"THE STUDENTS are surprisingly very interested in the project," said Bookless. "Their attention span hasn't been exhausted. The girls are equally as involved in the film. One of the best photographers is one of the girls in the class."

Bookless has been keeping the interest in the film by introducing a new technique or developing the pictures weekly and distributing them at intervals, so that the students can see a finished product and learn from their mistakes.

The project is also a pilot study to determine how successful or disastrous film making projects in junior high school could be. Other schools are interested in making their own films, and the administration at Central School has toyed with the idea for some time.

"OUR PROJECT is sort of a pilot study or advance work on possible future projects in film production on the junior high school level," Bookless said.

The film, once it is completed, will be shown to the class and possibly to all the bly.

"I think that this project will provide a good opportunity for students and teachers to see exactly how much can be done on a low cost budget in film production," concluded Bookless.

America's Religions

Despite Bitter Hardship, Mormons Endured

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer
One in a Series

From a tiny, persecuted sect to a world-wide denomination with 2 million members is a long way to go in 138 years. The Mormons have done it, and are still going strong.

The most distinctive of the numerous religious movements which had their inception in America, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, better known as the LDS Church or simply as the Mormon Church, has survived incredible hardships to attain its present strong position.

Its history begins with a farm boy named Joseph Smith Jr., who lived near the village of Palmyra, N.Y., in the early 19th century. He was strongly affected by revival meetings to which his mother took him, but did not join a church because he was confused by the great variety of doctrines that were being stridently proclaimed by various Protestant denominations jostling for converts in frontier communities. When he was 4 years old, Smith began to have religious visions. In these visions, he said, he was visited by an angel named Moroni, who had been chosen to receive a revelation that would restore the true Gospel.

Smith said the angel eventually led him to a secret cache in a hillside where he found a box full of golden plates left there by an ancient prophet. From these plates, he said, he obtained the text of the Book of Mormon, which he published in 1829.

Latter-day Saints regard the Book of Mormon as being equal to, "supporting but not supplanting," the Bible. It tells of a lost tribe of Israelites who migrated to America about 600 B.C. and became the ancestors of American Indians.

After his resurrection, Christ came to America to visit these people and establish his church among them. Members of the original church were wiped out in a tribal war in 385 A.D., after the last surviving prophet had hidden the golden plates on which their history is recorded.

The book ends with a prophecy that the true church of Christ someday would be restored in America by a group of "Latter-day Saints."

In 1830, Smith and his followers established the Church of Latter-day Saints at Fayette, N. Y., the new movement immediately ran into strong opposition, and in 1831 the Mormons left New York for Kirtland, Ohio.

They also founded a community at Independence, Mo. Again they came under persecution, and again they moved, this time to establish a new settlement at Nauvoo, Ill. Reports that polygamy was being practiced inflamed the emotions of frontier Protestants, who felt that Christian love need not extend to anyone who trifled with the institution of monogamy.

The Illinois militia was sent into Nauvoo, Joseph Smith was arrested and on the night of June 27, 1844, the militia stood by and allowed a mob to storm the jail and lynch him.

The mantle of the martyred prophet passed to Brigham Young, a Vermont housepainter who proved to be one of the greatest leaders ever produced on the American frontier. He decided that the only way the Mormons could avoid persecution was to move to a land so bleak and unpromising that no one else would want it. He found what he was looking for in the valley of the Great Salt Lake in Utah

(then a part of Mexico) and in 1847 he led the first Mormon pioneers on one of history's most grueling treks across desert and wilderness. Thousands walked every foot of the way, pushing their meager belongings in handcarts. Hundreds died along the way, but the hardy survivors who finally made it to Utah proceeded to turn an inhospitable desert into one of the most fertile, prosperous and beautiful parts of America.

Persecution of the Mormons did not end with the move to Utah. After the United States took Utah from Mexico in 1848, the government sent troops into Utah to depose Young as governor and put a stop to the practice of polygamy.

The civil war gave them some respite, but by 1877, anti-Mormon bigots were in action again, and Congress passed a law (which, incredibly, was upheld by the Supreme Court) denying Mormons the right to vote.

In 1890, the church outlawed the practice of polygamy, which appeased the guardians of public morality in Washington, and in 1896 Utah was finally admitted to the union as a state.

Because polygamy has played such a conspicuous part in Mormon history, it needs to be emphasized that only a very small percentage of Mormon families ever practiced plural marriage and their motives were not sexual lust but strong religious convictions.

One of the distinctive Mormon doctrines is that the future life in heaven will be a bodily one, including marriage and procreation of children. Only those who have entered into a "celestial marriage" while on earth can anticipate complete bliss in heaven.

To a Mormon woman, in a frontier community where women greatly outnumbered men, plural marriage was infinitely preferable to the prospect of spinsterhood throughout eternity.

In many respects, the Mormon faith resembles the theology of any fundamentalist Protestant denomination. But there are distinctive additions, besides "celestial marriage." They are derived from the "Book of Doctrine and Covenants" and "the Pearl of Great Price."

Mormons believe that God has a flesh-and-bones body. They practice baptism-by-proxy for the salvation of the dead.

And they hold that all human beings had a previous life in the spirit world before they were born into this one.

A corollary of the later doctrine—which has been very embarrassing to the presidential ambitions of Mormon George Romney—is that Negroes are born with black skins because of divine displeasure with their conduct in the life-before-birth. Thus, while Negroes are eligible for membership in the LDS church, they are barred from the Mormon priesthood, which is otherwise open to all males.

Mormons believe that revelation did not end with the Bible or even with the writings of Joseph Smith, but still goes on. The president of the church is considered "the mouthpiece of God" through whom new revelations come. Many progressive Mormons have been hoping that the current president, 94-year-old David McKay, will have a revelation modifying the teaching about Negroes, but President McKay has so far stood firm on the traditional doctrine.

Wild stories circulate about the enormous holdings of the LDS church in various U.S. corporations. They are untrue. The church does have an income of about $100 million a year, but it comes mostly from the offerings of its members, who are enjoined by church law to tithe.

The money is spent as fast as it comes in, with the largest share going into missions, education and youth programs. About 12,000 Mormon missionaries are now at work on every continent, and their diligent efforts net about 180,000 converts a year. Young Mormons are expected to contribute two years of voluntary service as missionaries, at their own expense.

In addition to the main LDS church, which has its headquarters in Salt Lake City, there are four other Mormon bodies, testimony to long-ago schisms. Largest of these is the Reorganized Church of Latter-day Saints, with headquarters at Independence, Mo. It has about 170,000 members. It never practiced polygamy, and it also does not accept the teaching that Negroes are under a divine curse. None of the other groups has more than 5,000 members.

Mormons observe strict rules of personal morality. They disapprove of tea, coffee, tobacco, alcohol, birth control and divorce.

What's Behind the ABM Flap?

by DONALD MAY

WASHINGTON (UPI)—In November, 1968, the "strategic balance" of U.S.-Soviet nuclear weapons was, from the Pentagon's point of view, comfortable.

Now, as Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird describes it to Congress, the picture is suddenly ominous.

What actually has changed?

On election day, Nov. 7, 1968, this was the way the Pentagon sized up the balance:

The Soviet Union—like the United States—appeared to be protecting its deterrent. It did not seem to be reaching for a "first strike" weapons system—a system that could mount a successful surprise attack and destroy U.S. power to retaliate.

Russia was rapidly catching up with the United States in number of intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM) launchers. But the expectation was that once it caught up, it would slow down.

Most Soviet ICBMs were SS 11's, a roughly one megaton weapon, in many ways similar to the U.S. Minuteman ICBM but not highly accurate. Because of this the SS 11 was considered good for destroying cities but not very good for destroying Minutemen in their underground silos, which could absorb almost a direct hit.

This was consistent with the theory that the Soviets were concentrating on their deterrent—the ability to destroy enemy cities if their own country were attacked.

The Russians were behind in nuclear bombers and in nuclear missile submarines. Theoretically they could launch 45 missiles from submarines, compared with 656 for the United States. Actually, the Russians were just learning the art. Mostly their missile subs stayed close to home.

The Soviets had experimented with a fractional orbital bombardment system (FOBS), which seemed a surprise attack weapon. But the United States was building radars to reduce this surprise.

Most importantly, U.S. intelligence did not then see signs of any really threatening Soviet development such as increased missile accuracy or big increases in the numbers or power of warheads which could threaten U.S. Minutemen.

Former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara had calculated that if Russia's nuclear capability reached its "highest expected point" in 1972, and if Russia then launched everything against U.S. Minutemen, half of the U.S. offensive forces would survive.

He also figured that of the surviving U.S. weapons three fourths would penetrate Soviet A-bomb ballistic missiles.

ABM's, that 100 million Soviets would be killed and that three-fourths of Soviet industry would be destroyed. McNamara considered this a very ample deterrent.

But even if Russia topped these expectations, the United States had a series of other options. It could step up existing plans for multiple warheads, put Minutemen in superhard silos, add more Minutemen, build better land and submarine-based missiles. Or it could protect its Minutemen with an ABM system.

In November, 1968, the assessment was that these options could stay on the shelf a while longer.

In December two pieces of intelligence information came in:

1. The Soviet Union was installing big-payload missiles, SS 9's, faster than expected. At last report 200 SS 9's had been installed.

2. It was estimated that Russia was capable of building 12 of its new "Polaris-type" submarines a year, and was actually building them at a rate of 7 to 9 a year.

This was "raw" intelligence. As so often happens, it took many weeks to evaluate it. Because of the delay, the final defense posture statement of Secretary Clark Clifford, published Jan. 15, 1969, contained only generalized references to the new information.

After President Nixon's inauguration Jan. 20 the new administration began an intensive study of the nuclear balance, particularly the ABM issue. By this time the intelligence was more firm. The question was: What did it mean?

This question was considered by Pentagon nuclear experts who stayed on in the new administration as well as by Laird and his deputy, David Packard. Their thinking followed these lines:

The Soviet Union's deployment of the SS 9 looked outright irrational. The rocket, which first appeared in 1966, is somewhat similar to the Titan II, which is regarded as semi-obsolete although there still are 48 of them in the U.S. missile force.

The SS 9 can carry warheads ranging from 12 to 25 megatons. There are only 20 or 25 U.S. cities worth hitting with an SS 9. Most of its megatonage would be wasted on smaller cities.

If the Russians wanted to be sure they could knock out these 25 U.S. cities, they might build 50 or 100 SS 9's. Even 150 SS 9's probably would not cause a change in U.S. policy. But 200, with deployment continuing, seemed inconceivable. Officials concluded that someone's thinking was off—either theirs or the Russians.

Could the SS 9's be aimed at Communist China, whose relations with Russia have continued to deteriorate in recent years? Officials said the basic argument still applies—the Soviet Union doesn't need 200 of the missiles to knock out all the targets worthy of its attention in the United States and China combined.

Could it be, officials asked, that Soviet generals simply weren't using common sense? Their answer was yes. But they also concluded that no U.S. administration could make such an assumption and live with it. There would be history to answer to.

Actually, 200 Soviet SS 9's are not considered catastrophic to U.S. security. Not even 300. Three hundred such missiles could stand on 80 or 90 per cent chance of knocking out 300 of this country's 1,000 Minutemen.

The surviving Minutemen, plus bombers and plus polaris missiles still could devastate Russia. On top of this, the United States will soon be installing multiple warheads on its land and sea missiles.

What worried U.S. officials was the possibility that in the next several years the Russians might build hundreds more SS 9's, equip them with multiple warheads and improve their inherent accuracy even more.

One result of that could be 400 SS 9's containing a total of 1,200 warheads, each aimed at a Minuteman. It was this possibility years from now which led the administration to decide on a step-by-step ABM system designed to protect the Minutemen as the Soviet threat emerges.

What about the U.S. bombers and Polaris? The Pentagon has always said that either force could devastate Russia; that each therefore is a separate deterrent. Why then worry unduly about losing the Minutemen?

The answer reached by the administration study was that the United States needs three separate deterrents. Any of them could somehow fail and each is subject to erosion by Soviet developments. Officials reasoned this way:

—The U.S. bomber force is threatened by Russia's emerging missile submarines. The Strategic Air Command (SAC) says it needs 15 minutes warning to get its bombers off the ground. Actually it can shave off some time. But depending on where a Soviet submarine launches its missiles, and depending on the location of SAC bases, it might have no more than five minutes warning in some cases. For this reason, one option included in the administration's proposed ABM system is to install radars and missiles to intercept submarine-launched missiles during the critical first few minutes while the bombers are taking off.

—The Polaris force now looks "good as gold" to officials. But officials have evidence of some Soviet developments which, if successfully carried farther, could someday threaten it.

The question of whether Russia has indeed chosen the "first strike" road is still wide open as far as most officials are concerned, despite some administration rhetoric in the heat of congressional hearings.

My Little Car is Bigger Than Yours!

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—American auto makers are finally moving into the small car field to challenge the little foreign imports that have become so popular in this country.

Well, lots of luck, Detroit! You're going to need it.

I'm sure the U.S. manufacturers will be able to compete with the foreign car companies. The big question is whether they will be able to compete with their own advertising agencies.

A small car has three advantages over a big car: It costs less to buy, it costs less to operate and it is easier to park. In short, it's small.

Ford's new Maverick coming out this month and the other domestic models to be introduced next year presumably will have these qualities. At first.

But what happens after they are all on the market and their advertising agencies take over?

Just as sure as God makes little green apples, one of the companies will start claiming that its small car is bigger than the other small cars.

"The Tiny Tim is half an inch longer than any other car in the small car field," the ads will say.

And just as sure as it rains in Indianapolis in the summertime, the other companies will start making their small cars one inch longer to frustrate their rival's advertising agency.

Before long, all of the American small cars will have inched up to the size that the American "compacts" were when they were first introduced.

And then, just as sure as it snows in Minneapolis in the wintertime, the horsepower escalation will begin.

"The Tiny Tim is the only car in the small car field that offers an eight-cylinder, 360-horsepower motor," the ads will say.

And just as sure as there are Disneyland, a Dr. Seuss and a Mother Goose nursery rhyme, the ad agencies for the other companies will insist that their clients start installing even more powerful motors in their cars.

Then will come the expansion of seating capacity, trunk space and all the other elephantine features so dear to the hearts of Madison Avenue.

Within a few years, if Detroit isn't careful, the foreign imports will have the small car market all to themselves again.

For just as sure as God makes little green apples, advertising agencies turn them into big red ones.

Will Chi Chi and An An Find Happiness?

by WILBORN HAMPTON

LONDON (UPI)—They lie in great furry heaps like two giant teddy bears.

Presently, they lurch up and begin to pace slowly back and forth occasionally casting disinterested glances at one another, oblivious to the fact that their time together is nearly spent and that zoologists around the world follow their every move. They are Chi Chi and An An, the giant pandas.

They likely will never see another of their kind as long as they live.

They are together now in a final attempt by the London and Moscow zoos to mate the only two giant pandas outside China. Unless their acquaintanceship blossoms into romance soon, they will be parted for good.

An An, the Moscow Zoo's male, has been in London since August on a monthly lease which is subject to monthly renewal or foreclosure by the Soviet Union.

Zoologists are hopeful that Chi Chi, the London Zoo's female, will soon come into a spring season during which she will be receptive to An An. But their behavior toward each other is disconcerting and there are growing fears that the mating will not take place.

The two beasts live in adjoining paddocks, sloped knolls with tufts of grass and a wire fence down the middle. Doors which join the paddocks stand open at either end. Two bare trees stand in one side for the giant pandas to lie on.

Like any other animal in a zoo, they occupy most of their time pacing. Chi Chi walks at the back of one paddock and An

An along the cement drainage walkway at the front of the other.

At one point, An An, appreciably the larger of the two, saunters into Chi Chi's side. She doesn't look at him. He ambles slowly toward her. An An gets about five yards from her when Chi Chi eyes him, then turns and walks in the opposite direction. An An follows, but without quickening his pace.

After following her from one paddock to the other, he stops, looks at a row of human onlookers at the fence and lies down on the logs.

The giant pandas still exist in Szechwan Province of China and there are specimens in zoos in Peking, Shanghai, Nanking, Canton and in Pyongyang, North Korea.

Giant pandas number in the hundreds. The political climate of the world being what it is, it is unlikely the West will see another of these beautiful creatures for some time.

Red China has even refused to disclose any information about the giant panda's habits.

During the unsuccessful first attempt to mate Chi Chi and An An in Moscow in 1966-67, both Soviet and British zoologists wrote to the Peking Zoo for information about mating habits. Red China never replied.

Five Invationals on Track Schedule

Kickin' It Around

by BOB FRISK
Sports Editor

SHOULD A CONFERENCE track meet be a means to an end, or is it a means within itself?

It has always amazed us that a majority of conferences in the Chicago area hold their track championships after the state finals in Champaign.

The schedule this spring shows the state track and field finals on Friday and Saturday, May 16-17, and the Mid-Suburban League finals on Saturday, May 24.

An inference to be drawn from this scheduling is that the conference meet, not the district or the state, is the more important.

Somebody has to be kidding. There may be those who believe the conference meet is more important, but the group does not include the athletes themselves.

Rarely do individual efforts at conference meets equal those posted two weeks earlier at district competition. The athlete arrives at his peak, generally speaking, for the district or the state, and then tapers off, if for no other reason than that he's had it emotionally.

The emotional aspect has to be considered. A youngster battles to qualify for the state, matches his talents with the finest school boy performers at the state competition, and then has to stay keyed up for the conference. It's not easy for obvious reasons.

There has always been the thought here that the time for the conference meet is one week in advance of the district, for the reason that this will help prepare the athletes for the more important state competition.

Some leagues try to fit in their division meets the week between the district and state. Coming off the district and looking forward to the state, some of the better athletes just are unable to find sufficient challenge to respond.

Actually, the track season in Illinois is too short and should be lengthened, not by late league meets, but by pushing the state finals back to the first weekend in June or last weekend in May.

The state baseball tournament this spring will be held on June 5-6 in Peoria, but we're settling the track title on May 17.

If you look at it strictly by the calendar, we have an outdoor season scarcely seven weeks in length and unusual is the spring when more than two of those weeks provide favorable weather. Approximately one half of the total rainfall in this region is accumulated during the month of May.

California, which enjoys good weather throughout the spring, has an outdoor season of interminable length, holds its state meet in early June, fully two weeks later than Illinois.

There has been the problem of schools closing earlier in the southern part of the state, but we'd have to believe that Southern Illinois, so strong in recent years in track, would favor a later state competition.

What would be the ideal setup? If we had an official voice in the matter and could manipulate the schedules, we'd set the state finals this year at least one week later on Friday and Saturday, May 23-24.

The conference meets could be held on May 9-10, the districts on May 16-17.

And while we're juggling the schedule, we would also favor separating the varsity and frosh-soph divisions in the conference meet.

The operation of an eight, nine or ten-school track meet in two divisions on the same day, a total of 230 events, becomes confusing to the spectator and it fatigues the officials.

Hold the varsity end of the conference meet at the early date suggested and the frosh-soph division during the week following the state finals.

It's easy to sit here behind the typewriter and offer suggestions without taking into consideration what may be many obvious drawbacks in the plans.

But it can't be disputed that we're barely getting warmed up in our Illinois schoolboy track and field season when they're clamoring to bring down the curtain.

Just how difficult would it be to extend the season a week, or two weeks?

Arlington High product Steve Allen remains in the battle for the starting quarterback slot at the University of Illinois although he lost some ground after a lengthy scrimmaging session last Saturday. Observers feel that unless Steve shows more of a "take charge" role, he'll be more valuable to the team in the defensive secondary. Six candidates are battling for the quarterback position.

Ten Years Ago...

Arlington won the Lake Shore track and field meet with Palatine fourth. Ken Gordon of Palatine was a double winner with victories over the high hurdles (15.4) and lows (20.5). Other area winners were Arlington's Rich Bader in the 100 yard dash (10.3), Chuck Phelan in the 800 (2:05.5), George Allen in the pole vault (11-0), and the mile relay team in 3:31.6. Dick Welty covered 440 yards in 52 flat for another Palatine first. Gene Dahlquist fired a two-hitter as Arlington blanked Riverside, 3-0, and Jack Nelson, Don White, and Al Gephart combined for Palatine to blank Grayslake, 5-0.

Six Area Schools Vie In Saturday Headliners

The area's track and field competitors will be up against some of the finest in the Chicagoland area in five invitational track meets scheduled for Saturday.

Arlington and Palatine will take part in the Lake Shore Invitational, Elk Grove will compete in the Riverside-Brookfield Relays, Forest View will be in the Lake Forest Relays, St. Viator will run in the St. Joseph's Relays and Wheeling will compete in the Bloom Invitational.

One dual meet is scheduled for Saturday — Hersey at Elmwood Park.

LAKE SHORE

The Lake Shore Invitational Track Meet has been dominated by red — not Stalin's red, but instead the red of Arlington and Palatine.

Palatine won the Lake Shore Invitational each year from 1963-67 and Arlington won the meet last year. And both are favored this year.

The 1968 Lake Shore Invitational will be held on Arlington's track, starting at 12:30 p.m.

Joining Arlington and Palatine in the meet will be Waukegan, Highland Park, Glenbrook North, North Chicago, Niles East and Libertyville. Highland Park should be the main threat to Arlington-Palatine dominance.

The meet will display a number of top-notch performers and a few records could fall.

Arlington's Dave Steels set a meet record of 14.5 in the 120-yard high hurdles last year and he has already matched that time this season.

Paul Tollefson of Arlington has a good chance of beating the shot put record of 54 feet 6 1/2 inches. Tollefson has heaved the shot 57 feet this season.

When Arlington and Palatine meet in the 800-yard relay event, the record is sure to fall. The record is 1:32.5 and Arlington has a 1:31.6 and Palatine a 1:31.8 to their credit this year.

The two-mile run should be a highly contested event with three local runners with six seconds of each other in times this campaign. Dave Marzalek has a 9:49.8, Scott Butler a 9:51.1 and Paul Davenport of Palatine a 9:55.5.

Jim Verburg of Palatine has a good shot in winning the 100-yard dash (he has a 10.1 this year) and in the 220-yard dash Verburg has a 21.6 on a straight-away and a 22.9 on a curve. Todd Somers has run the 220 in 22.5 on a curve.

Phil Donahue of Palatine and Joe Hooker of Arlington should be locked in an interesting dual in the 880-yard run. Donahue has run the 880 in 1:59.1 and Hooker has completed the distance in 1:59.9.

Interesting match-ups fill up the agenda such as in the 440-yard dash with Arlington's Mike Dority (who has a 50.8) and Palatine's Don Giancaspro (who has a 51.2) and Steele and Howard Kreutzinger in the 160-yard low hurdles. Steele owns the meet record with a 19.8 (he has a 20.0 this season) and Kreutzinger has run the lows in 20.4.

Mark Visk of Palatine has far and away the best time in the mile with a 4:19.5 (he had a 4:18.9 indoors). Battling for probably a second place finish will be Tom Swanson who has a 4:27.2, Scott Butler with a 4:31.4 and Fred Miller of Palatine with a 4:39.

In the long jump Somers has a 20-8 and Sam Wit has a 20-7 for Arlington; in the pole vault Arlington's Gary Fagerson has a 13-4 and Fred Harth a 13-0; and in the discus Henry Schniepp of Palatine has a contending 149-5. Arlington appears to have the best mile relay team.

In the frosh-soph division, Waukegan should be rated as the favorite.

In the varsity division it seems that the winner will either be Arlington and Palatine. The red should make the rest of the field feel blue.

RIVERSIDE RELAYS

Guarded optimism could be the way to describe Coach Rich Bader's feelings prior to sending his Elk Grove track team up against seven other schools at the third annual Riverside-Brookfield Relays.

The Grenadiers, who will go into action at noon this Saturday, have improved each year they've entered. In 1967 they took fifth (43 points) with six teams entered, and last year they finished third (69).

Going up against the Grove will be Oak Lawn, Joliet East, Crown, Holy Cross, Kaneland, Benet and the hosting Bulldogs.

"I don't know how we're going to do," said Grove Coach Rich Bader. "I really don't know too much about those teams. Riverside will definitely be the team to beat, no doubt about it."

The last two years the Bulldogs have won pretty easily. In '67 they registered 113 points and in '68 they chalked up 80 1/2.

Bader promised that there would be some shuffling with the relay participations, especially if Bob Texidor and Mike Michella are in full form. If they are in good shape physically, Bader thinks the Grove has a chance to take the meet.

Bader singled out his top individuals this way:

"Willie (Wayne) will be put in the mile, he's got a good shot at winning it. It'll take around a 4:30 to win it but I think he's capable of that."

"Texidor (Pat) will be running in the hurdles and Greathouse (Mel) has a good shot at winning in the pole vault."

"We'll have a real decent mile relay," Bader added.

Last year the Grove's Jim Opt — who has graduated — was named Athlete of the Meet. He set a new meet mark in the high jump with a leap of 6-4.

Two other records set by the Grove were the frosh-soph team in the sprint medley relay (1:40.6) and the sophomore relay team in the mile (3:43.0).

Two of the more notable runners off these relay teams and now with the varsity are John Flesch and Michella.

LAKE FOREST RELAYS

The eighth annual Lake Forest Relays this Saturday could find Forest View high among the leaders, at least if last year's results are any indication.

In 1968 the Falcon varsity finished fourth (18) and the sophomores were second (38). Deerfield, which won both levels, looks a little weaker, according to Falcon coach Keith North.

However, North indicated that his team's finish would depend on the other schools entered. They are: Antioch, Barrington, Deerfield, Dundee, Glenbrook South, Greyslake, Mundelein, Niles West, Woodstock, Zion-Benton and hosting Lake Forest.

Besides the strength of the other teams, North felt that the weather and the cinder track would also play a big part in determining the winner.

"It's usually rainy and cold up there," pointed out North. "I haven't been to one yet that hasn't been that way."

He added that he couldn't tell yet just who would be in the different events for Forest View and indicated that it probably wouldn't be set until today.

The Falcons hold two records — one on the varsity and one on the sophomore level. Pat Dunegan ran the 180 low hurdles in 20.2 back in 1966 and the sophomore 800 relay team set a mark of 1:33.

Marist Triumphs

Lions in 6-2 Loss

Before the season started, one of St. Viator varsity baseball coach Pat Mahoney's major concerns — as his Lions tried for their second Chicagoland Prep League diamond title — was the hitting power of conference foe Marist.

And, as it turned out Wednesday afternoon on the Marist diamond, Mahoney's concern was justified. While his own charges were banging out seven hits good for two runs, the Marist Redskins were shelling Lion pitching for six runs on ten hits to send Viator to its second CPL defeat in three starts.

The Redskins coupled together a big three run first inning with a pair of runs in the fourth and another in the sixth for the 6-2 conquest, while the Lions answered back with single tallies in the third and fourth.

After setting the Lions down in the first, the Redskins immediately tagged Lion chucker Mark Delaney with the mound loss by chasing across three runs. The inning started when the Redskin lead-off batter reached on an error and was moved to second when the second man in the lineup drew a base on balls.

NOT THIS TIME. Wheeling's Stew Oakley missed on this attempt in the pole vault event Saturday in the Arlington Prep Track Meet but did claim a tie for fifth place at 12-6 in the varsity division. There was a three-way tie for first place. (Photo by Bob Finch)

The preliminaries are set to begin at 10:00 and the finals will take place at 1 p.m.

ST. JOSEPH RELAYS

A ten team field is entered in tomorrow's fast-growing St. Joseph Relays at St. Joseph High School in south suburban Westchester, including Coach Owen Fox's St. Viator Lion thrashers.

The Lions will be coming off some impressive efforts in Chicagoland Prep League track action, where Viator runners have established themselves as among the best. But Viator will probably have to settle for battling for the meet's second spot — though a first place finish is not impossible.

Three schools, feels Don Heldman, organizer of the Relays, will probably field the strongest entries. "I'd have to say that St. Ignatius, last year's relays and league champions, St. George, this fall's cross country champions, and our own St. Joseph team will be the three strongest teams in the meet," Heldman said.

"Last year," he added, "St. Ignatius ran away with the thing. They took first in every event."

But the Lions should be a power to contend with. In a triangular last weekend with St. George and St. Ignatius, St. Viator topped second behind the Dragons, only four points back. Leading the Lions into tomorrow's meet will be long jumper and hurdler Denny Foreman and sprinter Bob Batchelor, who set a new school 100-yard dash record last week with a 10.1 timing.

The meet is set up with six relay events and the mile run and long jump. The relays are: 440 relay, 880, mile, two mile, a sprint medley relay of two 110-yard dashes, a 220-yard dash, and 440-yard dash, and a distance medley relay of two 220's, a 440 and an 880-yard run.

"The mile run and long jump were added to give the meet a little variety," said Heldman. "The mile run is almost an institution in track meets now."

In addition to St. Viator, St. George, St. Ignatius and St. Joseph, the Relays will also host De La Salle, Marist, St. Patrick, Little Flower, Quigley South and St. Francis de Sales.

The meet gets underway at 10 a.m.

Golf Feature Set

Twelve of the finest golf squads in the suburban area will convene at the Golden Acres Country Club tomorrow at 10 a.m. for the seventh annual Lake Park Invitational Golf Tournament, one of the finest pre-district golf meets in the state.

Included in the twelve team alignment will be area representatives Arlington, Palatine and, of course, the host Lancers. The other nine squads are Barrington, Crystal Lake, Elgin Larkin, Glenbard West, Glenbrook North, Homewood-Flossmoor, Niles West, Rockford East and St. Charles.

Accordit o Lake Park golf coach Jerry Wiseman — the meet's organizer — the toughest squads in the tourney should be St. Charles, Homewood-Flossmoor, Elgin Larkin and Barrington. "The other teams haven't had much publicity this year, but they should all be pretty tough," said Wiseman, even though his Lancers are defending champions.

"We picked the best suburban teams in the area," Wiseman continued, "the teams who usually end up high in their districts. Last year most of these 12 teams either won or finished up as one of the top teams in their district."

"I read an article in one of the Springfield papers that said this tournament and one down there were probably the two best in the state of Illinois," he added.

Adding some weight to that statement is the fact that three of last year's tourney medalists are returning this season to add another trophy to their trophy cases. All totalled five medals will be awarded in the meet to individuals and two trophies will go to the top two team entries.

"Duke Anderson of Glenbard West and two of my boys, Jay Bechtold and Bill Konecne, have to be rated as looking for these gold medals. All three were medalists last year and have shot either par or sub-par rounds this season. Looking beyond that, every other medalist graduated last spring, but I know these other schools will field some strong individuals."

Carrying Arlington's banner into the meet will be freshman — Rich Marzalek, who has consistently been near par in the three meets that the Cards have competed in this year. Palatine's top hope is Mike Lamb.

"The possibility of one of these boys carding an eagle is pretty good," Wiseman believed. "Bechtold has had one this year, and we had one in the tourney last year."

Looking at the Golden Acres layout, Wiseman said that the boys will play 18 holes, with two separate groups teeing off at the same time on the front and back nine, or as he calls them, the red and white courses.

"It's not considered a long course," he added. "The red course is 3265 yards long and the white course is 3100 yards. That's a total of 6365 yards. Because of the frequency of water on the course, though, it's easy for a boy to get in trouble. But it is the kind of course where one of your short-knockers can shoot real well — it's not just for the boy who booms the ball out."

Each squad will enter five contestants, with the top four scores counting toward the team score. In case of ties for the top five medalist spots, there will be playoffs. But any team ties will stand as such.

Tee off time, again, is 10 a.m.

Lesniak's 38 Paces 'Cat Win

Wheeling's golf team opened their 1969 campaign in the proper manner Monday, nudging a visiting Maine West unit 177-179 on the Wildcats' home Chevy Chase layout.

Jay Lesniak of the hosts registered a 38 to take medalist honors. Sophomore Terry Nied and Bruce Koepfer added 45s to the 'Cats cause while a 49 by Don Russ completed the scoring.

Mike Guy also came in at 45 for Wheeling.

The Wildcats were also successful at the soph level in their inaugural match, and they too enjoyed a two-strike margin, 193-195.

Hersey Coasts

To Net Victory

Hersey netmen continued along the winning trail Wednesday, breezing past a visiting Mundelein crew 5-0 for their second straight duel victory of the young campaign.

Cosch Lother Pelstrup's Huskies swept all five faceoffs in two straight and both Mike McLean at first singles and Rick Leadley at third singles posted shutouts. Milt Chen, at second singles achieved his third straight win of the season by a 6-1, 6-0 verdict.

At doubles, Huskies Stein Ohlstrom and Tom Ruprecht were triumphant in the number one slot, 6-1 and 6-0 while Bill Hutton and Mike Dunne racked up a 6-2, 7-5 nod in the number two clash.

Hersey had equally little trouble in disposing of the Mustang sophomores by a like 5-0 score.

Grove Romps to 91-34 Track Meet

History was made last Tuesday afternoon on the Glenbard North track. The Panthers hosted the Elk Grove thinned squad and no guest ever had it so good.

The Grenadiers chalked up the most points in the history of the school as they coasted to a lopsided 91-34 victory.

Cosch Rich Bader had an enjoyable afternoon watching his boys capture 12 of the 15 firsts including two sweeps. The 12 firsts was also a new mark for the team.

The big individual winners for the Grove were Bob Bachus and Pat Texidor. Bachus won the 880 yard run with an impressive 2:00; clocking and also took the 220 dash in 24.5.

Texidor mastered both hurdles events with a 16.6 in the 120 highs and a 22.3 in the 180 lows.

Leading the sweeps were John Flesch in the 440 yard dash and Tom Glatzmayer in the discus. Flesch came from behind to edge out Mike Michella, 52-32.4. Taking third was brother Bob Flesch with a 55.2 timing.

Glatzmayer tossed the discus 121-9 and was followed by Grunninger in second with 114-7 and Bill Tews in third with 104.8.

The other firsts for the Grove came this way:

Jim Ottlinger in the two-mile (10:17.8), Wayne Wille in the mile run (4:36.2), Mark Lichter in the long jump (17-6) and Mel Greathouse in the pole vault (12-0).

This Saturday the Grenadiers will take part in the Riverside Relays along with seven other schools. The meet, which is hosted by Riverside-Brookfield High School, will begin at noon.

The Grove is now 2-1 in conference dual meets.

Lion Thinclads Cop 2nd

"I was really surprised and pleased with the kids last weekend."

So spoke St. Viator varsity track coach Owen Fox after his Lion thinclads had swept to second in a triangular meet Saturday afternoon, with St. George and St. Ignatius.

St. George took the meet honors with 56-5/6 points, followed by the Lions with 51-1/3, with St. Ignatius in third with 50-5/6 points.

"I really expected St. Ignatius to win," Fox added. "Last year they walked away with everything in the conference on the varsity level. Our kids did a fine job."

Giving the coach reason for such praise was the fact that the Lions metted six of fifteen firsts in the meet, with Denny Foreman leading the way with a pair of wins.

Foreman grabbed the blue ribbon in the long jump on a 20-1/4 effort, and then the senior Leon swept to first in the low hurdles in 22.8 seconds.

Bob Batchelor cracked the school 100-yard dash record with a clocking of 10.1 seconds, a mark that ties the best time turned in by other schools in the Paddock area.

Other Viator firsts came in the pole vault, shot put and discus. Dan Baron copped pole vault honors by propelling himself to an even 10 feet, Greg Diem heaved the shot 44-10 1/4 for first in that event, and Ed Klingberg whirled the discus 126-2 to take honors there.

A surprise for the coach was the mile run clocking turned in by freshman Sam Galioto of an even five minutes, a fine effort for any freshman. "Sam's been improving continually through the season," says Fox. "He's cut his time down by 30 seconds in the last few weeks."

The Lion frosh-soph squad also took second in the triangular, though this time St. Ignatius accomplished what it was supposed to do on the varsity level. The Wolves counted a total of 105 points, while the Lions took 30, and St. George 20.

Jayhawks Creepin' Busy

University of Kansas basketball teams have participated in 13 post-season tournaments since 1936 when the Jayhawks played in the first Olympic playoffs.

AFL's Leading Kicker

Jim Turner of the New York Jets accounted for 145 points—all on field goals and extra points—most scored by kicking in the history of the American Football League.

Sportlite

by BARRY SIGALE

I MET CAZZIE Russell on Pearl Harbor Day in 1966, when the National Basketball Association rookie was in DeKalb to watch his younger brother, Don, play for the Northern Illinois University varsity.

At that time, Cazzie was a bona fide celebrity. He paced Carver High School teams to city championships and made a ranking contender out of the University of Michigan.

Cazzie was some kind of player at Carver. Before a game he would line up at the very end of his team's line. He was the only one with a basketball. After the team circled the gym a couple of times Cazzie would pound toward the basket, go up, hesitate in mid air, continue underneath, and then, with a powerful thrust of his muscular body, stuff the ball through the net with a fury.

The pre-game play brought the house down every time and gave the team a spiritual lift. It was Cazzie at his exciting, sparking best.

Cazzie was a master of intimidation, especially in high school. He was a main cog in Carver's full court press and when he teamed (triple teamed) with six-foot, six-inch Joe Allen, who later starred at Bradley, and five-foot, seven-inch Bruce Raickett the results were devastating. I saw the three put the squeeze on Lake View High School in a playoff game in 1962 and the Indians didn't recover for two seasons.

Cazzie dipped and jiggled his way to stardom at Michigan, breaking every individual scoring mark for the Wolverines. He was named all Big Ten three years, All-American twice and player of the year in his last college-go-round in 1965.

He received the publicity a college star with superior potential often gets when he joins a pro team, and is expected to turn the club's fate around and lead them to unbounded heights.

That's when Cazzie visited Northern. When he stepped into the Huskie Fieldhouse the place was abuzz. The signature seekers flocked towards him and engulfed him in a sea of raised pencils and scorecards. His six-foot, five-inch frame stuck out like a sore thumb.

NIU's head coach, Tom Jorgensen, was Cazzie's freshman coach at Michigan. Jorgensen reflected on Cazzie's future when the big guard was a rookie on the NBA.

"He has an intense involvement with the game and he wants to be good," Jorgensen said. "Cazzie is devoted to the game. His only weakness is in his defensive play, especially in a man-to-man situation. But he's working on improving himself."

Jorgensen's foresight proved correct. Cazzie improved to the point where he superior potential. He had been pacing the New York Knicks until he suffered a broken ankle. The Knicks, this year, with Cazzie, were exciting, electric. New Yorkers poured into Madison Square Garden like they never have. When he got hurt his spirit remained with the team. They kept plugging away and, to their credit, finished third in the NBA's Eastern Division. Willis Reed, Dave DeBusschere, Walt Frazier, Bill Bradley, Dick Barnett and a hustling bench came through as a unit, pressuring for the title, falling only three games short.

Cazzie improved to the point where he could have joined Baltimore's Earl Monroe as the NBA's All-Star guards for 1968-69. But he broke his ankle at mid season and any hopes for glory were dashed.

With Cazzie healthy all season long, the Knicks might have pranced to the championship in the East, which many experts predicted they would do before the season began. No doubt Cazzie would have added some much-needed scoring punch. Overall, the Knicks finished as the fourth lowest scoring team in the whole of the NBA.

Cazzie says pro basketball is a good life. "I'm getting a wonderful opportunity to do something I love to do. It's great to get paid for it, too. This gives me a greater incentive to stay in good condition physically as well as mentally."

So Cazzie must make a "comeback" next season (his fourth) if only because he suffered that ankle break.

Cazzie the Philosopher says, "If you want something bad enough or to reach some goal you have to go out and get it." A word to the NBA wise is sufficient.

Elk Grove Golfers Win Again; 1st in MSL

Elk Grove's golfers pulled an instant replay last Wednesday afternoon at Indian Lakes Golf Course.

Playing visiting Glenbard North, the Grenadiers toured the Iroquois Trails layout in the same number of strokes as they had done in their first meet of the season — 181. And the Panthers matched the score of the Grove's opening opponent, Fenton — 183.

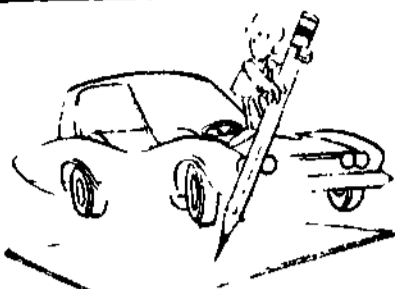

And so this marked the second straight victory for the Grenadiers and their coach, George Reat. It also marked the first win for them in Mid-Suburban League play.

Taking medalist honors for the meet was the Panthers' Chris Savaiano with a 41.

Bill Eitzenhoefer led the Grove with a 44. Then came Steve Harnish (45), Frank Schultz (46) and Larry Nelson (46).

The other scores for Glenbard were Cahrie Shirk (42), Steve Shirk (45) and Jeff Frolich (55).

NEW YORK (UPI)—Thirteen pitchers—eight for the New York Mets and five for Houston—were used in the six-hour, six-minute, 24-inning game April 15, 1968, in the Astrodome with Wade Blasingame emerging as a 1-0 winner for the Astros.

Wayside Teams Finish Campaigns

The basketball season at Our Lady of the Wayside School officially ended with the Second Annual Father and Son Basketball game held in the gym.

The "Pa's" were defeated by the 8th Grade Team, 42 to 28, despite the enthusiastic vocal support from cheerleaders composed of the "Ma's." After the game Father O'Hara awarded trophies to the 8th Grade Cheerleaders and the 8th Grade Varsity Basketball Team, which was coached by Don Campbell.

Some of the awards the team received in the past season were: 1st Place in the East Division of the Northwest Catholic Athletic Conference; 1st Place in that Conference's Tournament; 1st Place in the Maryville Sectional of the CYO; 1st Place in Arlington Heights Park District Christmas Tournament and 1st Place in the St. Viator Tournament.

The Junior Varsity Team, composed of 8th and 7th Grade players, also had an outstanding season. They won 1st Place in the East Division of their section of the Northwest Catholic Athletic Conference, 1st Place in the Conference's Tournament and were undefeated in Conference play. Their coaches were Ray Merkel and Ralph Bosch.

The 8th and 6th Grade Team also enjoyed a good season with five wins, four losses and one tie. They were coached by Tom McLaughlin.

Arlington Driver Sparkles

The Waukegan Speedway opened its asphalt era with a thundering success Saturday night as a record crowd paid a record purse on a chilly evening. Paul Heitz of Arlington Heights went home with the lion's share as he won the 3rd heat and then nosed out defending champion, Jim Cossman of Waukegan in the 30 lap feature.

A field of nearly 35 late model super stock cars filled the pits Saturday with many top names from distant tracks on hand for the opener. The huge crowd was amazed as the super stocks circled the track nearly three full seconds quicker than in years past.

Heitz by-passed a five car tangle on the first lap of the feature and immediately took the lead after a restart. By the half-way point, Paul held a slim lead over Rich Sundling who was being hard pressed by Elmer Musgrave, Cossman, and Al Hagerty.

On the 21st lap, Cossman made his move passing both Musgrave and Sundling. The huge crowd came to their feet as with just five laps remaining Cossman caught Heitz with Musgrave inches behind. Heitz withstood the challenge and the three swept across the finish line in that order. Paul drives a 1967 Chevelle.

Ray Freeman set the new all-time one lap qualifying record in the time trial event with a sizzling 14:89 second clocking. Freeman retired after tangling with Dennis Burgan early in the feature.

Herald Will Begin Daily Publication Monday

The Herald will become a daily newspaper effective Monday, May 5.

It will continue as an early morning, home-delivered community newspaper, but will be published Monday through Friday instead of tri-weekly, to offer virtually instantaneous reporting of important local news along with numerous reader features and services.

The move, reflecting the success of Paddock Publications' existing daily newspapers, is a major acceleration of expansion plans previously announced by the suburban publishing firm.

ANNOUNCEMENT was made by Stuart R. Paddock Jr., president.

He said reader and advertiser acceptance of the four existing dailies has indicated that both groups regard the additional news and advertising coverage as a significant service.

"Our response has been overwhelming," Paddock said. "Suburbanites like our new dailies so much we felt we should extend daily frequency as rapidly as possible, consistent with maintaining high editorial standards."

"We are convinced the community will be pleased by this new daily and will give it the same warm reception our dailies have received in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Rolling Meadows."

The change will place all of Paddock Publications' Cook County newspapers on a daily basis. Five papers serving communities in north DuPage County will be retained, for the present, on a tri-weekly publication schedule.

Paddock said the newest dailies represent the firm's greatest potential for future growth in terms of new readers and advertisers.

"THE RAPID GROWTH of this community holds great promise for the community and its newspaper. We intend to strengthen and enhance our news coverage," Paddock said, "while aggressively building lineage with advertisers serving the community."

"Our increased frequency will permit us to develop more varieties of news and human interest material, and it will give us a chance to offer advertisers added impact as well as exposure any week day of their choosing."

To accommodate the increased frequency, additional news, advertising and circulation personnel will be secured.

The new daily Herald is only one in a series of innovations made by Paddock Publications in recent years. Only two years ago, it converted all 16 newspapers from weekly to tri-weekly frequency. While the weekly often published 90 to 120 pages, the tri-weekly offered more compact, easier to read editions.

A month ago, the six-column "op" format was adopted, providing an uncluttered appearance and a new column width designed for optimum ease of reading. At the same time, the news departments were reorganized and a page numbering system instituted. Carrier delivery replaced the former mail distribution system, an improvement which received considerable favorable response from readers and a necessary prelude to the daily frequency.

BESIDES MORE timely news and added feature coverage, Herald readers can look forward on May 5 to:

—A daily news summary of important national and international events from United Press International sources.

—Daily results of prep sporting events.

—Daily Suburban Living features for the family, and daily news about women.

—Daily Arts of Living coverage of suburban cultural and entertainment events, including a daily horoscope.

—Daily editorials focusing on the concerns of the community and the Northwest suburbs.

STORM WARNING for Schaumburg school children can be provided in a matter of seconds with the alert radio communications network being demonstrated by Schaumburg Police Sgt. Peter Swistowicz. The radio tone alert is keyed from Police Headquarters.

School Alert Plan

Alert monitor radios have been installed in all Dist. 54 schools in Schaumburg in order to provide warning of storm conditions or other natural disasters.

Ten monitor radios were purchased at a cost of $216 per unit. Fifty per cent of the total cost was shared jointly by the Schaumburg Civil Defense Unit, Dist. 54, and the village of Schaumburg. The federal government provides the other half of the funds.

Control center for the radio warning network is the police console in Schaumburg's Police Headquarters, 231 S. Civic Drive. The storm warning equipment will be directed by Sgt. Peter Swistowicz.

Swistowicz will activate a tone alert which will be simultaneously transmitted to radios located in all of the Schaumburg schools.

TORNADO WARNINGS or other information will be provided to school authorities quickly, and they can then take appropriate action to insure the safety of Schaumburg's school children.

According to Schaumburg Police Chief Martin Conroy, the radio monitors can also be used to warn school officials of suspicious persons on or near school property without alerting the trespasser.

The radio monitor system is the "first of its kind in the area," Conroy said.

Civil Defense officials in Hoffman Estates have also submitted an application for matching funds from the federal government for purchase of alert monitors. It is expected that similar radios will be installed in schools in Hoffman Estates within the near future.

Rain Causes Flooding

Wednesday night's heavy rains caused flooding in some sections of Schaumburg. Public Works Director Edwin Denman said he received flooding complaints from areas in Timbercrest, Weathersfield and Meadow Knolls subdivisions.

He said the trouble is storm sewer lines. The flooding in parts of Timbercrest is the responsibility of Mcwell Builders, Denman said. Complaints were received from residents living in the vicinity of Hickory Lane and Bramble Lane.

THAT SECTION OF the subdivision hasn't been accepted by the village and won't be until public improvements meet village standards, Denman said.

"The water is so deep, our children could sail boats in the current running down our backyard," a Bramble Lane resident told the Herald.

Water was reported standing in streets from sewers not working and several basements were reported flooded.

The flooded basements were blamed on improper grading.

The resident said the problem has been recurring for two years, ever since the area was completed.

The Hoffman Estates public works department received no flooding complaints yesterday.

Planning For 4th

Dave Brady has been named entertainment chairman for the 1969 Hoffman Estates Independence Day committee.

A newcomer to the village and the committee, Brady will coordinate recreational activities for the day-long program, scheduled to begin with a mid-morning parade and conclude with fireworks under the stars. The theme of this year's celebration is "Under the Circus Big Top."

"If you've never had the opportunity to catch a greased pig, you don't know what you're missing," Brady said, explaining that the event will be a first in the community.

"IT PROMISES TO be one of the highlights of the day, that is, if I can find a sponsoring organization; volunteers are also needed to provide manpower," he said.

Definitely-scheduled events include foot-races for toddlers to teenagers under the guidance of the Jaycees, horseshoe pitching sponsored by the Lion's Club, and a teen dance directed by the Guild Players, Brady said.

Other events under consideration, if sponsoring organizations can be found, are a tug-of-war, greased pole climbing, and egg-throwing and watermelon contests.

According to John Smith, general chairman of the celebration, Brady is "an example of the kind of person we have been looking for on our committee. He and his family moved here last July and immediately became interested in the community."

BRADY HAS openings on the entertainment committee and said he would welcome suggestions from local residents. He can be contacted at 894-5470.

Independence Day committee meetings are held the fourth Friday of each month at 8 p.m. at the village hall, 161 Illinois Blvd. All meetings are open to members of the community.

Cadettes Need Adults To Help Them Grow

by MARY REIFSCHNEIDER

The real hang-up in working with Girl Scout Cadette troops in Schaumburg Township is finding adult volunteers, said Mrs. John Bishop, coordinator and a troop leader.

POP Sweep Ends Plea For Change

Hanover Park voters demanded a change in government Tuesday and elected the five-member Peoples' Own Party (POP) slate.

The new village president will be Richard H. Baker. Elaine Mars, incumbent village clerk, retained her post. Trustees elected to three-year terms are Rev. David A. Bugh, James Lewis and Barry Rogers. Louis F. Barone and James M. Scheuber were elected trustees for two-year terms.

Incumbent Mayor Eugene J. Domingue ran third, behind Baker and former mayor Gordon Jensen. Independent candidate Thomas A. Rispoli finished last.

UNOFFICIAL VOTE counts show Baker received 791 votes; Jensen, 641; Domingue, 398; and Rispoli, 302.

Mrs. Mars led the voting, receiving 1,092 votes. Margaret Hunt, running with Jensen's Citizens' Party slate, received 600 votes. Marguerite Harrison, running with Domingue's Unity slate, polled 401 votes.

POP trustee vote counts were Rev. Bugh, 987; Lewis, 827; Rogers, 870; Barone, 940; and Scheuber, 846.

On the Citizens' slate, trustee vote totals were Frank Barta, 564; Vincent Pettit, 530; Donald Barta, 509; Michael Mascione, 555; and Richard A. Didriksen, 586.

Trustee candidates with the Unity Party totals were Richard C. Peszynski, 608; Mario M. Adelizzi, 509; William A. Hommowun, 567; Frank Dalla Valle Jr., 639; and James P. Raye, 477. All except Raye were incumbents.

INDEPENDENT TRUSTEE candidate Vincent Graziano received 179 votes.

Baker, 35, is a former trustee. During his 15 months on the board, he updated the water department billing system, pushed for a master plan which Domingue did not support and made a water study that resulted in the formation of the Blue Ribbon Water Study Committee.

POP platform plans call for execution of a master plan, improvements in the original section if feasible, better relations with the park district and school districts, creation of a human relations commission, appointment of a civil service committee and observance of the public right-to-know law.

Jensen will be the only holdover board member. He has two years to serve as a trustee. He was the community's first mayor.

"People often think girls this age can't do anything," she said.

The Cadettes are seventh, eighth and ninth grade girls. This year there are seven troops in Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates with a total of 170 girls.

There could be more troops in the two communities, "but we need more leaders first," Mrs. Bishop said.

POTENTIAL VOLUNTEERS often "shy away from Cadettes. They say this is a hard age to handle, but the girls are easy to communicate with. Girls this age can help govern their own troop," Mrs. Bishop said.

Sometimes the girls are a problem, "but if you tell them what you expect, they shape up," she said.

Activities for Cadettes cover a whole spectrum from camping to giving Christmas parties for migrant children to taking trips to Washington, D.C.

This summer Mrs. Bishop, 32 girls and three other adult leaders will spend a week in Washington. The girls are selling candy to help defray the cost of $100 per girl. They have also sold stationery and staged car washes, a Christmas bazaar and a newspaper drive to raise money.

The Cadette program covers four challenges girls work to meet: social dependability, emergency preparedness, active citizenship and the Girl Scout promise.

GIRLS WORK IN six areas toward the first-class rank. Cadettes are eligible to continue scouting through a senior program. Many of the Cadettes were Scouts in grade school.

One of the favorite activities for Cadettes has been marching in the Hoffman Estates July 4 parade. Last year 30 girls marched.

The Cadettes have mixed emotions about scouting. They enjoy the activities, but often don't want their friends to know they are Scouts, Mrs. Bishop said.

For example at last year's July 4 parade, the girls marched in clown costumes. "They don't want their friends to recognize them," Mrs. Bishop said. She said many of the girls don't like to be seen in their uniforms.

For this year's parade, the girls may build a float, Mrs. Bishop said.

MRS. BISHOP SAID the Hoffman Estates Women's Club has provided leaders to aid the girls in working on badges. The local nurses association also helps.

Leaders work in the background. "We want the Cadettes to bring themselves out," Mrs. Bishop said.

Scouting has a definite place in the lives of Cadettes, Mrs. Bishop said. "It teaches girls to be responsible citizens."

Mrs. Bishop, who describes herself as a "frustrated Girl Scout," is leader for Troop 668. Her assistant is Ginny Kempf.

Other troop leaders are Mrs. Joan Crane and Alice Hedlund, Troop 590; Marsha Richmond and Carol Knop, Troop 292; Marilyn Lind and Joan Mauldin, Troop 485; Carol Ciecko and Winnie Hornby, Troop 318; Betty Barber and Barbara Green, Troop 310; and Connie Pujol, Troop 444.

GIRL SCOUT CADETTEs in Schaumburg Township learn first aid with the help of the Hoffman-Schaumburg Nurses Club. Club members volunteer their time in teaching the girls first aid basics. 'Y' Lowers Goal

A $28,000 goal for the Twinbrook YMCA Sustaining Membership Drive has been "more realistically" reduced by $4,000, Robert Williams, YMCA director, told The Herald yesterday.

Williams explained that the drive, which has been in progress for more than a month now, has so far produced $14,400 in individual contributions, and about $4,100 in its big gifts division.

Originally the YMCA board of directors had hoped to collect $18,500 in individual contributions and approximately $9,000 in big gifts, Williams said.

"I DO FEEL that we will reach the individual contribution goal, but we have had to reduce the big gifts goal to a total of $5,000 because several substantial donations we had counted on failed to materialize," he said.

The drive will end April 26 with a victory dinner to be held at Roselle Methodist Church.

Individuals or organizations not yet contacted for YMCA contributions are asked to immediately contact Williams at 894-8500.

Tuesday Election Results

An official canvass of Tuesday's election results, in which the newly formed Hoffman Estates Republican Party swept into office ousting the 10-year domination of the old Village Party, was held during a special village board meeting called last night.

Results of the election, based on unofficial tallies of precincts, are listed below. Add 2 column election results.

Women Give Money To Twinbrook 'Y'

A $200 partial donation recently presented to Twinbrook YMCA by Hoffman Estates Women's Club will be used toward purchase of a printing machine, Mrs. Thomas Alston, Jr., chairman of the club's YMCA committee said this week.

Additional funds for the printer and for annual scholarships for deserving students will be raised at the club's annual card party at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Golden Acres Country Club.

THE PREDOMINANT game at the party will be Daisy, but other games will be available, in addition to a penny auction. Tickets are still available and can be obtained by calling Mrs. R. Franck at 528-9808, or may be purchased at the door for $1.50 each.

Mrs. Alston praised the 28 women on her committee who "have so diligently worked for the YMCA," she said.

"Many of these women, and their husbands, too, have given many service hours, making hundreds of phone calls and writing letters since we helped organize the 'Y' and are now assisting in the sustaining membership campaign," she said.

Hat in Ring, He Loses Rain Coat

Hoffman Estates President-elect Fred Downey was a clear cut winner in political circles this week, but a loser in one other respect, The Herald learned.

During a victory celebration at Republican Party headquarters following the election count, Downey's black rain coat, size 42, was inadvertently taken home by a well-wisher.

SINCE THE COAT was not labeled, Downey asked that anyone who visited GOP headquarters who happens to notice an unfamiliar article of apparel contact him at 529-6834 immediately.

"When I threw my hat into the political ring I did not anticipate losing my coat," the new top-ranking village official quipped.

Conant Boosters Meet On Reorganization

Reorganization of Conant Booster Club to a strictly athletic organization and election of officers for the 1969-70 term will highlight the April 28 meeting of club members.

All interested adults are invited to voice opinions on reorganization at the 8 p.m. meeting at Conant cafeteria, a spokesman said this week.

Ponder Repeal of Landfill

The zoning committee of the DuPage County Board of Supervisors is deciding whether to recommend a repeal of a vote earlier this year allowing a combustible landfill operation near Barrington and Fisher Roads in Bloomingdale Township near Hanover Park.

Residents from Bloomingdale and Wayne Townships met with the committee Wednesday morning to discuss the reconsideration. The site borders Wayne Township.

Objections have brought the matter from a simple board consideration to a fight.

Residents claimed Wednesday the landfill operation allowed under the county's special use and zoning variation would lower land values, pollute air and water, pose a fire hazard, increase traffic congestion and damage nearby roads.

ATTY. LEE Daniels, from Elmhurst, is representing what he called "30 concerned landowners of 1,000 acres surrounding the dump."

Daniels said he hoped the fight would end with Wednesday's meeting and come before the county board later this month for repeal.

The county board may choose to rescind its approval, Daniels said, since formal opposition has been filed.

Zoning Committee Chairman C. L. James, assistant supervisor from Downers Grove Township, said his committee would meet soon to decide its recommendation to the county board.

The zoning committee overruled a DuPage County Zoning Board of Appeals recommendation, after that board conducted a public hearing on the matter last summer. The zoning board recommended denial of the special use and variation.

The operation would fill low land in the area with wood and other refuse collected by E and E Excavating in its salvage from wrecked buildings.

NO GARBAGE would be allowed, James said, and the area either would be divided by mounds of dirt or covered with dirt to avoid large-spread fires.

According to James, the land once filled in would be used for farming.

Daniels said, according to farm experts, the land is already suitable for farming and need not be filled with such waste material.

Donald Jack Wall, assistant supervisor of Bloomingdale Township told the Register he would vote against the measure when presented to the county board again.

Wall said he was unaware there was so much opposition to the operation.

A new six-classroom addition for St. John Lutheran School, Irving Park and Rodenburg roads, Schaumburg, will be formally dedicated at 3 p.m. April 27. Guest speaker will be Dr. Martin Koehn-ne. Construction of the addition was begun in the spring of 1968. Valued at $200,000, the addition is being paid for solely by members of the church and interested patrons. St. John School now has 146 pupils, and pre-registration figures point to a larger enrollment next year.

With the new addition, St. John School has nine classrooms, a multi-purpose gymnasium, three offices, a faculty workroom, washroom facilities, and storage areas. However, the three older classrooms are being used for meeting rooms at present.

ALL OF the interior painting for the new addition was done by congregation members.

According to Principal Eugene A. Halterman, workmen are applying the finishing touches to the new addition this week.

Although school officials hoped to have the addition ready last September, pupils were not able to move into the new building until December 1. Prior to that time, the three older classrooms were used, and fourth and fifth grade pupils were bused to Grace Lutheran Church in Streamwood.

Even after pupils occupied the six new classrooms, construction continued on the school gymnasium while students kept sawdust out of their lunches, sang to the accompaniment of an electric drill, and recited in rhythm with a carpenter's hammer.

THERE ARE six faculty members at St. John Lutheran School, including Halterman, who teaches grades 6, 7, and 8. Next year, a seventh faculty member will be added to teach fifth and sixth grades.

Other teachers are Verona Kneip, grades 4 and 5; Doris Denninger, grade 3; Lois Christian, grade 2; Mrs. Louise Ruiz, grade 1, and Arlene Eisenbraun, kindergarten.

"We have a bottom-heavy student body with more pupils in the lower grades," said Halterman, who received his M.A.

from Concordia Teachers College, River Forest. Peak enrollment of St. John School is expected to be about 300 pupils.

ST. JOHN provides an elementary education with emphasis on Christian values in every phase of the curriculum. Over 100 years old, the school has had 12 male teachers called to serve the school Halterman came to St. John School in 1967.

Architects of the new addition were Ekroth, Marterano, and Ekroth, while the general contractor was Egyptian Construction Co., the firm that built St. Marcelline's Church in Schaumburg.

The April 27 dedication will be followed by a luncheon in the school gymnasium.

ST. JOHN LUTHERAN school pupils have found classrooms in their new six-room addition comfortable after being cramped in three older classrooms.

Upper-grade students are busy with a class. The new addition, to be dedicated April 27, also includes a gymnasium and three offices. While construction was in progress a family of cats moved into the school's classrooms.

Scouts To Hear MSD Head

Adult leaders of the Fox River Valley Council, Boy Scouts of America, will hold their annual appreciation dinner April 30 at Larkin High School.

According to Barlow E. Williams, council president, "Vinton W. Bacon, general superintendent of the Metropolitan Sanitary District of Greater Chicago, will be the featured speaker."

Election of officers and amendments to the council's articles of incorporation and revision of by-laws will be voted on by council members representing 72 organizations that sponsor the 100 Cub Scout packs, Boy Scout troops, and Explorer posts in the council.

THE PROGRAM is being presented as a public service and area residents are invited to participate in the discussion.

Panelists will include youth workers from the juvenile court of Cook County, Illinois Youth Commission, the YMCA, AND Elgin State Hospital.

New 'Y' Karate Classes Open

New karate classes with a new instructor begin at the Elgin YMCA next week.

Chuck Johnson of Batavia, a first-degree black belt, will become the head assistant instructor. Bob Barron, chief karate instructor, said. Barron, Johnson and Tom McNamara of Elgin, an assistant instructor, will form a promotion board to decide promotions for the karate students.

Johnson has been studying karate at the Aurora YMCA for three years. He earned his black belt in 1 1/2 years. "If you work at it hard, you can get it," he said.

JOHNSON HAS earned 21 trophies in three years — eight first place, 9 second place, two thirds and two fourths.

Beginning and advance karate classes will begin at the Elgin YMCA Monday. They will meet on Mondays and Wednesdays for eight weeks. Beginners' class will be at 7 p.m. and advanced class will be at 8 p.m.

YMCA membership is not required for enrollment, but YMCA members may enroll at a reduced fee, Keith Huff, YMCA assistant executive director, said.

Persons 16 and older are eligible to enroll, but men 16 and 17 years old must have written permission from their parents, Huff added. Advanced class is restricted to men 18 and older. Maximum enrollment in both classes is 20 students.

The beginning class teaches the eight basic upper body movements of karate and some kicks. "There is some sparring done at the end of the course," Barron said.

For registration information, contact the Elgin YMCA, 695-1100.

zational meeting April 21 at 7 p.m. at park offices, 161 Illinois Blvd.

Information regarding league membership may be obtained at that time, Teschner said.

AESOP SAYS:

The Dog that Froze

In the winter time, a dog rolled himself together and coiled up in as small a space as possible. He was so cold that he resolved to make himself a house when summer came.

But with the return of warm weather he lay lazily in the sun, stretched at his full length. He gazed upon his large size and decided that the task would be too difficult to make a house that would accommodate him.

The next winter was especially severe and the dog froze to death.

It is easy in good times to put the bad out of mind.

One reason why the 2,500-year-old stories of this Greek slave have endured among all peoples is that they accurately reflect human strengths and weaknesses.

It is easier to lie in the sun than to work, easier to spend than to save. But prudence suggests that our best interests lie in providing for the future by present effort.

Class Camping Out

About 80 sixth grade students from Oakhill Elementary School in Streamwood are at Camp Edwards on Lake Beulah, East Troy, Wis., as part of Elgin School Dist. U46's pilot program in outdoor education.

The students were bused to the nonprofit camp operated by the Elgin YMCA Wednesday, and will return tomorrow. They are the first group to tramp through the woods under the program this year.

Accompanying the students are their teachers and Principal John Raukar.

ALL SCHOOL studies from social studies, math and science to art, music and health are incorporated in the program from pre-planning to follow-up studies.

From now until May 29, 10 schools and 625 students will spend three- or four-day sessions at the camp. Bartlett Elementary School leaves Monday for four days, followed later by Streamwood, Washington, Channing, Garfield, Clinton, McKinley and Wayne schools.

Next year, with the newly-winterized cabins and with a successful spring program, more schools and more sixth graders will be scheduled on a year-round basis.

Honor Reverend Wincek

The Rev. Leo Wincek, pastor of St. Hubert's Roman Catholic Church in Hoffman Estates, was honored at a parish open house Sunday night to mark the 35th anniversary of his ordination. The open house was planned as a surprise for the local priest.

Father Wincek has served as pastor of St. Hubert's since 1960 when the parish was formally established. Before that time, there had been a mission church branch from St. Theresa's Church in Palatine.

St. Hubert's Church and convent are located on Grand Canyon Lane in Hoffman Estates. The parish also operates a parochial grade school.

THE PASTOR OF St. Hubert's Church came to the local community after serving as assistant pastor at St. Turibius Church, 5646 S. Karlov, Chicago, for two years.

Father Wincek was ordained to the priesthood in 1934. He attended St. Mary of the Lake Seminary, Mundelein, and Quigley preparatory school, Chicago. His first parish assignment was at St. Florian Church near Chicago.

In addition to St. Turibius and St. Florian, Father Wincek also served assignments in St. Michael the Archangel parish for six years, St. Barbara parish, 15 years, and St. Pancratius parish, one year. All of these churches are on the

The Herald will become a daily newspaper effective Monday, May 5. It will continue as an early morning, home-delivered community newspaper, but will be published Monday through Friday instead of tri-weekly, to offer virtually instantaneous reporting of important local news along with numerous reader features and services.

The move, reflecting the success of Paddock Publications' existing daily newspapers, is a major acceleration of expansion plans previously announced by the suburban publishing firm.

ANNOUNCEMENT was made by Stuart R. Paddock Jr., president.

He said reader and advertiser acceptance of the four existing dailies has indicated that both groups regard the additional news and advertising coverage as a significant service.

"Our response has been overwhelming," Paddock said. "Suburbanites like our new dailies so much we felt we should extend daily frequency as rapidly as possible, consistent with maintaining high editorial standards."

"We are convinced the community will be pleased by this new daily and will give it the same warm reception our dailies have received in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Rolling Meadows."

The change will place all of Paddock Publications' Cook County newspapers on a daily basis. Five papers serving communities in north DuPage County will be retained, for the present, on a tri-weekly publication schedule.

Paddock said the newest dailies represent the firm's greatest potential for future growth in terms of new readers and advertisers.

"THE RAPID GROWTH of this community holds great promise for the community and its newspaper. We intend to strengthen and enhance our news coverage," Paddock said, "while aggressively building lineage with advertisers serving the community.

"Our increased frequency will permit us to develop more varieties of news and human interest material, and it will give us a chance to offer advertisers added impact as well as exposure any week day of their choosing."

To accommodate the increased frequency, additional news, advertising and circulation personnel will be secured.

The new daily Herald is only one in a series of innovations made by Paddock Publications in recent years. Only two years ago, it converted all 16 newspapers from weekly to tri-weekly frequency. While the weekly often published 90 to 120 pages, the tri-weekly offered more compact, easier to read editions.

A month ago, the six-column "op" format was adopted, providing an uncluttered appearance and a new column width designed for optimum ease of reading. At the same time, the news departments were reorganized and a page numbering system instituted. Carrier delivery replaced the former mail distribution system, an improvement which received considerable favorable response from readers and a necessary prelude to the daily frequency.

BESIDES MORE timely news and added feature coverage, Herald readers can look forward on May 5 to:

- A daily news summary of important national and international events from United Press International sources.
- Daily results of prep sporting events.
- Daily Suburban Living features for the family, and daily news about women.
- Daily Arts of Living coverage of suburban cultural and entertainment events, including a daily horoscope.
- Daily editorials focusing on the concerns of the community and the Northwest suburbs.

STORM WARNING for Schaumburg school children can be provided in a matter of seconds with the alert radio communications network being demonstrated by Schaumburg Police Sgt. Peter Swistowicz. The radio tone alert is keyed from Police Headquarters.

School Alert Plan

Alert monitor radios have been installed in all Dist. 54 schools in Schaumburg in order to provide warning of storm conditions or other natural disasters.

Ten monitor radios were purchased at a cost of $216 per unit. Fifty per cent of the total cost was shared jointly by the Schaumburg Civil Defense unit, Dist. 54, and the village of Schaumburg. The federal government provides the other half of the funds.

Control center for the radio warning network is the police console in Schaumburg's Police Headquarters, 231 S. Civic Drive. The storm warning equipment will be directed by Sgt. Peter Swistowicz.

Swistowicz will activate a tone alert which will be simultaneously transmitted to radios located in all of the Schaumburg schools.

TORNADO WARNINGS or other information will be provided to school authorities quickly, and they can then take appropriate action to insure the safety of Schaumburg's school children.

According to Schaumburg Police Chief Martin Conroy, the radio monitors can also be used to warn school officials of suspicious persons on or near school property without alerting the trespasser.

The radio monitor system is the "first of its kind in the area," Conroy said.

Civil Defense officials in Hoffman Estates have also submitted an application for matching funds from the federal government for purchase of alert monitors. It is expected that similar radios will be installed in schools in Hoffman Estates within the near future.

Rain Causes Flooding

Wednesday night's heavy rains caused flooding in some sections of Schaumburg.

Public Works Director Edwin Denman said he received flooding complaints from areas in Timbercrest, Weathersfield and Meadow Knolls subdivisions.

He said the trouble is storm sewer lines.

The flooding in parts of Timbercrest is the responsibility of Morwell Builders, Denman said. Complaints were received from residents living in the vicinity of Hickory Lane and Bramble Lane.

THAT SECTION OF the subdivision hasn't been accepted by the village and won't be until public improvements meet village standards, Denman said.

"The water is so deep, our children could sail boats in the current running down our backyard," a Bramble Lane resident told the Herald.

Water was reported standing in streets from sewers not working and several basements were reported flooded.

The flooded basements were blamed on improper grading.

The resident said the problem has been recurring for two years, ever since the area was completed.

The Hoffman Estates public works department received no flooding complaints yesterday.

Planning For 4th

Dave Brady has been named entertainment chairman for the 1969 Hoffman Estates Independence Day committee.

A newcomer to the village and the committee, Brady will coordinate recreational activities for the day-long program, scheduled to begin with a mid-morning parade and conclude with fireworks under the stars. The theme of this year's celebration is "Under the Circus Big Top."

"If you've never had the opportunity to catch a greased pig, you don't know what you're missing," Brady said, explaining that the event will be a first in the community.

"IT PROMISES TO be one of the highlights of the day, that is, if I can find a sponsoring organization; volunteers are also needed to provide manpower," he said.

Definitely-scheduled events include foot races for toddlers to teenagers under the guidance of the Jaycees, horseshoe pitching sponsored by the Lion's Club, and a teen dance directed by the Guild Players, Brady said.

Other events under consideration, if sponsoring organizations can be found, are a tug-of-war, greased pole climbing, and egg-throwing and watermelon contests.

According to John Smith, general chairman of the celebration, Brady is "an example of the kind of person we have been looking for on our committee. He and his family moved here last July and immediately became interested in the community."

BRADY HAS openings on the entertainment committee and said he would welcome suggestions from local residents. He can be contacted at 394-5470.

Independence Day committee meetings are held the fourth Friday of each month at 8 p.m. at the village hall, 161 Illinois Blvd. All meetings are open to members of the community.

Cadettes Need Adults To Help Them Grow

by MARY REIFSCHNEIDER

The real hang-up in working with Girl Scout Cadette troops in Schaumburg Township is finding adult volunteers, said Mrs. John Bishop, coordinator and a troop leader.

POP Sweep Ends Plea For Change

"People often think girls this age can't do anything," she said.

The Cadettes are seventh, eighth and ninth grade girls. This year there are seven troops in Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates with a total of 170 girls.

There could be more troops in the two communities, "but we need more leaders first," Mrs. Bishop said.

POTENTIAL VOLUNTEERS often "shy away from Cadettes. They say this is a hard age to handle, but the girls are easy to communicate with. Girls this age can help govern their own troop," Mrs. Bishop said.

Sometimes the girls are a problem, "but if you tell them what you expect, they shape up," she said.

Activities for Cadettes cover a whole spectrum from camping to giving Christmas parties for migrant children to taking trips to Washington, D.C.

This summer Mrs. Bishop, 32 girls and three other adult leaders will spend a week in Washington. The girls are selling candy to help defray the cost of $100 per girl. They have also sold stationery and staged car washes, a Christmas bazaar and a newspaper drive to raise money.

The Cadette program covers four challenges girls work to meet: social dependability, emergency preparedness, active citizenship and the Girl Scout promise.

GIRLS WORK IN six areas toward the first-class rank. Cadettes are eligible to continue scouting through a senior program. Many of the Cadettes were Scouts in grade school.

One of the favorite activities for Cadettes has been marching in the Hoffman Estates July 4 parade. Last year 30 girls marched.

The Cadettes have mixed emotions about scouting. They enjoy the activities, but often don't want their friends to know they are Scouts, Mrs. Bishop said.

For example at last year's July 4 parade, the girls marched in clown costumes. "They don't want their friends to recognize them," Mrs. Bishop said. She said many of the girls don't like to be seen in their uniforms.

For this year's parade, the girls may build a float, Mrs. Bishop said.

MRS. BISHOP SAID the Hoffman Estates Women's Club has provided leaders to aid the girls in working on badges. The local nurses association also helps.

Leaders work in the background. "We want the Cadettes to bring themselves out," Mrs. Bishop said.

Scouting has a definite place in the lives of Cadettes, Mrs. Bishop said. "It teaches girls to be responsible citizens."

Mrs. Bishop, who describes herself as a "frustrated Girl Scout," is leader for Troop 668. Her assistant is Ginny Kempf.

Other troop leaders are Mrs. Joan Crane and Alice Hedlund, Troop 590; Marsha Richmond and Carol Knop, Troop 292; Marilyn Lind and Joan Mauldin, Troop 485; Carol Clecio and Winnie Hornby, Troop 316; Betty Barber and Barbara Green, Troop 310; and Connie Pujol, Troop 444.

GIRL SCOUT CADETTEs in Schaumburg Township learn first aid with the help of the Hoffman-Schaumburg Nurses Club. Club members volunteer their time in teaching the girls first aid basics. Mrs. Bruce Harvey supervises Betty Lynch as she bandages the arm of Joan Murry.

'Y' Lowers Goal

A $28,000 goal for the Twinbrook YMCA Sustaining Membership Drive has been "more realistically" reduced by $4,000, Robert Williams, YMDA director, told The Herald yesterday.

Williams explained that the drive, which has been in progress for more than a month now, has so far produced $14,400 in individual contributions, and about $4,100 in its big gifts division.

Originally the YMCA board of directors had hoped to collect $18,500 in individual contributions and approximately $9,000 in big gifts, Williams said.

"I DO FEEL that we will reach the individual contribution goal, but we have had to reduce the big gifts goal to a total of $5,000 because several substantial donations we had counted on failed to materialize," he said.

The drive will end April 26 with a victory dinner to be held at Roselle Methodist Church.

Individuals or organizations not yet contacted for YMCA contributions are asked to immediately contact Williams at 894-8500.

ST. JOHN LUTHERAN school pupils have found classrooms in their new six-room addition comfortable after being cramped in three older classrooms. Upper-grade students are busy with a class. The new addition, to be dedicated April 27, also includes a gymnasium and three offices. While construction was in progress a family of cats moved into the school's classrooms.

School To Dedicate Addition

A new six-classroom addition for St. John Lutheran School, Irving Park and Rodeburg roads, Schaumburg, will be formally dedicated at 3 p.m. April 27. Guest speaker will be Dr. Martin Koehnke.

Construction of the addition was begun in the spring of 1968. Valued at $200,000, the addition is being paid for solely by members of the church and interested patrons. St. John School now has 146 pupils, and pre-registration figures point to a larger enrollment next year.

With the new addition, St. John School has nine classrooms, a multi-purpose gymnasium, three offices, a faculty workroom, washroom facilities, and storage areas. However, the three older classrooms are being used for meeting rooms at present.

ALL OF the interior painting for the new addition was done by congregation members.

According to Principal Eugene A. Halterman, workmen are applying the finishing touches to the new addition this week.

Although school officials hoped to have the addition ready last September, pupils were not able to move into the new building until December 1. Prior to that time, the three older classrooms were used, and fourth and fifth grade pupils were bused to Grace Lutheran Church in Streamwood.

Even after pupils occupied the six new classrooms, construction continued on the school gymnasium while students kept sawdust out of their lunches, sang to the accompaniment of an electric drill, and recited in rhythm with a carpenter's hammer.

THERE ARE six faculty members at St. John Lutheran School, including Halterman, who teaches grades 6, 7, and 8. Next year, a seventh faculty member will be added to teach fifth and sixth grades.

Other teachers are Verona Kneip, grades 4 and 5; Doris Denninger, grade 3; Lois Christian, grade 2; Mrs. Louise Rutz, grade 1, and Arlene Eisenbraun, kindergarten.

"We have a bottom-heavy student body with more pupils in the lower grades," said Halterman, who received his M.A.

from Concordia Teachers College, River Forest. Peak enrollment of St. John School is expected to be about 300 pupils.

ST. JOHN provides an elementary education with emphasis on Christian values in every phase of the curriculum. Over 100 years old, the school has had 12 male teachers called to serve the school. Halterman came to St. John School in 1967.

Architects of the new addition were Ekroth, Marterano, and Ekroth, while the general contractor was Egyptian Construction Co., the firm that built St. Marcelline's Church in Schaumburg.

The April 27 dedication will be followed by a luncheon in the school gymnasium.

Women Give Money To Twinbrook 'Y'

A $200 partial donation recently presented to Twinbrook YMCA by Hoffman Estates Women's Club will be used toward purchase of a printing machine, Mrs. Thomas Alston, Jr., chairman of the club's YMCA committee said this week.

Additional funds for the printer and for annual scholarships for deserving students will be raised at the club's annual card party at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Golden Acres Country Club.

THE PREDOMINANT game at the party will be Delay, but other games will be available, in addition to a penny auction. Tickets are still available and can be obtained by calling Mrs. R. Franck at 529-9808, or may be purchased at the door for $1.50 each.

Mrs. Alston praised the 26 women on her committee who "have so diligently worked for the YMCA," she said.

"Many of these women, and their husbands, too, have given many service hours, making hundreds of phone calls and writing letters since we helped organize the 'Y' and are now assisting in the sustaining membership campaign," she said.

Hat in Ring, He Loses Rain Coat

Hoffman Estates President-elect Fred Downey was a clear cut winner in political circles this week, but a loser in one other respect, The Herald learned.

During a victory celebration at Republican Party headquarters following the election count, Downey's black rain coat, size 42, was inadvertently taken home by a well-wisher.

SINCE THE COAT was not labeled, Downey asked that anyone who visited GOP headquarters who happens to notice an unfamiliar article of apparel contact him at 529-8834 immediately.

"When I threw my hat into the political ring I did not anticipate losing my coat," the new top-ranking village official quipped.

Conant Boosters Meet On Reorganization

Reorganization of Conant Booster Club to a strictly athletic organization and election of officers for the 1968-70 term will highlight the April 28 meeting of club members.

All interested adults are invited to voice opinions on reorganization at the 8 p.m. meeting at Conant cafeteria, a spokesman said this week.

Ponder Repeal of Landfill

The zoning committee of the DuPage County Board of Supervisors is deciding whether to recommend a repeal of a vote earlier this year allowing a combustible landfill operation near Barrington and Fisher Roads in Bloomingdale Township near Hanover Park.

Residents from Bloomingdale and Wayne Townships met with the committee Wednesday morning to discuss the reconsideration. The site borders Wayne Township.

Objections have brought the matter from a simple board consideration to a fight.

Residents claimed Wednesday the landfill operation allowed under the county's special use and zoning variation would lower land values, pollute air and water, pose a fire hazard, increase traffic congestion and damage nearby roads.

ATTY. LEE Daniels, from Elmhurst, is representing what he called "30 concerned landowners of 1,000 acres surrounding the dump."

Daniels said he hoped the fight would end with Wednesday's meeting and come before the county board later this month for repeal.

The county board may choose to rescind its approval, Daniels said, since formal opposition has been filed.

Zoning Committee Chairman C. L. James, assistant supervisor from Downers Grove Township, said his committee would meet soon to decide its recommendation to the county board.

The zoning committee overruled a DuPage County Zoning Board of Appeals recommendation, after that board conducted a public hearing on the matter last summer. The zoning board recommended denial of the special use and variation.

The operation would fill low land in the area with wood and other refuse collected by E and E Excavating in its salvage from wrecked buildings.

NO GARBAGE would be allowed, James said, and the area either would be divided by mounds of dirt or covered with dirt to avoid large-appeal fires.

According to James, the land once filled in would be used for farming.

Daniels said, according to farm experts, the land is already suitable for farming and need not be filled with such waste material.

Donald Jack Wall, assistant supervisor of Bloomingdale Township told the Register he would vote against the measure when presented to the county board again.

Wall said he was unaware there was so much opposition to the operation.

Pat Savaiano, Bloomingdale Township supervisor, said he would probably vote against the operation if brought up for another vote. Wall and Savaiano were at the meeting Wednesday.

SAVAIANO SAID Bloomingdale Township opposition was slight, and most objections were from Wayne Township which borders the proposed site.

The zoning board of appeals in a letter of recommendation to the zoning committee said the dumping operation would adversely affect nearby living conditions.

When the county board originally approved the zoning committee request to grant the special use permit there were no opposing votes.

Herald Will Begin Daily Publication Monday

The Herald will become a daily newspaper effective Monday, May 5.

It will continue as an early morning, home-delivered community newspaper, but will be published Monday through Friday instead of tri-weekly, to offer virtually instantaneous reporting of important local news along with numerous reader features and services.

The move, reflecting the success of Paddock Publications' existing daily newspapers, is a major acceleration of expansion plans previously announced by the suburban publishing firm.

ANNOUNCEMENT was made by Stuart R. Paddock Jr., president.

He said reader and advertiser acceptance of the four existing dailies has indicated that both groups regard the additional news and advertising coverage as a significant service.

"Our response has been overwhelming," Paddock said. "Suburbanites like our new dailies so much we felt we should extend daily frequency as rapidly as possible, consistent with maintaining high editorial standards."

"We are convinced the community will be pleased by this new daily and will give it the same warm reception our dailies have received in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Rolling Meadows."

The change will place all of Paddock Publications' Cook County newspapers on a daily basis. Five papers serving communities in north DuPage County will be retained, for the present, on a tri-weekly publication schedule.

Paddock said the newest dailies represent the firm's greatest potential for future growth in terms of new readers and advertisers.

"THE RAPID GROWTH of this community holds great promise for the community and its newspaper. We intend to strengthen and enhance our news coverage," Paddock said, "while aggressively building lineage with advertisers serving the community."

"Our increased frequency will permit us to develop more varieties of news and human interest material, and it will give us a chance to offer advertisers added impact as well as exposure any week day of their choosing."

To accommodate the increased frequency, additional news, advertising and circulation personnel will be secured.

The new daily Herald is only one in a series of innovations made by Paddock Publications in recent years. Only two years ago, it converted all 16 newspapers from weekly to tri-weekly frequency. While the weekly often published 90 to 120 pages, the tri-weekly offered more compact, easier to read editions.

A month ago, the six-column "op" format was adopted, providing an uncluttered appearance and a new column width designed for optimum ease of reading. At the same time, the news departments were reorganized and a page numbering system instituted. Carrier delivery replaced the former mail distribution system, an improvement which received considerable favorable response from readers and a necessary prelude to the daily frequency.

BESIDES MORE timely news and added feature coverage, Herald readers can look forward on May 5 to:

—A daily news summary of important national and international events from United Press International sources.

—Daily results of prep sporting events.

—Daily Suburban Living features for the family, and daily news about women.

—Daily Arts of Living coverage of suburban cultural and entertainment events, including a daily horoscope.

—Daily editorials focusing on the concerns of the community and the Northwest suburbs.

STORM WARNING for Schaumburg school children can be provided in a matter of seconds with the alert radio communications network being demonstrated by Schaumburg Police Sgt. Peter Swistowicz. The radio tone alert is keyed from Police Headquarters.

Planning For 4th

Dave Brady has been named entertainment chairman for the 1969 Hoffman Estates Independence Day committee.

A newcomer to the village and the committee, Brady will coordinate recreational activities for the day-long program, scheduled to begin with a mid-morning parade and conclude with fireworks under the stars. The theme of this year's celebration is "Under the Circus Big Top."

"If you've never had the opportunity to catch a greased pig, you don't know what you're missing," Brady said, explaining that the event will be a first in the community.

"IT PROMISES TO be one of the highlights of the day, that is, if I can find a sponsoring organization; volunteers are also needed to provide manpower," he said.

Definitely-scheduled events include foot races for toddlers to teenagers under the guidance of the Jaycees, horseshoe pitching sponsored by the Lion's Club, and a teen dance directed by the Guild Players, Brady said.

Other events under consideration, if sponsoring organizations can be found, are a tug-of-war, greased pole climbing, and egg-throwing and watermelon contests.

According to John Smith, general chairman of the celebration, Brady is "an example of the kind of person we have been looking for on our committee. He and his family moved here last July and immediately became interested in the community."

BRADY HAS openings on the entertainment committee and said he would welcome suggestions from local residents. He can be contacted at 894-5470.

Independence Day committee meetings are held the fourth Friday of each month at 8 p.m. at the village hall, 161 Illinois Blvd. All meetings are open to members of the community.

Cadettes Need Adults To Help Them Grow

by MARY REIFSCHEIDER

The real hang-up in working with Girl Scout Cadette troops in Schaumburg Township is finding adult volunteers, said Mrs. John Bishop, coordinator and a troop leader.

POP Sweep Ends Plea For Change

Hanover Park voters demanded a change in government Tuesday and elected the five-member Peoples' Own Party (POP) slate.

The new village president will be Richard H. Baker. Elaine Mars, incumbent village clerk, retained her post. Trustees elected to three-year terms are Rev. David A. Bugh, James Lewis and Barry Rogers. Louis F. Barone and James M. Scheuber were elected trustees for two-year terms.

Incumbent Mayor Eugene J. Domingue ran third, behind Baker and former mayor Gordon Jensen. Independent candidate Thomas A. Rispoli finished last.

UNOFFICIAL VOTE counts show Baker received 791 votes; Jensen, 641; Domingue, 398; and Rispoli, 302.

Mrs. Mars led the voting, receiving 1,092 votes. Margret Hunt, running with Jensen's Citizens' Party slate, received 600 votes. Marguerite Harrison, running with Domingue's Unity slate, polled 401 votes.

POP trustee vote counts were Rev. Bugh, 897; Lewis, 827; Rogers, 870; Barone, 940; and Scheuber, 846.

On the Citizens' slate, trustee vote totals were Frank Barta, 584; Vincent Pettiti, 530; Donald Barta, 509; Michael Mascione, 555; and Richard A. Didriksen, 586.

Trustee candidates with the Unity Party totals were Richard C. Peszynski, 608; Mario M. Adelizzi, 509; William A. Hornmoun, 567; Frank Dalla Valle Jr., 639; and James P. Raye, 477. All except Raye were incumbents.

INDEPENDENT TRUSTEE candidate Vincent Graziano received 179 votes.

Baker, 35, is a former trustee. During his 15 months on the board, he updated the water department billing system, pushed for a master plan which Domingue did not support and made a water study that resulted in the formation of the Blue Ribbon Water Study Committee.

POP platform planks call for execution of a master plan, improvements in the original section if feasible, better relations with the park district and school districts, creation of a human relations commission, appointment of a civil service committee and observance of the public right-to-know law.

Jensen will be the only holdover board member. He has two years to serve as a trustee. He was the community's first mayor.

"People often think girls this age can't do anything," she said.

The Cadettes are seventh, eighth and ninth grade girls. This year there are seven troops in Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates with a total of 170 girls.

There could be more troops in the two communities, "but we need more leaders first," Mrs. Bishop said.

POTENTIAL VOLUNTEERS often "shy away from Cadettes. They say this is a hard age to handle, but the girls are easy to communicate with. Girls this age can help govern their own troop," Mrs. Bishop said.

Sometimes the girls are a problem, "but if you tell them what you expect, they shape up," she said.

Activities for Cadettes cover a whole spectrum from camping to giving Christmas parties for migrant children to taking trips to Washington, D.C.

This summer Mrs. Bishop, 32 girls and three other adult leaders will spend a week in Washington. The girls are selling candy to help defray the cost of $100 per girl. They have also sold stationery and staged car washes, a Christmas bazaar and a newspaper drive to raise money.

The Cadette program covers four challenges girls work to meet: social dependability, emergency preparedness, active citizenship and the Girl Scout promise.

GIRLS WORK IN six areas toward the first-class rank. Cadettes are eligible to continue scouting through a senior program. Many of the Cadettes were Scouts in grade school.

One of the favorite activities for Cadettes has been marching in the Hoffman Estates July 4 parade. Last year 30 girls marched.

The Cadettes have mixed emotions about scouting. They enjoy the activities, but often don't want their friends to know they are Scouts, Mrs. Bishop said.

For example at last year's July 4 parade, the girls marched in clown costumes. "They don't want their friends to recognize them," Mrs. Bishop said. She said many of the girls don't like to be seen in their uniforms.

For this year's parade, the girls may build a float, Mrs. Bishop said.

MRS. BISHOP SAID the Hoffman Estates Women's Club has provided leaders to aid the girls in working on badges. The local nurses association also helps.

Leaders work in the background. "We want the Cadettes to bring themselves out," Mrs. Bishop said.

Scouting has a definite place in the lives of Cadettes, Mrs. Bishop said. "It teaches girls to be responsible citizens."

Mrs. Bishop, who describes herself as a "frustrated Girl Scout," is leader for Troop 669. Her assistant is Ginny Kempf.

Other troop leaders are Mrs. Joan Crane and Alice Hedlund, Troop 590; Marsha Richmond and Carol Knop, Troop 292; Marilyn Lind and Joan Mauldin, Troop 485; Carol Ciecko and Winnie Hornby, Troop 316; Betty Barber and Barbara Green, Troop 310; and Connie Pujol, Troop 444.

School Alert Plan

Alert monitor radios have been installed in all Dist. 54 schools in Schaumburg in order to provide warning of storm conditions or other natural disasters.

Ten monitor radios were purchased at a cost of $216 per unit. Fifty per cent of the total cost was shared jointly by the Schaumburg Civil Defense unit, Dist. 54, and the village of Schaumburg. The federal government provides the other half of the funds.

Control center for the radio warning network is the police console in Schaumburg's Police Headquarters, 231 S. Civic Drive. The storm warning equipment will be directed by Sgt. Peter Swistowicz.

Swistowicz will activate a tone alert which will be simultaneously transmitted to radios located in all of the Schaumburg schools.

TORNADO WARNINGS or other information will be provided to school authorities quickly, and they can then take appropriate action to insure the safety of Schaumburg's school children.

According to Schaumburg Police Chief Martin Conroy, the radio monitors can also be used to warn school officials of suspicious persons on or near school property without alerting the trespasser.

The radio monitor system is the "first of its kind in the area," Conroy said.

Civil Defense officials in Hoffman Estates have also submitted an application for matching funds from the federal government for purchase of alert monitors. It is expected that similar radios will be installed in schools in Hoffman Estates within the near future.

Rain Causes Flooding

Wednesday night's heavy rains caused flooding in some sections of Schaumburg.

Public Works Director Edwin Denman said he received flooding complaints from areas in Timbercrest, Weathersfield and Meadow Knolls subdivisions.

He said the trouble is storm sewer lines. The flooding in parts of Timbercrest is the responsibility of Morwell Builders, Denman said. Complaints were received from residents living in the vicinity of Hickory Lane and Bramble Lane.

THAT SECTION OF the subdivision hasn't been accepted by the village and won't be until public improvements meet village standards, Denman said.

"The water is so deep, our children could sail boats in the current running down our backyard," a Bramble Lane resident told the Herald.

Water was reported standing in streets from sewers not working and several basements were reported flooded.

The flooded basements were blamed on improper grading.

The resident said the problem has been recurring for two years, ever since the area was completed.

The Hoffman Estates public works department received no flooding complaints yesterday.

'Y' Lowers Goal

A $28,000 goal for the Twinbrook YMCA Sustaining Membership Drive has been "more realistically" reduced by $4,000, Robert Williams, YMCA director, told The Herald yesterday.

Williams explained that the drive, which has been in progress for more than a month now, has so far produced $14,400 in individual contributions, and about $4,100 in its big gifts division.

Originally the YMCA board of directors had hoped to collect $18,500 in individual contributions and approximately $9,000 in big gifts, Williams said. "I DO FEEL that we will reach the individual contribution goal, but we have had to reduce the big gifts goal to a total of $5,000 because several substantial donations we had counted on failed to materialize," he said.

The drive will end April 26 with a victory dinner to be held at Roselle Methodist Church.

Individuals or organizations not yet contacted for YMCA contributions are asked to immediately contact Williams at 894-8500.

Tuesday Election Results

An official canvass of Tuesday's election results, in which the newly formed Hoffman Estates Republican Party swept into office ousting the 10-year domination of the old Village Party, was held during a special village board meeting called last night.

Women Give Money To Twinbrook 'Y'

A $200 partial donation recently presented to Twinbrook YMCA by Hoffman Estates Women's Club will be used toward purchase of a printing machine, Mrs. Thomas Alston, Jr., chairman of the club's YMCA committee said this week.

Additional funds for the printer and for annual scholarships for deserving students will be raised at the club's annual card party at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Golden Acres Country Club.

THE PREDOMINANT game at the party will be Daisy, but other games will be available, in addition to a penny auction. Tickets are still available and can be obtained by calling Mrs. R. Franck at 528-9806, or may be purchased at the door for $1.50 each.

Mrs. Alston praised the 26 women on her committee who "have so diligently worked for the YMCA," she said.

"Many of these women, and their husbands, too, have given many service hours, making hundreds of phone calls and writing letters since we helped organize the 'Y' and are now assisting in the sustaining membership campaign," she said.

Hat in Ring, He Loses Rain Coat

Hoffman Estates President-elect Fred Downey was a clear cut winner in political circles this week, but a loser in one other respect. The Herald learned.

During a victory celebration at Republican Party headquarters following the election count, Downey's black rain coat, size 42, was inadvertently taken home by a well-wisher.

SINCE THE COAT was not labeled, Downey asked that anyone who visited GOP headquarters who happens to notice an unfamiliar article of apparel contact him at 529-6834 immediately.

"When I threw my hat into the political ring I did not anticipate losing my coat," the new top-ranking village official quipped.

Conant Boosters Meet On Reorganization

Reorganization of Conant Booster Club to a strictly athletic organization and election of officers for the 1968-70 term will highlight the April 28 meeting of club members.

All interested adults are invited to voice opinions on reorganization at the 8 p.m. meeting at Conant Cafeteria, a spokesman said this week.

Ponder Repeal of Landfill

The zoning committee of the DuPage County Board of Supervisors is deciding whether to recommend a repeal of a vote earlier this year allowing a combustible landfill operation near Barrington and Fisher Roads in Bloomingdale Township near Hanover Park.

Residents from Bloomingdale and Wayne Townships met with the committee Wednesday morning to discuss the reconsideration. The site borders Wayne Township.

Objections have brought the matter from a simple board consideration to a fight.

Residents claimed Wednesday the landfill operation allowed under the county's special use and zoning variation would lower land values, pollute air and water, pose a fire hazard, increase traffic congestion and damage nearby roads.

ATTV. LEE Daniels, from Elmhurst, is representing what he called "30 concerned landowners of 1,000 acres surrounding the dump."

Daniels said he hoped the fight would end with Wednesday's meeting and come before the county board later this month for repeal.

The county board may choose to rescind its approval, Daniels said, since formal opposition has been filed.

Zoning Committee Chairman C. L. James, assistant supervisor from Downers Grove Township, said his committee would meet soon to decide its recommendation to the county board.

The zoning committee overruled a DuPage County Zoning Board of Appeals recommendation, after that board conducted a public hearing on the matter last summer. The zoning board recommended denial of the special use and variation.

The operation would fill low land in the area with wood and other refuse collected by E and E Excavating in its salvage from wrecked buildings.

NO GARBAGE would be allowed, James said, and the area either would be divided by mounds of dirt or covered with dirt to avoid large-spread fires.

According to James, the land once filled in would be used for farming.

Daniels said, according to farm experts, the land is already suitable for farming and need not be filled with such waste material.

Donald Jack Wall, assistant supervisor of Bloomingdale Township told the Register he would vote against the measure when presented to the county board again.

Wall said he was unaware there was so much opposition to the operation.

ST. JOHN LUTHERAN school pupils have found classrooms in their new six-room addition comfortable after being cramped in three older classrooms.

Upper-grade students are busy with a class. The new addition, to be dedicated April 27, also includes a gymnasium and three offices. While construction was in progress a family of cats moved into the school's classrooms.

School To Dedicate Addition

A new six-classroom addition for St. John Lutheran School, Irving Park and Rodenburg roads, Schaumburg, will be formally dedicated at 3 p.m. April 27. Guest speaker will be Dr. Martin Koehnke.

Construction of the addition was begun in the spring of 1968. Valued at $200,000, the addition is being paid for solely by members of the church and interested patrons. St. John School now has 146 pupils, and pre-registration figures point to a larger enrollment next year.

With the new addition, St. John School has nine classrooms, a multi-purpose gymnasium, three offices, a faculty workroom, washroom facilities, and storage areas. However, the three older classrooms are being used for meeting rooms at present.

ALL OF the interior painting for the new addition was done by congregation members.

According to Principal Eugene A. Halterman, workmen are applying the finishing touches to the new addition this week. Although school officials hoped to have the addition ready last September, pupils were not able to move into the new building until December 1. Prior to that time, the three older classrooms were used, and fourth and fifth grade pupils were bused to Grace Lutheran Church in Streamwood.

Even after pupils occupied the six new classrooms, construction continued on the school gymnasium while students kept sawdust out of their lunches, sang to the accompaniment of an electric drill, and recited in rhythm with a carpenter's hammer.

THERE ARE six faculty members at St. John Lutheran School, including Halterman, who teaches grades 6, 7, and 8. Next year, a seventh faculty member will be added to teach fifth and sixth grades.

Other teachers are Verona Kneip, grades 4 and 5, Doris Denninger, grade 3; Lois Christian, grade 2; Mrs. Louise Rutz, grade 1, and Arlene Eisenbraun, kindergarten.

"We have a bottom-heavy student body with more pupils in the lower grades," said Halterman, who received his M.A.

from Concordia Teachers College, River Forest. Peak enrollment of St. John School is expected to be about 300 pupils.

ST. JOHN provides an elementary education with emphasis on Christian values in every phase of the curriculum. Over 100 years old, the school has had 12 male teachers called to serve the school. Halterman came to St. John School in 1967.

Architects of the new addition were Ekroth, Marterano, and Ekroth, while the general contractor was Egyptian Construction Co., the firm that built St. Marcelline's Church in Schaumburg.

The April 27 dedication will be followed by a luncheon in the school gymnasium.

Herald Will Begin Daily Publication Monday

The Herald will become a daily newspaper effective Monday, May 5.

It will continue as an early morning, home-delivered community newspaper, but will be published Monday through Friday instead of tri-weekly, to offer virtually instantaneous reporting of important local news along with numerous reader features and services.

The move, reflecting the success of Paddock Publications' existing daily newspapers, is a major acceleration of expansion plans previously announced by the suburban publishing firm.

ANNOUNCEMENT was made by Stuart R. Paddock Jr., president.

He said reader and advertiser acceptance of the four existing dailies has indicated that both groups regard the additional news and advertising coverage as a significant service.

"Our response has been overwhelming," Paddock said. "Suburbanites like our new dailies so much we felt we should extend daily frequency as rapidly as possible, consistent with maintaining high editorial standards."

"We are convinced the community will be pleased by this new daily and will give it the same warm reception our dailies have received in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Rolling Meadows."

The change will place all of Paddock Publications' Cook County newspapers on a daily basis. Five papers serving communities in north DuPage County will be retained, for the present, on a tri-weekly publication schedule.

Paddock said the newest dailies represent the firm's greatest potential for future growth in terms of new readers and advertisers.

"THE RAPID GROWTH of this community holds great promise for the community and its newspaper. We intend to strengthen and enhance our news coverage," Paddock said, "while aggressively building lineage with advertisers serving the community."

"Our increased frequency will permit us to develop more varieties of news and human interest material, and it will give us a chance to offer advertisers added impact as well as exposure any week day of their choosing."

To accommodate the increased frequency, additional news, advertising and circulation personnel will be secured.

The new daily Herald is only one in a series of innovations made by Paddock Publications in recent years. Only two years ago, it converted all 16 newspapers from weekly to tri-weekly frequency. While the weekly often published 90 to 120 pages, the tri-weekly offered more compact, easier to read editions.

A month ago, the six-column "op" format was adopted, providing an uncluttered appearance and a new column width designed for optimum ease of reading. At the same time, the news departments were reorganized and a page numbering system instituted. Carrier delivery replaced the former mail distribution system, an improvement which received considerable favorable response from readers and a necessary prelude to the daily frequency.

BESIDES MORE timely news and added feature coverage, Herald readers can look forward on May 5 to:

—A daily news summary of important national and international events from United Press International sources.

—Daily results of prep sporting events.

—Daily Suburban Living features for the family, and daily news about women.

—Daily Arts of Living coverage of suburban cultural and entertainment events, including a daily horoscope.

—Daily editorials focusing on the concerns of the community and the Northwest suburbs.

Traffic Lights on the Way

THE RAIN ON the flood plain won't go down the drain. children living in the area are unable to walk to nearby Sandburg School. Charles Hinze, 2919 N. Jackson, Arlington Heights, manages to get his truck down flooded Jackson Street, but Relief is just four weeks away for students at John Hersey High School and motorists who fight to cross Rand Road at Thomas Street.

Like Magic, Private Lake Appears

When the spring rains come to the area Northwest of Hinze and Schenck roads in north Wheeling township, homeowners suddenly develop lake-front property.

Charles Hinze, 219 N. Jackson, in unincorporated Arlington Heights, told the Herald children in the area must walk 1½ miles around the flooded area to reach nearby Carl Sandburg School.

"THE ARLINGTON Heights post office won't even deliver the mail," Hinze said.

Hinze said he has attended hearings on the flooding held by Buffalo Grove, Wheeling and Wheeling Township but the water just gets deeper.

of a long battle involving School Dist. 214, students and parents with the state highway department for controls "before someone gets killed."

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, said yesterday he received a call from Gov. Richard Ogilvie's office telling him temporary signalling and traffic lights will be installed at the intersection within four weeks.

SCHLICKMAN said he was also told the order for permanent lights has already been made and the contract let.

"Very sophisticated" signalling equipment is now being manufactured and installation is set for late August or early September, he said.

Quick action was requested on petitions collected by students at Hersey last month. Students collected signatures requesting quick installation of lights. They also distributed about 4,000 letters requesting residents in the area to write Ogilvie and the director of the department of public works to tell them of the need for controls.

Schlickman hand carried the petitions to the governor's office late last month. Shortly thereafter, Ogilvie ordered the state department of highways to "review the matter with the object of determining if the project can be expedited from its present schedule."

Previous scheduling called for letting of a contract for permanent signals to be done in May, with installation scheduled for sometime in the fall.

LT. JACK Aldrich of the Arlington Heights Police Department was told of the four-week period for installing temporary lights. He said, "Hurray! That's my reaction."

The news also pleased officials at Hersey High School.

Man Is Injured In 1-Car Crash

Robert J. DeGraff, 40, of 4357 Kilpatrick, Chicago, was in satisfactory condition last night after a one-car accident in Wheeling.

According to Wheeling police, DeGraff was eastbound on Dundee Road when his car hit the dirt at the roadside, spun into a concrete post and did a complete sideways flip.

The car came to a stop 150 feet from where it left the road, about 150 feet west of the Portwine Road intersection. DeGraff was thrown 12 feet.

He was taken to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines. No report of his injuries was available.

Police Here Nab Suspects

Two men were gunned down early last night in a Des Plaines tavern and Wheeling police, within the hour, arrested three suspects as they tried to flee from a house.

The victims were identified as 24-year-old James Wheeler of 2817 Curry Parkway, Madison, and Ben Celano, 26, of 7901 West Grand Ave., Elmwood Park.

Wheeler suffered a gunshot wound in the back, and Celano was struck in the left arm, a spokesman at Holy Family Hospital said. Both men were in satisfactory condition last night.

SUSPECTS ARRESTED in the shooting were identified as Jose Perez, 29, 2328 Schoenbeck Road, Arlington Heights; Jesus R. Sanchez, 26, 1246 N. Campbell, Chicago, and Librado S. Gutierrez, 23, 1226 N. Campbell, Chicago.

The melee occurred at Kelly's Tap on Rand Road in Des Plaines, according to investigators.

Des Plaines Lt. Aug Schwiesow, watch commander, said the suspects were being held for questioning in the shooting. No motive had yet been determined, Schwiesow said last night, "but we do have what's believed to be the get-away car and a pistol."

Shortly after the shooting occurred, around 8 p.m., a police alarm went out giving a description of the get-away car, an orange 1965 or 1966 Mustang. Wheeling Police Officer Art Rochstadter said he was driving south of Wolf Road when he spotted a northbound car which fit the description.

ROCHSTADTER RADIOED for assistance and then followed the car to a house at 271 N. 6th, located in an unincorporated area surrounded by Wheeling.

Rochstadter said he believed a relative of two of the suspects lived at the location.

The policeman said he caught one of the suspects just outside the house and Wheeling police Officer Jack Koenig stopped another man running from the back door of the house.

Both police officers then rushed inside and there arrested the third suspect.

Koenig found a .32-caliber pistol under a rug inside the house, investigators said.

Fathers Discuss Sex Class

Fathers of children attending school in Dist. 21 are analyzing the proposed Sex and Family Living curriculum to find out what all the furor among parents is about.

The men, representing a cross section of occupations, discussed the curriculum Wednesday and concluded the sex aspect of the course had been taken out of context by some parents.

Howard Rice and Larry Schrodtt are businessmen. Walter Bruns has experience in police work, and Dwight Hall is an educator.

Their conversation provides an insight into the concern a man feels raising sons and daughters today.

RICE: Only one aspect of this program is causing trouble — sex education. The family living aspect that stresses privacy of relationships, respect for others, and understanding of others is acceptable to everybody.

SCHRODT: I fail to see why people oppose it.

RICE: Taking it out of context could upset people.

BRUNS: I would rather see it in the schools than in the streets as I learned it.

RICE: People ask, aren't children too young to learn these words for sexual organs? They're going to learn the four letter words. They bring the words home in innocence, the parents call it filthy, and then it will be out in the sandlot. Why not talk about it when it comes up?

SCHRODT: We don't question teachers about methods of teaching reading and writing and arithmetic. Why do we question about family living?

BRUNS: I remember the days when they took any parts on sex out of the books.

HALL: Sex has been taught by omission in the past. The child learns about everything, but it.

(The men then discussed various ways their children learned about birth such as observing pets or farm animals or their own mothers.)

HALL: These things are all outside school. The opponents of this curriculum are apprehensive because they say this is the job of the home. However, in most homes this is not done, the children learn at the newspaper and on TV.

RICE: My kids will learn at home, but they will run into a kid who doesn't know because he hasn't been taught. I don't want some boy with a normal drive and curiosity taking this curiosity out on my daughter.

SCHRODT: This course really needs the combined effort of home and school. Parents should express their opinions, but they have no right to dictate a thousand views to the school. If a parent is against it, he should take it to the school board.

BRUNS: I'd be upset if a teacher told me how to build a mold. I'm paying the teachers to teach my child.

SCHRODT: I just returned from Tacoma, Wash., and they were having the same problems out there. They were holding an emergency meeting of the school board.

HALL: In Dist. 21 it is a pilot study. I expect revisions.

SCHRODT: I don't know what the cause of the problem is or I could suggest a solution. Maybe parents are finding that they haven't taught it and some are saying the school must do it.

RICE: There is a confusion about sex education and general permissiveness.

Free Lance

by MARY DRESSER

It's not that dogs are genetically better than children. It's just that they have a better environment for growing up.

You can teach a dog a few rudimentary items of behavior and then relax and love it.

The contrast between dogs and humans starts at birth. Dogs are allowed to look like themselves, and it is rarely held against them.

Nobody says, "Fido looks like your side of the family," or "Spot takes after my mother-in-law and I could never stand her."

Dogs require very little sacrifice from their owners and because of this there is no impulse to clobber the poor beasts for demanding what we do not want to give.

DOGS DO NOT line up when you come home from work asking for their allowance. They do not insist on outfits conforming to the latest doggy styles. Dogs require no shoes, pajamas, underwear, "elephant pants," socks, neckties . . . or in most cases, haircuts.

The property damage even a mischievous dog can inflict is minimal compared to the havoc caused by any red-blooded child.

Children and dogs are equally capable of littering lawns, attacking their peers, piddling on the bosses' pants and assaulting strangers but no dog ever threw mud-balls at a neighbor's newly painted garage.

Dogs do not write dirty words on sidewalks, do not vandalize schools, do not crack up dad's car or smoke pot. And no dog owner ever spent one sleepless night worrying about such shenanigans as do parents of children.

Since dogs do not have to take their place in our capitalistic society, no effort is made to direct their future.

NO OWNER HAS to set up a fund for Fido's education. It is unnecessary to badger Spot from puppyhood about the need to get high marks in order to enter college and then make money.

If Fido engages in a protest movement, he is usually chastised, and his nose rubbed in it. This action has no effect on his owner's status in the community unless Fido chooses to do it continuously on the police chief's lawn.

No one worries if Fido's IQ, achievement scores, or SAT rank compares to Mitze down the street.

Mary Dresser

Compare Fido's upkeep to little Johnny's and Fido wins all the time. No dog, even the most pampered gourmet type, can consume the quantity of potato chips, pizza, soft drinks, cookies, candy and hot dogs as can Johnny.

DOGS DO NOT require orthodontists, ophthalmologists, or psychologists. A dog's yearly shots cost approximately $6 compared to yearly medical and dental bills totaling at least $75 for little Johnny.

The owner of a well cared for dog can look forward to 10 to 15 years of warm and loving companionship. The owner of a child can expect exasperation in youth, rejection in adolescence, antipathy in maturity, and aggravation in old age.

No dog has ever married and moved away only to come back and tell its owners what a rotten job they did.

This, perhaps, is the finest attribute of dogs. They do not complain.

My dog has never called me at the office to report a fight over who is to do the dishes. My dog has never complained when I come home late from the office. She would never think to say the food is overcooked, or the party is getting too loud, or my skirt is too short. She would never tell me my latest column is a lot of senseless drivel.

I NEVER EXPECT my dog to be anything other than a good dog and she complies with this ambition.

I expect my children to be perfect, and they persist in being human beings.

There is, of course, one small difference. I read this column to my dog and she fell asleep. My son listened to it.

Moore Quits Post

Mount Prospect Village Mgr. Bob Moore has resigned to take a job as trust officer for the Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank. Moore's resignation, effective May 1, was announced after the upset election of trustee Bob Teichert to Dan Congreve's job as Mount Prospect mayor.

Moore said, "I was offered a position as trust officer from the Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank several months ago and I have been considering this job for quite some time. Bob Teichert's victory in the presidential election only made my decision to take the job a little easier for me to make."

MOORE SAID THAT his resignation from office was in the best interests of the community, its residents, and elected officials.

"Teichert is a very sincere man in his convictions, and he wants a professional village manager. I'm not a professional administrator, and I don't think I fit in with Teichert's plans for professionalism in village government," said Moore.

Teichert was not available for comment Wednesday night.

Moore was appointed village manager in Oct. 1967, following the resignation of John Morgan who returned to New Hampshire to run for elective office.

Morgan resigned in June, 1967, and Moore served for three months as the acting village manager until his appointment was approved by the board of trustees. At that time, Moore was also the village attorney.

Traffic Lights Due—

say. Principal Roland Golas said, "I think it's great news. We have indicated our position on the need for lights especially with the expected large enrollment for summer school classes."

Hersey is the center for Dist. 214's summer school program since it is the only building in the district with air conditioning.

Dist. 214 had asked the state to install lights in time for the opening of Hersey in the fall, 1968. However, money had not been allotted for in the state highway's budget and action was delayed until this year. In March, 1968, the state promised the project would be given a "high priority."

Last fall, Dist. 214 initiated a busing program for students west of Rand Road who attend the high school. All students were bused, no matter how close they lived, so they would not have to cross Rand where the speed limit is 50 miles per hour.

This created a strange situation with students living only three or four blocks west of the school and having to take a bus. One resident said his high school teenager took a bus four blocks to school while his kindergarten-age youngster had to walk almost a mile to his school.

COMPLICATIONS AT the intersection arose because Buffalo Grove Road angles into Thomas Street just short of the intersection. The village agreed with state highway officials to make Buffalo Grove one way north to the edge of Sugarbrook Subdivision.

This will eliminate the need for complicated lights to handle traffic coming into the intersection from Rand Road, Thomas Street and Buffalo Grove Road.

Thomas Street was another problem because it takes a slight jog when it crosses Rand Road. State officials wanted the kink straightened out before putting in permanent signals. Land acquisition for this phase of the project also slowed plans.

"The greatest thing about this is that these youngsters have initiated this action. They have learned that the private citizens have a voice and can make that voice heard," Golas said. "The students will be glad to know their work got some action."

STUDENTS DIDN'T end their appeal for quick action with the accumulation of signed petitions. They talked about further action, including a possible protest march, renting billboards to advertise the danger at the intersection and other measures.

Craig Sjogren, a Hersey student, attended Arlington Heights Safety Commission Monday night to ask for the group's help in trying to get action. Sjogren was told by the commission the students had his full support.

Safety commission members told Sjogren to attend the village board meeting next week to request the board send a letter to Ogilvie. The letter would request the governor to give an executive order to speed installation of the traffic lights.

Former Gov. Samuel Shapiro issued such an order to install lights at Buffalo Grove and Palatine roads after two teenagers were killed in the fall of 1968.

SJOGREN REQUESTED a place on the village board's agenda Wednesday, but discovered he was too late to be included.

He was told to submit the request in writing and he could be heard at the board's next meeting on May 5.

Now Sjogren can stay at home that Monday night.

Sex Course Discussed

People hear about the Hugh Hefner philosophy, and hippies, and suddenly it seems to people we're promoting the whole business in the schools.

BRUNS: I went to a recent meeting on dope addiction at Wheeling High School. Parents could say they don't want a dope addict talking to their kids. I think this should be in the grammar schools to teach kids respect for their own bodies.

SCHRODT: Some people say "my Johnny and Jane don't know what four letter words are." I hear Johnny and Jane coming home from school. I was in the Navy for three years and the kids can shock me. I'm learning new words.

BRUNS: I was a juvenile officer. I would call parents and they would say, "not my kid!" They wouldn't believe it although I had the kid there.

SCHRODT: We all see our kids a little above others. But we have to face reality.

HALL: That's right. We don't have close family supervision. Fathers don't come home for lunch. Girls don't work with their mothers. An inevitable distance develops and we think we know them better than we do. Some parents don't care and others are naive. Kids aren't that human.

SCHRODT: We have a tendency to think of our own problems and that's all. We listen and don't comprehend. It's a problem of communication in the home and business and government.

HALL: I know one school where they taught all about sex in five sessions. I hate to pull them out in cells of individual kids. Then they ask what is so mysterious. I go for the gradual approach.

RICE: It's one part of the total being. It shouldn't be boxed in.

SCHRODT: They have a Mother-Daughter Tea in the district to show a movie and tell the fifth grade girls about menstruation. I wish they had something like that for the boys.

BRUNS: Some people who come to school board meetings to complain about the course don't have a chip, but a board on their shoulder.

RICE: There is only one film in the district. It's mostly women who objected to it.

BRUNS: Kids have cars now. We can't wait to teach them. They're going to learn it on the back roads.

HALL: These people who object are vocal but not numerous. If educators had their druthers they'd be happy to leave sex education at home.

BRUNS: If they're scared to have it taught at school, they're probably scared to teach it at home.

$100 Fine Is Imposed On Restaurant Owner

A drawn-out court case concerning the former restaurant on the southeast corner of Milwaukee Avenue and Dundee Road in Wheeling was concluded Tuesday in Arlington Heights District Court.

Arthur A. Fassbender, Sr., owner of the restaurant property at 11 S. Milwaukee, which was formerly called La Ray's Cafe, was fined $100 and $5 court costs in the case for beginning to remodel the restaurant without a building permit from the village.

Fassbender had applied for a permit after part of the restaurant building, which is over 100 years old, was demolished under a Cook County condemnation proceeding to widen the highway. Because the building is in a nonconforming area by village zoning, Fassbender would have to appear before the zoning board of appeals before a building or remodeling permit could be issued.

When Fassbender began to remodel, the village issued a stop-work order against him and the case was sent to the court for settlement.

Sewer Legal Suit

The Prospect Heights Euclid-Lake Homeowner's Association met Tuesday night to learn the current status of a year-old legal action involving the Metropolitan Sanitary District, Citizens Utilities, J. M. Brickman Mid-West Corp., Hollis Homes, Inc., and area residents in the Coachlight Manor subdivision.

Bob Schmidt, member of the Euclid-Lake Homeowner's board, explained that the legal action began when residents in neighboring subdivisions complained to Citizens Utilities that the lift station serving the area was inadequate to handle the run-off from heavy rains.

Citizens Utilities countered that the fault lay with sewer violations in the Coachlight Manor subdivision and not with the lift station.

LAST MAY, CITIZENS Utilities ordered 31 residents to correct alleged violations or water service would be terminated. By this time 190 homes have been added as parties to the suit, bringing the total to 138 homes allegedly in violation of sewer codes.

Schmidt said that Euclid-Lake Homeowner's Association representatives approached both George (Bud) Liska of Hollis-Homes, developer of Coachlight Manor, and the Metropolitan Sanitary District to reach a settlement for correcting illegal sewer hook ups. "To further complicate the situation," he added, "the sewer permits for the Coachlight area are in the name of the J. M. Brickman Mid-West Corp."

The Metropolitan Sanitary District refuses to issue Brickman sewer permits to allow development of property at River and Camp McDonald roads, until present violations in Coachlight Manor are corrected.

"LATEST COURT RULINGS indicate that second party owners have the same rights as original owners in action dealing with Hollis Homes," Schmidt advised the group. "We will meet with our attorneys and Liska on April 28 to hear his offers for correction of violations. This information will be brought back for approval or rejection to those homeowners with code violations." "If your home has a sloping driveway or a basement with one sump pump, and is in the area south of Orchard Drive, in Coachlight it is probably in violation of code," he said. "Approximately 107 residents named in the suit have not received official notice."

All members of the Euclid-Lake Association were urged to contribute $15 to the legal action fund if they had not already done so.

Viator Tuition Holds Line

As a gesture of confidence in the future of Catholic education, St. Viator High School has decided not to raise its tuition next year despite an expected deficit of $100,000.

Parents of boys attending the Catholic high school in Arlington Heights received the good word yesterday and today in letters from the school's principal, Rev.

James Michaletz, C.S.V.

"We see this as a concrete demonstration of our own hope in the future," Fr. Michaletz said.

"WE THINK ST. VIATOR is a fine school with a lot to offer boys in the area — and with a great future," he said.

"We hope people here will see this as a sign that maybe the future (of Catholic schools) isn't as bleak as some to be indicating," he told the Herald.

The decision not to raise tuition above the $350 charged currently was made by the Viatorians in consultation with a men's lay advisory group that will be expanded next week.

Together the group decided, Fr. Michaletz told the Herald yesterday, that the $100,000 deficit isn't so great as to "threaten the existence of this school."

As the Viatorians hold the line on tuition charges for 1969-70, Fr. Michaletz says school officials and the lay citizens group will be taking "a hard look" at the school's financial needs in the next four or five years.

THEY WILL ALSO try to assess whether other sources of income, such as state or federal aid, may open up.

Fr. Michaletz hopes to have the long-range financial study available "perhaps by November" so that parents of boys attending the school will have a concrete idea of what future costs might be.

The Catholic school principal sees state aid to nonpublic schools as a bargain for taxpayers.

"It is a lot easier to subsidize us $400 or $500 than to pay better than twice that much to support that boy in public school," he said.

Fr. Michaletz said he hopes St. Viator's tuition freeze may be of indirect assistance to Sacred Heart of Mary High School, which has already decided to raise tuition next year to $500 per girl even though it may mean an enrollment drop.

The Viatorians' financial problems aren't as great as Sacred Heart's, which has a heavy building debt in addition to an operating budget deficit, he said.

"WE HOPE OUR gesture of optimism will give heart to Catholic parents pessimistic about our schools' future," he explained, "and that this will help Sacred Heart."

It may also help parents fearing a double tuition squeeze because they have children in both high schools.

St. Viator's would have had a $70,000 deficit this year but a hastily planned fund project raised $30,000.

Fr. Michaletz said he hopes fund projects next year can raise enough to wipe out $50,000 of next year's deficit.

The rest of the deficit will be borne by the Viatorian order, as it will be this year. The order also contributed teaching time that would have cost $150,000 or $200,000 in lay salaries, he said.

HAPPY HOLIDAYS. Children attending St. Joseph the Worker school in Wheeling pose for pictures preceding their Saturday performance as months of the year. They are George Kruk (left), fourth grade; Lynn Pattison, seventh grade; and James Kennedy, third grade. The play will begin at 8 p.m. at Oliver Wendell Holmes School.

Seek Jubilee Aids

Volunteers are being sought to help in Wheeling's Diamond Jubilee celebration planned for August in commemoration of the village's 75th year of incorporation.

Interested citizens may help in the Revenue Division which puts out the historical booklet, merchandises novelties, sells commemorative plates, and distributes souvenir coins, or in any of nine other divisions.

Other committees include:

Women's participation, whose members will form a "Beles" chapter, distribute bonnets, form merchandising, mailing and telephone call crews, help at the office and headquarters, and plan motorcade caravans.

MEN'S PARTICIPATION volunteers will form "brush" chapters, distribute hats, ties, and participate in other activities the same as the women's participation.

Volunteers joining the queen's contest committee will make awards, arrange a kick-off party, and do telephoning, mailing and tabulation.

The patron tickets division does mailing, telephone follow-up, seating and hosting, and the tickets division does printing, ushering, box office and office work.

The spectacle committee for the show will set up a cast committee, do stage managing and properties collection. During the show, it will supervise costumes, work on props, curtains, electrical lighting, dancing, narration and acting.

THE PUBLICITY committee gathers and writes news releases, and handles pictures, distribution of flyers, and special projects.

The special events committee plans and executes events for particular days, coordinates merchants effort on displays, does work on the parade, hospitality center and information center, hosts dignitaries and decorates the hospitality center.

The office and headquarters division volunteers will type, do mailings, wait on customers, give information, handle the telephones, make signs, do art work, and decorate the interior and exterior of the office.

Those interested in taking part in the planning and preparation for the celebration may fill in the adjoining coupon and mail to John Koeppen, 139 Berkshire, Wheeling.

AESOP SAYS:

The Dog that Froze

In the winter time, a dog rolled himself together and coiled up in as small a space as possible. He was so cold that he resolved to make himself a house when summer came.

But with the return of warm weather he lay lazily in the sun, stretched at his full length. He gazed upon his large size and decided that the task would be too difficult to make a house that would accommodate him.

The next winter was especially severe and the dog froze to death.

It is easy in good times to put the bad out of mind.

One reason why the 2,500-year-old stories of this Greek slave have endured among all peoples is that they accurately reflect human strengths and weaknesses.

It is easier to lie in the sun than to work, easier to spend than to save. But prudence suggests that our best interests lie in providing for the future by present effort.

Herald Will Begin Daily Publication Monday

The Herald will become a daily newspaper effective Monday, May 5.

It will continue as an early morning, home-delivered community newspaper, but will be published Monday through Friday instead of tri-weekly, to offer virtually instantaneous reporting of important local news along with numerous reader features and services.

The move, reflecting the success of Paddock Publications' existing daily newspapers, is a major acceleration of expansion plans previously announced by the suburban publishing firm.

ANNOUNCEMENT was made by Stuart R. Paddock Jr., president.

He said reader and advertiser acceptance of the four existing dailies has indicated that both groups regard the additional news and advertising coverage as a significant service.

"Our response has been overwhelming," Paddock said. "Suburbanites like our new dailies so much we felt we should extend daily frequency as rapidly as possible, consistent with maintaining high editorial standards."

"We are convinced the community will be pleased by this new daily and will give it the same warm reception our dailies have received in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Rolling Meadows."

The change will place all of Paddock Publications' Cook County newspapers on a daily basis. Five papers serving communities in north DuPage County will be retained, for the present, on a tri-weekly publication schedule.

Paddock said the newest dailies represent the firm's greatest potential for future growth in terms of new readers and advertisers.

"THE RAPID GROWTH of this community holds great promise for the community and its newspaper. We intend to strengthen and enhance our news coverage," Paddock said, "while aggressively building lineage with advertisers serving the community."

"Our increased frequency will permit us to develop more varieties of news and human interest material, and it will give us a chance to offer advertisers added impact as well as exposure any week day of their choosing."

To accommodate the increased frequency, additional news, advertising and circulation personnel will be secured.

The new daily Herald is only one in a series of innovations made by Paddock Publications in recent years. Only two years ago, it converted all 16 newspapers from weekly to tri-weekly frequency. While the weekly often published 90 to 120 pages, the tri-weekly offered more compact, easier to read editions.

A month ago, the six-column "op" format was adopted, providing an uncluttered appearance and a new column width designed for optimum ease of reading. At the same time, the news departments were reorganized and a page numbering system instituted. Carrier delivery replaced the former mail distribution system, an improvement which received considerable favorable response from readers and a necessary prelude to the daily frequency.

BESIDES MORE timely news and added feature coverage, Herald readers can look forward on May 5 to:

—A daily news summary of important national and international events from United Press International sources.

—Daily results of prep sporting events.

—Daily Suburban Living features for the family, and daily news about women.

Traffic Lights on the Way

THE RAIN ON the flood plain won't go down the drain. children living in the area are unable to walk to nearby Sandburg School. Charles Hinze, 2919 N. Jackson, Arlington Heights, manages to get his truck down flooded Jackson Street, but Relief is just four weeks away for students at John Hersey High School and motorists who fight to cross Rand Road at Thomas Street.

The installation of temporary lights at the hazardous intersection marks the end of a long battle involving School Dist. 214, students and parents with the state highway department for controls "before someone gets killed."

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, said yesterday he received a call from Gov. Richard Ogilvie's office telling him temporary signalling and traffic lights will be installed at the intersection within four weeks.

Like Magic, Private Lake Appears

When the spring rains come to the area Northwest of Hintz and Schoenbeck roads in north Wheeling township, homeowners suddenly develop lake-front property.

Charles Hinze, 219 N. Jackson, in unincorporated Arlington Heights, told the Herald children in the area must walk 1½ miles around the flooded area to reach nearby Carl Sandburg School.

"THE ARLINGTON Heights post office won't even deliver the mail," Hinze said.

Hinze said he has attended hearings on the flooding held by Buffalo Grove, Wheeling and Wheeling Township but the water just gets deeper.

way department for controls "before someone gets killed."

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, said yesterday he received a call from Gov. Richard Ogilvie's office telling him temporary signalling and traffic lights will be installed at the intersection within four weeks.

SCHLICKMAN said he was also told the order for permanent lights has already been made and the contract let.

"Very sophisticated" signalling equipment is now being manufactured and installation is set for late August or early September, he said.

Quick action was requested on petitions collected by students at Hersey last month. Students collected signatures requesting quick installation of lights. They also distributed about 4,000 letters requesting residents in the area to write Ogilvie and the director of the department of public works to tell them of the need for controls.

Schlickman hand carried the petitions to the governor's office late last month. Shortly thereafter, Ogilvie ordered the state department of highways to "review the matter with the object of determining if the project can be expedited from its present schedule."

Previous scheduling called for letting of a contract for permanent signals to be done in May, with installation scheduled for sometime in the fall.

L.T. JACK Aldrich of the Arlington

Heights Police Department was told of the four-week period for installing temporary lights. He said, "Hurray! That's my reaction."

The news also pleased officials at Hersey High School.

Board Proclaims Day for Drivers

The Wheeling Village Board has declared tomorrow "Driver Excellence Day" in honor of 48 area high school students who will compete at Wheeling High School in a driving skills contest.

The board endorsed the "Operation Driver Excellence" program sponsored by the Dodge division of Chrysler Corp. and the Phillip Carpenter Amvet Post 66 in Wheeling.

ONE STUDENT FROM each of the area high schools competing will be selected to go to the state contest next weekend in Jacksonville, Ill., and finalists from that competition will be sent to Detroit to compete nationally for scholarships and a Dodge automobile.

Students from Wheeling and Hersey high schools will be among those competing. The public is invited to watch the skill tests from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday in the high school rear parking lot.

Animals Pose Rabies Threat

Unvaccinated dogs and cats running loose in the north Wheeling township area present a danger to themselves and human beings.

Dogs and cats without rabies shots can be carriers of the disease and, if they cannot be traced after biting a human being, the victim faces a series of painful shots.

Dr. David A. Saidel, veterinarian at the Buffalo Grove Animal Hospital, estimates that 1,000 dogs and cats may be running loose in this area.

BUFFALO GROVE has issued 185 dog licenses this year and Wheeling approximately 600. Buffalo Grove charges $3 per license and Wheeling $2.25. These licenses are issued upon presentation of a state certificate of rabies vaccination.

By state law, a puppy must receive rabies shots by four months and the shots must be renewed once a year. Certificates of rabies vaccination are issued by the veterinarian following the injection.

This vaccination is important to the pets in these areas because in sections near open farmland, there is always the possibility an unvaccinated family pet may contract the disease from a wild animal. Saidel says there was a rabid skunk in the Buffalo Grove area last summer.

Mrs. Walter Krause, Wheeling deputy clerk, says a Cook County inspector comes to the village every two years to check from house to house on rabies vaccinations.

THE SHOTS can be obtained from any registered veterinarian. Saidel is holding an open house at his new animal hospital April 28 through May 3 to acquaint people in the area with his facilities. He also sends an annual reminder to owners of pets he has treated, reminding them of the need for revaccination.

The shots given the dogs will also protect against diseases such as canine hepatitis, which cannot be passed to human beings.

The animal hospital is open from 9 to 12 a.m. and 2 to 6:30 p.m. Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays and on Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Fathers Discuss Sex Class

Fathers of children attending school in Dist. 21 are analyzing the proposed Sex and Family Living curriculum to find out what all the furor among parents is about.

The men, representing a cross section of occupations, discussed the curriculum Wednesday and concluded the sex aspect of the course had been taken out of context by some parents.

Howard Rice and Larry Schrodt are businessmen, Walter Bruns has experience in police work, and Dwight Hall is an educator.

Their conversation provides an insight into the concern a man feels raising sons and daughters today.

RICE: Only one aspect of this program is causing trouble — sex education. The family living aspect that stresses privacy of relationships, respect for others, and understanding of others is acceptable to everybody.

SCHRODT: I fail to see why people oppose it.

RICE: Taking it out of context could upset people.

BRUNS: I would rather see it in the schools than in the streets as I learned it.

RICE: People ask, aren't children too young to learn these words for sexual organs? They're going to learn the four letter words. They bring the words home in innocence, the parents call it filthy, and then it will be out in the sandlot. Why not talk about it when it comes up?

SCHRODT: We don't question teachers about methods of teaching reading and writing and arithmetic. Why do we question about family living?

BRUNS: I remember the days when they took any parts on sex out of the books.

HALL: Sex has been taught by omission in the past. The child learns about everything but it.

(The men then discussed various ways their children learned about birth such as observing pets or farm animals or their own mothers.)

HALL: These things are all outside school. The opponents of this curriculum are apprehensive because they say this is the job of the home. However, in most homes this is not done, the children learn at the newspaper and on TV.

RICE: My kids will learn at home, but they will run into a kid who doesn't know because he hasn't been taught. I don't want some boy with a normal drive and curiosity taking this curiosity out on my daughter.

SCHRODT: This course really needs the combined effort of home and school. Parents should express their opinions, but they have no right to dictate a thousand views to the school. If a parent is against it, he should take it to the school board.

BRUNS: I'd be upset if a teacher told me how to build a mold. I'm paying the teachers to teach my child.

SCHRODT: I just returned from Tacoma, Wash., and they were having the same problems out there. They were holding an emergency meeting of the school board.

HALL: In Dist. 21 it is a pilot study. I expect revisions.

SCHRODT: I don't know what the cause of the problem is or I could suggest a solution. Maybe parents are finding that they haven't taught it and some are saying the school must do it.

RICE: There is a confusion about sex education and general permissiveness.

It's not that dogs are genetically better than children, it's just that they have a better environment for growing up.

You can teach a dog a few rudimentary items of behavior and then relax and love it.

The contrast between dogs and humans starts at birth. Dogs are allowed to look like themselves, and it is rarely held against them.

Nobody says, "Fido looks like your side of the family," or "Spot takes after my mother-in-law and I could never stand her."

Dogs require very little sacrifice from their owners and because of this there is no impulse to clobber the poor beasts for demanding what we do not want to give.

DOGS DO NOT line up when you come home from work asking for their allowance. They do not insist on outfits conforming to the latest doggy styles. Dogs require no shoes, pajamas, underwear, "elephant pants," socks, neckties . . . or in most cases, haircuts.

The property damage even a mischievous dog can inflict is minimal compared to the havoc caused by any red-blooded child.

Children and dogs are equally capable of littering lawns, attacking their peers, piddling on the bosses' pants and assaulting strangers . . . but no dog ever threw mud-balls at a neighbor's newly painted garage.

Dogs do not write dirty words on sidewalks, do not vandalize schools, do not crack up dad's car or smoke pot. And no dog owner ever spent one sleepless night worrying about such shenanigans as do parents of children.

Since dogs do not have to take their place in our capitalistic society, no effort is made to direct their future.

NO OWNER HAS to set up a fund for Fido's education. It is unnecessary to badger Spot from puppyhood about the need to get high marks in order to enter college and then make money.

If Fido engages in a protest movement, he is usually chastised, and his nose rubbed in it. This action has no effect on his owner's status in the community unless Fido chooses to do it continuously on the police chief's lawn.

No one worries if Fido's IQ, achievement scores, or SAT rank compares to Mitzie down the street.

Mary Dresser

Compare Fido's upkeep to little Johnny's and Fido wins all the time. No dog, even the most pampered gourmet type, can consume the quantity of potato chips, pizza, soft drinks, cookies, candy and hot dogs as can Johnny.

DOGS DO NOT require orthodontists, ophthalmologists, or psychologists. A dog's yearly shots cost approximately $8 compared to yearly medical and dental bills totaling at least $75 for little Johnny.

The owner of a well cared for dog can look forward to 10 to 15 years of warm and loving companionship. The owner of a child can expect exasperation in youth, rejection in adolescence, antipathy in maturity, and aggravation in old age.

No dog has ever married and moved away only to come back and tell its owners what a rotten job they did.

This, perhaps, is the finest attribute of dogs. They do not complain.

My dog has never called me at the office to report a fight over who is to do the dishes. My dog has never complained when I come home late from the office. She would never think to say the food is overcooked, or the party is getting too loud, or my skirt is too short. She would never tell me my latest column is a lot of senseless drivel.

I NEVER EXPECT my dog to be anything other than a good dog and she complies with this ambition.

I expect my children to be perfect, and they persist in being human beings.

There is, of course, one small difference. I read this column to my dog and she fell asleep. My son listened to it.

Moore Quits Post Sewer Legal Suit

Mount Prospect Village Mgr. Bob Moore has resigned to take a job as trust officer for the Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank.

Moore's resignation, effective May 1, was announced after the upset election of trustee Bob Teichert to Dan Congreve's job as Mount Prospect mayor.

Moore said, "I was offered a position as trust officer from the Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank several months ago and I have been considering this job for quite some time. Bob Teichert's victory in the presidential election only made my decision to take the job a little easier for me to make."

MOORE SAID THAT his resignation from office was in the best interests of the community, its residents, and elected officials.

"Teichert is a very sincere man in his convictions, and he wants a professional village manager. I'm not a professional administrator, and I don't think that I fit in with Teichert's plans for professionalism in village government," said Moore.

Teichert was not available for comment Wednesday night.

Moore was appointed village manager in Oct. 1967, following the resignation of John Morgan who returned to New Hampshire to run for elective office.

Morgan resigned in June, 1967, and Moore served for three months as the acting village manager until his appointment was approved by the board of trustees. At that time, Moore was also the village attorney.

The Prospect Heights Euclid-Lake Homeowner's Association met Tuesday night to learn the current status of a year-old legal action involving the Metropolitan Sanitary District, Citizens Utilities, J. M. Brickman Mid-West Corp., Hollis Homes, Inc., and area residents in the Coachlight Manor subdivision.

Bob Schmidt, member of the Euclid-Lake Homeowner's board, explained that the legal action began when residents in neighboring subdivisions complained to Citizens Utilities that the lift station serving the area was inadequate to handle the run-off from heavy rains.

Citizens Utilities countered that the fault lay with sewer violations in the Coachlight Manor subdivision and not with the lift station.

LAST MAY, CITIZENS Utilities ordered 31 residents to correct alleged violations or water service would be terminated. By this time 100 homes have been added as parties to the suit, bringing the total to 138 homes allegedly in violation of sewer codes.

Schmidt said that Euclid-Lake Homeowner's Association representatives approached both George (Bud) Lisks of Hollis-Homes, developer of Coachlight Manor, and the Metropolitan Sanitary District to reach a settlement for correcting illegal sewer hook ups. "To further complicate the situation," he added, "the sewer permits for the Coachlight area are in the name of the J. M. Brickman Mid-West Corp."

The Metropolitan Sanitary District refuses to issue Brickman sewer permits to allow development of property at River and Camp McDonald roads, until present violations in Coachlight Manor are corrected.

"LATEST COURT RULINGS indicate that second party owners have the same rights as original owners in action dealing with Hollis Homes," Schmidt advised the group. "We will meet with our attorneys and Lisks on April 28 to hear his offers for correction of violations. This information will be brought back for approval or rejection to those homeowners with code violations." "If your home has a sloping driveway or a basement with one sump pump, and is in the area south of Orchard Drive, in Coachlight it is probably in violation of code," he said. "Approximately 107 residents named in the suit have not received official notice."

All members of the Euclid-Lake Association were urged to contribute $15 to the legal action fund if they had not already done so.

Traffic Lights Due—

say. Principal Roland Goins said, "I think it's great news. We have indicated our position on the need for lights especially with the expected large enrollment for summer school classes."

Hersey is the center for Dist. 214's summer school program since it is the only building in the district with air conditioning.

Dist. 214 had asked the state to install lights in time for the opening of Hersey in the fall, 1968. However, money had not been allotted for in the state highway's budget and action was delayed until this year. In March, 1968, the state promised the project would be given a "high priority."

Last fall, Dist. 214 initiated a busing program for students west of Rand Road who attend the high school. All students were bused, no matter how close they lived, so they would not have to cross Rand where the speed limit is 50 miles per hour.

This created a strange situation with students living only three or four blocks west of the school and having to take a bus. One resident said his high school teenager took a bus four blocks to school while his kindergarten-age youngster had to walk almost a mile to his school.

COMPLICATIONS AT the intersection arose because Buffalo Grove Road angles into Thomas Street just short of the intersection. The village agreed with state highway officials to make Buffalo Grove one way north to the edge of Sugarbrook Subdivision.

This will eliminate the need for complicated lights to handle traffic coming into the intersection from Rand Road, Thomas Street and Buffalo Grove Road.

Thomas Street was another problem because it takes a slight jog when it crosses Rand Road. State officials wanted the kink straightened out before putting in permanent signals. Land acquisition for this phase of the project also slowed plans.

"The greatest thing about this is that these youngsters have initiated this action. They have learned that the private citizens have a voice and can make that voice heard," Goins said. "The students will be glad to know their work got some action."

STUDENTS DIDN'T end their appeal for quick action with the accumulation of signed petitions. They talked about further action, including a possible protest march, renting billboards to advertise the danger at the intersection and other measures.

Craig Sjogren, a Hersey student, attended Arlington Heights Safety Commission Monday night to ask for the group's help in trying to get action. Sjogren was told by the commission the students had its full support.

Safety commission members told Sjogren to attend the village board meeting next week to request the board send a letter to Ogilvie. The letter would request the governor to give an executive order to speed installation of the traffic lights.

Former Gov. Samuel Shapiro issued such an order to install lights at Buffalo Grove and Palatine roads after two teenagers were killed in the fall of 1968.

SJOGREN REQUESTED a place on the village board's agenda Wednesday, but discovered he was too late to be included.

He was told to submit the request in writing and he could be heard at the board's next meeting on May 5.

Now Sjogren can stay at home that Monday night.

with the official figures after Monday's vote canvass.

$100 Fine Is Imposed On Restaurant Owner

A drawn-out court case concerning the former restaurant on the southeast corner of Milwaukee Avenue and Dundee Road in Wheeling was concluded Tuesday in Arlington Heights District Court.

Arthur A. Fassbender, Sr., owner of the restaurant property at 11 S. Milwaukee, which was formerly called La Ray's Cafe, was fined $100 and $5 court costs in the case for beginning to remodel the restaurant without a building permit from the village.

Fassbender had applied for a permit after part of the restaurant building, which is over 100 years old, was demolished under a Cook County condemnation proceeding to widen the highway. Because the building is in a nonconforming area by village zoning, Fassbender would have to appear before the zoning board of appeals before a building or remodeling permit could be issued.

When Fassbender began to remodel, the village issued a stop-work order against him and the case was sent to the court for settlement.

Herald Will Begin Daily Publication Monday

The Herald will become a daily newspaper effective Monday, May 5.

It will continue as an early morning, home-delivered community newspaper, but will be published Monday through Friday instead of tri-weekly, to offer virtually instantaneous reporting of important local news along with numerous reader features and services.

The move, reflecting the success of Paddock Publications' existing daily newspapers, is a major acceleration of the expansion plans previously announced by the suburban publishing firm.

ANNOUNCEMENT was made by Stuart R. Paddock Jr., president.

He said reader and advertiser acceptance of the four existing dailies has indicated that both groups regard the additional news and advertising coverage as a significant service.

"Our response has been overwhelming," Paddock said. "Suburbanites like our new dailies so much we felt we should extend daily frequency as rapidly as possible, consistent with maintaining high editorial standards."

"We are convinced the community will be pleased by this new daily and will give it the same warm reception our dailies have received in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Rolling Meadows."

The change will place all of Paddock Publications' Cook County newspapers on a daily basis. Five papers serving communities in north DuPage County will be retained, for the present, on a tri-weekly publication schedule.

Paddock said the newest dailies represent the firm's greatest potential for future growth in terms of new readers and advertisers.

"THE RAPID GROWTH of this community holds great promise for the community and its newspaper. We intend to strengthen and enhance our news coverage," Paddock said, "while aggressively building lineage with advertisers serving the community."

"Our increased frequency will permit us to develop more varieties of news and human interest material, and it will give us a chance to offer advertisers added impact as well as exposure any week day of their choosing."

To accommodate the increased frequency, additional news, advertising and circulation personnel will be secured.

The new daily Herald is only one in a series of innovations made by Paddock Publications in recent years. Only two years ago, it converted all 16 newspapers from weekly to tri-weekly frequency. While the weekly often published 90 to 120 pages, the tri-weekly offered more compact, easier to read editions.

A month ago, the six-column "op" format was adopted, providing an uncluttered appearance and a new column width designed for optimum ease of reading. At the same time, the news departments were reorganized and a page numbering system instituted. Carrier delivery replaced the former mail distribution system, an improvement which received considerable favorable response from readers and a necessary prelude to the daily frequency.

BESIDES MORE timely news and added feature coverage, Herald readers can look forward on May 5 to:

—A daily news summary of important national and international events from United Press International sources.

—Daily results of prep sporting events.

—Daily Suburban Living features for the family, and daily news about women.

—Daily Arts of Living coverage of suburban cultural and entertainment events, including a daily horoscope.

—Daily editorials focusing on the concerns of the community and the Northwest suburbs.

Traffic Lights on the Way

THE RAIN ON the flood plain won't go down the drain. Charles Hinze, 2919 N. Jackson, Arlington Heights, manages to get his truck down flooded Jackson Street, but children living in the area are unable to walk to nearby Sandburg School.

Relief is just four weeks away for students at John Hersey High School and motorists who fight to cross Rand Road at Thomas Street.

The installation of temporary lights at the hazardous intersection marks the end of a long battle involving School Dist. 214, students and parents with the state highway department for controls "before someone gets killed."

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, said yesterday he received a call from Gov. Richard Ogilvie's office telling him temporary signalling and traffic lights will be installed at the intersection within four weeks.

SCHLICKMAN said he was also told the order for permanent lights has already been made and the contract let.

"Very sophisticated" signalling equipment is now being manufactured and installation is set for late August or early September, he said.

Quick action was requested on petitions collected by students at Hersey last month. Students collected signatures requesting quick installation of lights. They also distributed about 4,000 letters requesting residents in the area to write Ogilvie and the director of the department of public works to tell them of the need for controls.

Schlickman hand carried the petitions to the governor's office late last month. Shortly thereafter, Ogilvie ordered the state department of highways to "review the matter with the object of determining if the project can be expedited from its present schedule."

Previous scheduling called for letting of a contract for permanent signals to be done in May, with installation scheduled for sometime in the fall.

LT. JACK Aldrich of the Arlington

Heights Police Department was told of the four-week period for installing temporary lights. He said, "Hurray! That's my reaction."

The news also pleased officials at Her-

Like Magic, Private Lake Appears

When the spring rains come to the area Northwest of Hintz and Schoenbeck roads in north Wheeling township, homeowners suddenly develop lake-front property.

Charles Hinze, 219 N. Jackson, in unincorporated Arlington Heights, told the Herald children in the area must walk 1½ miles around the flooded area to reach nearby Carl Sandburg School.

"THE ARLINGTON Heights post office won't even deliver the mail," Hinze said.

Hinze said he has attended hearings on the flooding held by Buffalo Grove, Wheeling and Wheeling Township but the water just gets deeper.

Board Proclaims Day for Drivers

The Wheeling Village Board has declared tomorrow "Driver Excellence Day" in honor of 48 area high school students who will compete at Wheeling High School in a driving skills contest.

The board endorsed the "Operation Driver Excellence" program sponsored by the Dodge division of Chrysler Corp. and the Phillip Carpenter Amvet Post 66 in Wheeling.

ONE STUDENT FROM each of the area high schools competing will be selected to go to the state contest next weekend in Jacksonville, Ill., and finalists from that competition will be sent to Detroit to compete nationally for scholarships and a Dodge automobile.

Students from Wheeling and Hersey high schools will be among those competing. The public is invited to watch the skill tests from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday in the high school rear parking lot.

Animals Pose Rabies Threat

Unvaccinated dogs and cats running loose in the north Wheeling township area present a danger to themselves and human beings.

Dogs and cats without rabies shots can be carriers of the disease and, if they cannot be traced after biting a human being, the victim faces a series of painful shots.

Dr. David A. Saidel, veterinarian at the Buffalo Grove Animal Hospital, estimates that 1,000 dogs and cats may be running loose in this area.

BUFFALO GROVE has issued 185 dog licenses this year and Wheeling approximately 600. Buffalo Grove charges $3 per license and Wheeling $2.25. These licenses are issued upon presentation of a state certificate of rabies vaccination.

By state law, a puppy must receive rabies shots by four months and the shots must be renewed once a year. Certificates of rabies vaccination are issued by the veterinarian following the injection.

This vaccination is important to the pets in these areas because in sections near open farmland, there is always the possibility an unvaccinated family pet may contract the disease from a wild animal. Saidel says there was a rabid skunk in the Buffalo Grove area last summer.

Mrs. Walter Krause, Wheeling deputy clerk, says a Cook County inspector comes to the village every two years to check from house to house on rabies vaccinations.

THE SHOTS can be obtained from any registered veterinarian. Saidel is holding an open house at his new animal hospital April 28 through May 3 to acquaint people in the area with his facilities. He also sends an annual reminder to owners of pets he has treated, reminding them of the need for revaccination.

The shots given the dogs will also protect against diseases such as canine hepatitis, which cannot be passed to human beings.

The animal hospital is open from 9 to 12 a.m. and 2 to 6:30 p.m. Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays and on Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Fathers Discuss Sex Class

Fathers of children attending school in Dist. 21 are analyzing the proposed Sex and Family Living curriculum to find out what all the furor among parents is about.

The men, representing a cross section of occupations, discussed the curriculum Wednesday and concluded the sex aspect of the course had been taken out of context by some parents.

Howard Rice and Larry Schrod are businessmen, Walter Bruns has experience in police work, and Dwight Hall is an educator.

Their conversation provides an insight into the concern a man feels raising sons and daughters today.

RICE: Only one aspect of this program is causing trouble — sex education. The family living aspect that stresses privacy of relationships, respect for others, and understanding of others is acceptable to everybody.

SCHRODT: I fail to see why people oppose it.

RICE: Taking it out of context could upset people.

BRUNS: I would rather see it in the schools than in the streets as I learned it.

RICE: People ask, aren't children too young to learn these words for sexual organs? They're going to learn the four letter words. They bring the words home in innocence, the parents call it filthy, and then it will be out in the sandlot. Why not talk about it when it comes up?

SCHRODT: We don't question teachers about methods of teaching reading and writing and arithmetic. Why do we question about family living?

BRUNS: I remember the days when they took any parts on sex out of the books.

HALL: Sex has been taught by omission in the past. The child learns about everything but it.

(The men then discussed various ways their children learned about birth such as observing pets or farm animals or their own mothers.)

HALL: These things are all outside school. The opponents of this curriculum are apprehensive because they say this is the job of the home. However, in most homes this is not done, the children learn at the newstand and on TV.

RICE: My kids will learn at home, but they will run into a kid who doesn't know because he hasn't been taught. I don't want some boy with a normal drive and curiosity taking this curiosity out on my daughter.

SCHRODT: This course really needs the combined effort of home and school. Parents should express their opinions, but they have no right to dictate a thousand views to the school. If a parent is against it, he should take it to the school board.

BRUNS: I'd be upset if a teacher told me how to build a mold. I'm paying the teachers to teach my child.

SCHRODT: I just returned from Tacoma, Wash., and they were having the same problems out there. They were holding an emergency meeting of the school board.

HALL: In Dist. 21 it is a pilot study. I expect revisions.

SCHRODT: I don't know what the cause of the problem is or I could suggest a solution. Maybe parents are finding that they haven't taught it and some are saying the school must do it.

RICE: There is a confusion about sex education and general permissiveness.

It's not that dogs are genetically better than children. It's just that they have a better environment for growing up.

You can teach a dog a few rudimentary items of behavior and then relax and love it.

The contrast between dogs and humans starts at birth. Dogs are allowed to look like themselves, and it is rarely held against them.

Nobody says, "Fido looks like your side of the family," or "Spot takes after my mother-in-law and I could never stand her."

Dogs require very little sacrifice from their owners and because of this there is no impulse to clobber the poor beasts for demanding what we do not want to give.

DOGS DO NOT line up when you come home from work asking for their allowance. They do not insist on outfits conforming to the latest doggy styles. Dogs require no shoes, pajamas, underwear, "elephant pants," socks, neckties or in most cases, haircuts.

The property damage even a mischievous dog can inflict is minimal compared to the havoc caused by any red-blooded child.

Children and dogs are equally capable of littering lawns, attacking their peers, piddling on the bosses' pants and assaulting strangers but no dog ever threw mud-balls at a neighbor's newly painted garage.

Dogs do not write dirty words on sidewalks, do not vandalize schools, do not crack up dad's car or smoke pot. And no dog owner ever spent one sleepless night worrying about such shenanigans as do parents of children.

Since dogs do not have to take their place in our capitalistic society, no effort is made to direct their future.

NO OWNER HAS to set up a fund for Fido's education. It is unnecessary to badge Spot from puppyhood about the need to get high marks in order to enter college and then make money.

If Fido engages in a protest movement, he is usually chastised, and his nose rubbed in it. This action has no effect on his owner's status in the community unless Fido chooses to do it continuously on the police chief's lawn.

No one worries if Fido's IQ, achievement scores, or SAT rank compares to Mitzie down the street.

Mary Dresser

Compare Fido's upkeep to little Johnny's and Fido wins all the time. No dog, even the most pampered gourmet type, can consume the quantity of potato chips, pizza, soft drinks, cookies, candy and hot dogs as can Johnny.

DOGS DO NOT require orthodontists, ophthalmologists, or psychologists. A dog's yearly shots cost approximately $6 compared to yearly medical and dental bills totaling at least $75 for little Johnny.

The owner of a well cared for dog can look forward to 10 to 15 years of warm and loving companionship. The owner of a child can expect exasperation in youth, rejection in adolescence, antipathy in maturity, and aggravation in old age.

No dog has ever married and moved away only to come back and tell its owners what a rotten job they did.

This, perhaps, is the finest attribute of dogs. They do not complain.

My dog has never called me at the office to report a fight over who is to do the dishes. My dog has never complained when I come home late from the office. She would never think to say the food is overcooked, or the party is getting too loud, or my skirt is too short. She would never tell me my latest column is a lot of senseless drivel.

I NEVER EXPECT my dog to be anything other than a good dog and she complies with this ambition.

I expect my children to be perfect, and they persist in being human beings.

There is, of course, one small difference. I read this column to my dog and she fell asleep. My son listened to it.

Moore Quits Post Sewer Legal Suit

Mount Prospect Village Mgr. Bob Moore has resigned to take a job as trust officer for the Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank.

Moore's resignation, effective May 1, was announced after the upset election of trustee Bob Teichert to Dan Congreve's job as Mount Prospect mayor.

Moore said, "I was offered a position as trust officer from the Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank several months ago and I have been considering this job for quite some time. Bob Teichert's victory in the presidential election only made my decision to take the job a little easier for me to make."

MOORE SAID THAT his resignation from office was in the best interests of the community, its residents, and elected officials.

"Teichert is a very sincere man in his convictions, and he wants a professional village manager. I'm not a professional administrator, and I don't think that I fit in with Teichert's plans for professionalism in village government," said Moore.

Teichert was not available for comment Wednesday night.

Moore was appointed village manager in Oct. 1967, following the resignation of John Mongan who returned to New Hampshire to run for elective office.

Mongan resigned in June, 1967, and Moore served for three months as the acting village manager until his appointment was approved by the board of trustees. At that time, Moore was also the village attorney.

The Prospect Heights Euclid-Lake Homeowner's Association met Tuesday night to learn the current status of a year-old legal action involving the Metropolitan Sanitary District, Citizens Utilities, J. M. Brickman Mid-West Corp., Hollis Homes, Inc., and area residents in the Coachlight Manor subdivision.

Bob Schmidt, member of the Euclid-Lake Homeowner's board, explained that the legal action began when residents in neighboring subdivisions complained to Citizens Utilities that the lift station serving the area was inadequate to handle the run-off from heavy rains.

Citizens Utilities countered that the fault lay with sewer violations in the Coachlight Manor subdivision and not with the lift station.

LAST MAY, CITIZENS Utilities ordered 31 residents to correct alleged violations or water service would be terminated. By this time 100 homes have been added as parties to the suit, bringing the total to 138 homes allegedly in violation of sewer codes.

Schmidt said that Euclid-Lake Homeowner's Association representatives approached both George (Bud) Liska of Hollis-Homes, developer of Coachlight Manor, and the Metropolitan Sanitary District to reach a settlement for correcting illegal sewer hook ups.

"To further complicate the situation," he added, "the sewer permits for the Coachlight area are in the name of the J. M. Brickman Mid-West Corp."

The Metropolitan Sanitary District refuses to issue Brickman sewer permits to allow development of property at River and Camp McDonald roads, until present violations in Coachlight Manor are corrected.

"LATEST COURT RULINGS indicate that second party owners have the same rights as original owners in action dealing with Hollis Homes," Schmidt advised the group. "We will meet with our attorneys and Liska on April 28 to hear his offers for correction of violations. This information will be brought back for approval or rejection to those homeowners with code violations." "If your home has a sloping driveway or a basement with one sump pump, and is in the area south of Orchard Drive, in Coachlight it is probably in violation of code," he said. "Approximately 107 residents named in the suit have not received official notice."

All members of the Euclid-Lake Association were urged to contribute $15 to the legal action fund if they had not already done so.

Traffic Lights Due—

say. Principal Roland Goins said, "I think it's great news. We have indicated our position on the need for lights especially with the expected large enrollment for summer school classes."

Hersey is the center for Dist. 214's summer school program since it is the only building in the district with air conditioning.

Dist. 214 had asked the state to install lights in time for the opening of Hersey in the fall, 1968. However, money had not been allotted for in the state highway's budget and action was delayed until this year. In March, 1968, the state promised the project would be given a "high priority."

Last fall, Dist. 214 initiated a busing program for students west of Rand Road who attend the high school. All students were bused, no matter how close they lived, so they would not have to cross Rand where the speed limit is 50 miles per hour.

This created a strange situation with students living only three or four blocks west of the school and having to take a bus. One resident said his high school teenager took a bus four blocks to school while his kindergarten-age youngster had to walk almost a mile to his school.

COMPLICATIONS AT the intersection arose because Buffalo Grove Road angles into Thomas Street just short of the intersection. The village agreed with state highway officials to make Buffalo Grove one way north to the edge of Sugarbrook Subdivision.

This will eliminate the need for complicated lights to handle traffic coming into the intersection from Rand Road, Thomas Street and Buffalo Grove Road.

Thomas Street was another problem because it takes a slight jog when it crosses Rand Road. State officials wanted the kink straightened out before putting in permanent signals. Land acquisition for this phase of the project also slowed plans.

"The greatest thing about this is that these youngsters have initiated this action. They have learned that the private citizens have a voice and can make that voice heard," Goins said. "The students will be glad to know their work got some action."

STUDENTS DIDN'T end their appeal for quick action with the accumulation of signed petitions. They talked about further action, including a possible protest march, renting billboards to advertise the danger at the intersection and other measures.

Craig Sjogren, a Hersey student, attended Arlington Heights Safety Commission Monday night to ask for the group's help in trying to get action. Sjogren was told by the commission the students had its full support.

Safety commission members told Sjogren to attend the village board meeting next week to request the board send a letter to Ogilvie. The letter would request the governor to give an executive order to speed installation of the traffic lights.

Former Gov. Samuel Shapiro issued such an order to install lights at Buffalo Grove and Palatine roads after two teenagers were killed in the fall of 1968.

SJOGREN REQUESTED a place on the village board's agenda Wednesday, but discovered he was too late to be included.

He was told to submit the request in writing and he could be heard at the board's next meeting on May 5.

Now Sjogren can stay at home that Monday night.

Sex Course Discussed

People hear about the Hugh Hefner philosophy, and hippies, and suddenly it seems to people we're promoting the whole business in the schools.

BRUNS: I went to a recent meeting on dope addiction at Wheeling High School. Parents could say they don't want a dope addict talking to their kids. I think this should be in the grammar schools to teach kids respect for their own bodies.

SCHRODT: Some people say "my Johnny and Jane don't know what four letter words are." I hear Johnny and Jane coming home from school. I was in the Navy for three years and the kids can shock me. I'm learning new words.

BRUNS: I was a juvenile officer. I would call parents and they would say, "not my kid!" They wouldn't believe it although I had the kid there.

SCHRODT: We all see our kids a little after others. But we have to face reality.

HALL: That's right. We don't have close family supervision. Fathers don't come home for lunch. Girls don't work with their mothers. An inevitable distance develops and we think we know them better than we do. Some parents don't care and others are naive. Kids aren't that human.

SCHRODT: We have a tendency to think of our own problems and that's all. We listen and don't comprehend. It's a problem of communication in the home and business and government.

HALL: I know one school where they taught all about sex in five sessions. I hate to pull them out in cells of individual kids. Then they ask what is so mysterious. I go for the gradual approach.

RICE: It's one part of the total being. It shouldn't be boxed in.

SCHRODT: They have a Mother-Daughter Tea in the district to show a movie and tell the fifth grade girls about menstruation. I wish they had something like that for the boys.

BRUNS: Some people who come to school board meetings to complain about the course don't have a chip, but a board on their shoulder.

RICE: There is only one film in the district. It's mostly women who objected to it.

BRUNS: Kids have cars now. We can't wait to teach them. They're going to learn it on the back roads.

HALL: These people who object are vocal but not numerous. If educators had their druthers they'd be happy to leave sex education at home.

BRUNS: If they're scared to have it taught at school, they're probably scared to teach it at home.

with the official figures after Monday's vote canvass.

$100 Fine Is Imposed On Restaurant Owner

A drawn-out court case concerning the former restaurant on the southeast corner of Milwaukee Avenue and Dundee Road in Wheeling was concluded Tuesday in Arlington Heights District Court.

Arthur A. Fassbender, Sr., owner of the restaurant property at 11 S. Milwaukee, which was formerly called La Ray's Cafe, was fined $100 and $5 court costs in the case for beginning to remodel the restaurant without a building permit from the village.

Fassbender had applied for a permit after part of the restaurant building, which is over 100 years old, was demolished under a Cook County condemnation proceeding to widen the highway. Because the building is in a nonconforming area by village zoning, Fassbender would have to appear before the zoning board of appeals before a building or remodeling permit could be issued.

When Fassbender began to remodel, the village issued a stop-work order against him and the case was sent to the court for settlement.

FROM UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Korean Talks Start

WASHINGTON — A face-to-face confrontation between representatives of President Nixon and the North Koreans was to have begun at 8 p.m. yesterday, Central Standard Time. The United States agreed to the meeting at Panmunjom after the bodies of two crewmen were found yesterday in the Sea of Japan.

The crewmen were among 31 shot down by North Korea in what the United States declared is international air space.

Red Policy Changes?

PRAGUE — Changes in the Communist Party's decision-making Presidium accompanied Alexander Dubcek's fall from power as first secretary of Czechoslovakia's branch of the party, according to Czechoslovakian President Ludvik Svoboda.

Dubcek was replaced yesterday by Gustav Husak, leader of the Slovak branch of the party, a conservative considered more acceptable to the Soviet Union.

Tub Sharing Is Private

WASHINGTON — The federal government doesn't care who you share your bathtub or shower with but it still wants to know if you do share facilities. That was one of the immediate changes made in the 1970 census questionnaire.

Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans said this and other changes were made in response to Congressional criticism. From now on, all census questions will be cleared with Congress two years in advance.

Asks Competition Cut

SPRINGFIELD — A move to outlaw territorial competition between electric power suppliers, including private, cooperative and municipal systems, was urged yesterday by Carl E. Bagge of the Federal Power Commission (FPC).

Bagge asked for state legislation here and a federal law which would provide FPC jurisdiction over wholesale rates and services of rural electric cooperatives, municipal electric systems and state power authorities.

Verdict Is Pleasing

LOS ANGELES — The man-in-the-street in Los Angeles, where Sirhan B. Sirhan was tried, generally agreed Thursday with the jury that found him guilty of first degree murder in the slaying of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. Some hoped he would be executed.

"I think it is good. He got what he deserved," said Elizabeth Likes, a switchboard operator at a bakery. "If he got off, I'm afraid there would have been a number of irate people in this country. I think a lot of people were fond of Sen. Kennedy."

Ask Pollution Power

SPRINGFIELD — Legislation will be introduced in the House next week to give Atty Gen William Scott's office power to prosecute air and water pollution violators by statute.

Scott told a news conference here yesterday the office currently has only its inherent to common law power of prosecution. The bill provides for a full time antipollution staff within his office composed of four prosecutors, eight investigators and a pollution control engineer.

Sell College Bonds

MACOMB, Ill. — The Board of Governors of State Colleges and Universities yesterday skipped around a state imposed interest limit and sold $9.5 million in revenue bonds to finance three building projects.

The money will be used to construct a 800-bed dormitory and a 7,500-seat athletic stadium at East Illinois University plus a 232-unit student apartment building at Western Illinois University. In another action, the board proposed the name of 'Governors State University' for the school for juniors, seniors and master's degree candidates to be constructed near the Chicago suburb of Park Forest.

'Y' Plans Inter-Race Camping

by BOB ZANIC

"No, you won't find any planned human relations workshops or programs there, but you will find a group of boys doing things together and learning something about each other in the process."

Gary Meier, Countryside YMCA program director, had just summed up the philosophy behind the Y's participation in an inter-racial camping program at Camp Duncan near Volo, Ill. in July and August.

THE CAMP WILL HOLD two 12 day periods, boys aged 8 to 13 attending each.

Meier says the program will bring together boys from the Duncan YMCA on Chicago's near west side and boys from the Palatine-Rolling Meadows area.

In keeping with the program's objectives, 50 of the boys will be black, 50 will be Spanish-speaking and 50 white.

THE FIRST GROUP will spend two weeks at the camp from July 28 to August

8 and will be followed by a similar group from Aug. 11 to Aug. 22.

Duncan YMCA operates Camp Duncan and will recruit the inner-city boys while the Countryside YMCA will recruit the suburban boys.

According to Meier, public response to the program has been favorable.

THE IDEA FOR THE inter-racial camping program is attributed to Joseph (Joe) Tobolik, executive director at Camp Duncan.

"I only saw an opportunity to bring the inner-city and suburban boys together for a learning experience in human relations and I took it," Tobolik said.

Tobolik, previously a director at the Duncan YMCA for 13 years, said that it is a fact of life that these boys grow into adulthood without ever being aware of each other's world. He said he is trying to change that by bringing the boys together.

"I realize it is only a short time in which to accomplish this, he said but perhaps they will learn to understand and appreciate the qualities of another human being without letting skin color get in the way. 'I believe understanding between people is a good thing.'"

THE COUNTRYSIDE YMCA was selected to participate in this program for four reasons:

— It is the nearest neighborhood YMCA to Camp Duncan.

— The Countryside staff's open-mindedness.

— The two YMCA's previously shared day and resident camping program.

— It is typical of the whole service area.

The inter-racial camping program was proposed by Tobolik earlier this year and was finalized in March. Although publicity has been light, the program has had no trouble obtaining registrants.

The cost for the two-week camping period is $40 per boy and according to Meier, "is quite a bargain." Camp activities range from swimming and archery to arts and crafts.

NINE BOYS (three white, three black and three Spanish-speaking) are assigned to a cabin.

The camp's summer program director will be Holgar Bronsted, who teaches physical education in New York during the regular school term. He was at Camp Duncan five years ago as a participant in an international counselor exchange program. Bronsted's wife will serve as the camp nurse.

Ed Little, the camp director, has had nine years' experience as a director and was recently voted one of the outstanding educators in Illinois.

The camp will also have black, white and Spanish-speaking staff members (about 30 per cent each). There will be 18 senior cabin counselors made up of college students, and 18 junior counselors from the high school level.

The junior counselors will have participated in an outdoor educational program before taking the job.

"THE ENTIRE STAFF at Camp Duncan is aware of the inter-racial program and its philosophy," Meier said. "However, no attempt will be made by the staff to voice this philosophy. Emphasis is on having the boys do things together and to be treated equally."

"The kids will inadvertently be taught some basic fundamentals of life," said Tobolik, "and because they are at an impressionable age, will probably carry this with them always."

Further information about the program may be obtained from the Countryside YMCA at 359-2400 or Camp Duncan at 815-385-2654.

Water Mains Being Enlarged

Digging along Palatine Road near the downtown area this week means improvements are being made to Palatine's water system.

From Greely Street to Cedar Street on Palatine Road, the old four-inch water main is being replaced with an eight-inch main.

Similar work already has been completed along Brockway Street from Wood to Colfax and on Palatine Road from Brockway to Greely.

Residents won't be without water until

Regner Is Ogilvie's House Voice

State Rep. David J. Regner, R-Third, has been selected to sponsor Gov. Richard Ogilvie's complete law enforcement package in the Illinois House.

The local representative will place about 18 bills in the House, all of them aimed at fulfilling the campaign promises of Ogilvie when he pledged to establish a formal police office of investigation.

Selection of Regner to handle the governor's package in the house came from the governor's office and from Rep. Ralph P. Smith, R-Alton, speaker of the House. The package of bills has been introduced into the Senate and now awaits a vote before moving to the House.

THE BILLS PROVIDE for the establishment of a statewide bureau of investigation, a bureau of identification, a bureau of communication and information and a division of narcotics control. The entire package of bureaus has been called the Illinois "Little FBI."

Also included in the package is mandatory police training of law enforcement officers in the state.

"This will insure a professional approach and training for our police in the state of Illinois," Regner said. "It is an honor to be selected to carry out the pledge of the governor to fight crime in Illinois."

"ORGANIZED CRIME is a $2 billion business in Illinois and certain steps are necessary to do whatever we can to combat it. I am sure these proposals will be giant steps forward in the fight against organized crime."

Regner said he was optimistic about the package of bills once it reaches the house. The representative said he thinks any opposition to the new bureaus would be along partisan lines based on some member's feelings against establishing a new state department.

"We will know very quickly where the opposition is when the vote comes in the Senate," he said.

After Static, Senate Group OKs Program

SPRINGFIELD UPI — Part of Gov. Richard Ogilvie's law enforcement program ran into some static from local police officials Wednesday but was approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

A bill to create a new Department of Law Enforcement and a "Little FBI" passed on a 9-0 vote, as all five Democrats voted "present." They wanted the sponsor, Sen. Albert Bennett, R-Chicago, to postpone the bills for a week to allow further study of the costs and implications of the reorganization.

A bill to let the state's Police Training Board set training standards for local police was weakened by amendment and approved 7-4, with Sen. G. William Horsley, R-Springfield, joining three Democrats in opposition.

Witnesses opposing the bills said they feared the new state agencies would usurp local police responsibilities.

Lt. Sal Pisano of Peoria, representing the Police Benevolent and Protective Association, said, "I have a feeling this is a Gestapo-type thing we are setting up here."

He said he objected to letting the new department "exercise police powers all

Ask Zoning Denial

A recommendation to deny rezoning along Palatine Road for a proposed beauty school has been made by the Palatine Plan Commission.

With proposed location of the school on the vacant lot immediately west of Park Drive, which is adjacent to the Jack-In-The Box Restaurant, the plan commission is recommending denial primarily because of anticipated traffic problems.

"We feel construction of the school definitely would add to the congestion already on Palatine Road," said Tom Moody, chairman of the plan commission.

In its recommendation to deny the petition, the plan commission also said the case is "strip and piecemeal zoning."

THE LAND IS ZONED R-2, single-family. Rezoning to B-1, general service district, would allow construction of the school of cosmetology.

Before petitioner John G. Sandor requested rezoning of the tract by the village, plans for the beauty school were presented to the Palatine Park District board of commissioners.

If rezoning is granted, the school would be located almost directly in front of the park district swimming pool and near the park office and 12-acre Community Park.

Park commissioners were most concerned about parking since the school would be located so close to the swimming pool, which averages 1,000 swimmers a day during warm weather.

The village board will review the plan commission's recommendation to deny rezoning at its next meeting.

Delay Flood Control Bill

It will be another week before a Senate subcommittee considers funding a bill for flood control of Salt Creek in Rolling Meadows.

Scheduled to go before the committee on Wednesday, the hearing for the bill sponsored by Sen. John Graham, R-Barrington, has been postponed until next week, according to the senator.

His bill originally for $1.5 million of flood improvement work into Palatine and reappropriation of $500,000 for work in Rolling Meadows has been amended down to only $350,000.

The subcommittee was scheduled to hear testimony from John Guillou, chief engineer for the Illinois Division of Waterways about flood control in Palatine Township.

GRAHAM SAID IN Guillou's opinion only flood improvement work from Central Road to Euclid Ave in Rolling Meadows is "engineeringly possible" this year.

The $1.5 million was proposed for work to Salt Creek from Euclid Avenue north, through the race track to Northwest Highway including lowering of a railroad culvert, considered the major cause of most of Palatine's flooding problems.

"But that's at least a year away now," Graham said.

Cost of the Rolling Meadows work has been reduced by $150,000 from the 1967 appropriation of $500,000.

Reappropriation is necessary since the money won't be spent by the end of this biennium June 30.

Rumsfeld First Choice, But Still Mum

by MARTHA MOSER

Thirteenth District Congressman Donald Rumsfeld was still considered the first choice for director of the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) late yesterday.

Following a 4:30 p.m. press briefing in Washington D.C., though, there was no announcement of an appointment to the office and no indication when an announcement will be made.

The press briefing came after a report Rumsfeld's appointment to the office might be unconstitutional.

This question was raised since the representative is part of the legislative body that set up OEO and allowed the director a salary increase.

IT IS NOW believed the appointment would be constitutional, according to Alan Woods, staff aide to White House Press Secretary Ron Ziegler.

"The Constitution says a congressman can not accept a position created during his term of office or one that has been given a salary increase during his term of office," Woods paraphrased after the press briefing.

"But the question is moot with respect to whether OEO was created during the congressional term of office since, technically, the office begins every two years," Woods told The Herald.

THE SALARY ceiling of OEO director, along with other top government officials, was raised March 1 by affirmative action of the 90th Congress and lack of negative action by the 91st Congress.

The ceiling now stands at $42,500, the same salary congressmen boosted their wages to recently. So whether Rumsfeld actually acted to raise an anti-poverty chief's salary is another debatable point.

It was learned last Friday that the Northwest suburbs' congressman was President Richard M. Nixon's choice to head the war-on-poverty program.

Rumsfeld has not decided whether to leave his congressional seat for an executive position, according to his Washington aides. Rumsfeld is said to be reluctant but willing to take the poverty job.

Ziegler said publicly yesterday afternoon that Rumsfeld is still under consideration for the post and there is no constitutional bar to his acceptance.

THE WHITE HOUSE press secretary said both the attorney general's office and John D. Ehrlichman, counsel to the president, had ruled there is no conflict under the law.

Should Rumsfeld accept the post, the Northwest suburbs will be without a representative in Congress until a special election can be held, at least six months under Illinois' special election procedures.

Rumsfeld's fourth term would be up in November, 1970.

Herald Adds Six Dailies

The family of daily Herald newspapers expanded rapidly today with the birth of sextuplets.

Paddock Publications, publishers of daily Herald newspapers serving Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Rolling Meadows, announced six more dailies will be started May 5.

They will serve some of the most rapidly growing communities in Northwest Cook County: Elk Grove Village, Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg, Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Prospect Heights.

THE MOVE will place all Paddock newspapers in Cook County on a daily basis. Stuart R. Paddock Jr., president of the publishing firm, said the announcement reflected the success of the first four dailies in winning new readers and building advertising support.

"Our response has been overwhelming in each of the four communities. Suburbanites like our new dailies; they find them easy to read, convenient, interesting and — still — the professional level product they are accustomed to getting from Paddock Publications."

Talk of Black and White

by SANDRA COMSTOCK

"I felt very much at home. It's not something that I expected because we have visited other schools and not felt so welcome," the teenage girl said.

She was one of 29 students from John M. Harlan High School, 9652 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, who visited Hersey High in Arlington Heights yesterday.

"The point about wanting to be called black is they don't call you Caucasians, why should they call us Negroes? Black was chosen because it contrasts with white," another girl in the group argued.

Another Harlan student commented, "I'm not rebelling against you because you're white, I'm rebelling against the system."

A Harlan teacher explained, "Most of you kids out here live in an almost completely white world. Some of us from Harlan come from an almost all black world. The object of today's trip is to get kids together of approximately the same economic and social class and let you talk."

AND THE STUDENTS certainly did talk. During history and sociology classes, during walks down the hall, while eating lunch. They talked, and tried to understand each other's point of view.

One student was aligned with the Black Panther's militant philosophy. He said the Panthers are not trying to overthrow the government. Included as number one in their 10-point plan for improving the blacks' situation is full employment, he said.

Another goal is to make all blacks exempt from the army, he said.

During discussion in a sociology class, a white student countered this by saying if a person wants to live in this country, he should be willing to fight for it. The problem of black vs. white should be worked out as a whole, not as two separate but equal societies.

"LOOK HOW LONG we've tried this one whole idea," the black student said. "What has it gotten us?"

White students said, "Look what we've done to help you during the last 20 years."

"That's one of the problems. What is your concept of help? You allow us to do things. The only way you can help us is by stepping aside and letting us through," a black girl said.

Talking about the high percentage of black soldiers in the Vietnam war, one white student said, "We say you're fighting for freedom for someone else when you don't have it yourself. How can we expect that?"

A black girl said, "I wouldn't die for any society where I am not accepted."

Students discussed Operation Bread Basket and other programs to get black businesses together. The idea for these groups is to get blacks together to support blacks.

HARLAN STUDENTS agreed white businessmen are raping the black community. White merchants do their business in the black areas and then flee with the money they make to the suburbs, one person charged.

"We're not going to kick the white merchants out. But we are going to say, 'If you're going to stay you are going to be more responsive to this community,'" another black person stated.

The situation was not left as a hopeless and insoluble problem. After an hour of discussion, the Black Panther supporter said, "We've got to work it out together or there will be a confrontation."

Blacks seem to want to be able to meet whites on a firm economic basis. "The situation is more rich versus poor than it is black versus white. Some people want to keep it in the terms of black vs. white to keep all the have-nots from banding together," the Harlan teacher said.

ONE BLACK STUDENT who had let her hair grow out in a "natural" style said, "It just comes out like this. Just like your hair comes out straight, mine comes out curly. So I let it grow this way."

One Hersey student said she felt cheated because she can't take an Afro-American history course at the school. "There are too many parents out here who would object," she said.

Many students agreed, saying their parents were afraid of something like that. They said the school was afraid to do anything the parents didn't like because parents can vote down referendums.

The Harlan teacher told the white students not to place all the blame at their parents' feet. "In a few years you will be adults and parents, and it's your job to make things right from there."

THROUGHOUT THE discussion yesterday afternoon, students had crowded into the back of the room. They sat on tables or stood so they could hear what was being said. Some had gotten passes from from typing or drama classes. Everyone was intensely interested.

Alex Schmidt, head of the social science department at Hersey and the man who helped to arrange the visit from Harlan students, wapped up the discussion. He said, "I don't know if I can say this of all days at Hersey, but I know today there has been some education at Hersey High School."

Two Teaching Interns Now In Area Schools

Elizabeth Rickmeyer of Palatine and Geraldine Fritz of Hanover Park, students at Eastern Illinois University, Charleston, are practicing teaching during the spring quarter as a requirement for a bachelor of science in education degree.

Miss Rickmeyer is teaching in Sullivan Junior High School and Miss Fritz at Glen Ellyn Junior High School.

Honors at Indiana U.

Karen L. Edwards, 150 Fifth St., Palatine, has been selected for membership in Phi Kappa Phi, the national honor society for college students.

Membership is based upon grades, service to the University, and campus activities.

DON RUMSFELD, 13th District congressman, can be imagined in this ponderous pose as he debates whether to accept a call as director of the Office of Economic Opportunity. Rumsfeld is reportedly "bargaining" for the position and is reluctant but willing to take over war-on-poverty.

Senate Okays —

over the state" and also the requirement for state-approved training.

Clayton Harbeck of Utica, of the Illinois Sheriff's Association, said he also wanted clarification of what the state's new powers would be.

Supporting the bills, Public Safety Director Herbert Brown said, "We're not adding any powers. The state police can now make arrests anywhere in the state."

Senate Democratic Whip Alan Dixon of Belleville and Republican senators Hudson Sours of Peoria and Harris Fawell of Naperville all questioned a section authorizing the attorney general to "commence and try any prosecution" arising from the new department.

They said they were not certain how this affected the responsibilities of state's attorneys and got Bennet to agree to hold off a vote in the Senate while they studied it.

In presenting the bills to the committee, the Ogilvie administration made two concessions from the original proposals. The measure to require state certification of policemen was watered down so that now the state board will only require minimum standards of training, and only in cities with more than 5,000 population and counties. A "grandfather clause" was also added so that the provisions do not apply to anyone hired before Jan. 1, 1970.

And, in an apparent concession to the Democrats, the administration shelved the plan to absorb the functions of 143 policemen under Secretary of State Paul Powell.

The other half of Ogilvie's program — to create a new Department of Corrections — was approved by the Senate Executive Committee Tuesday with little opposition.

Unveil Industrial Park

Plans for a 70-acre industrial park in Palatine Township will be unveiled at the Palatine Village Hall Monday when the county zoning board is asked to consider rezoning of the tract.

Located in the northeast section of the township, the property is currently zoned

R-3, single-family. Listed owner of the property, Edward Lauffenburger, is asking for rezoning to M-1, restricted manufacturing district.

Detailed plans for the land have not been outlined yet, but are expected to be clearly outlined for the county zoning board of appeals at Monday's hearing.

The 70-acre tract is north of Dundee Road at the northeast corner of Hicks and Nichols roads extending to the township boundary line.

IN THE VICINITY, the zoning board also is considering rezoning of an 11-acre parcel for a proposed children's hospital.

The property owned by Ridgeway Hospital, Inc. is south of Dundee Road and 250 feet west of Doe Road. The proposed use is an institution for the care of children and adolescents.

Public hearings for the projects will begin at 3 p.m. Monday in the Village Hall.

"THEY DON'T CALL you Caucasians, why should they call us Negroes?" a student from Harlan High School in Chicago asks during a history class discussion yesterday at Hersey High School. Old Country Comes To Palace

MARTHA KOPER

Shows of "hoop-a" and the luring sound of a bouzouki brought a little bit of the old country to Uncle Andy's Cow Palace in Palatine Wednesday night.

Sadiya, the dancer with a specialty in Middle-Eastern dance, more commonly known as belly-dancing, of course, added to the Greek atmosphere.

As part of his grand opening celebration, John Bakos, new owner of the restaurant, brought authenticity to his place. All four members of the Greek band originally are from Athens. They've been in the United States about a year.

THEY WERE BROUGHT to this country on visas by the owner of a Chicago restaurant, the Olympic Flame, to entertain there. They agreed to play at Uncle Andy's during the week's celebration.

While in this country, the group is teaching Americans what Greek music is all about with an accordion, clarinet, the drums and the bouzouki.

Not similar to any common instrument of our country, the six-string bouzouki provides music to which the belly-dance is performed.

Although Sadiya is not Greek, she's been doing the belly-dance for almost nine years and dancing since she was 11-years-old. She started in classical ballet and after "lots of hard work" learned the Middle Eastern dance.

She prefers it to be called a Middle Eastern dance since it's commonly performed in Egypt, Turkey and Persia as well as Greece.

"BESIDES, TO call it a belly-dance doesn't have finesse," she smiled.

No matter what it's called, Sadiya's talents at performing the dance were well appreciated by her audience Wednesday night.

SADIYA, after nine years of practice, entertained guests at Uncle Andy's in Palatine this week with her Middle Eastern dance — or the dance of the belly as it's called by Greeks.

A MEMBER of the Greek band play-instrument, the bouzouki which gives ing at Uncle Andy's this week gave musical accompaniment to the Greek Mrs. John Moodie a close look at his dancer.

AESOP SAYS:

The Dog that Froze

In the winter time, a dog rolled himself together and coiled up in as small a space as possible. He was so cold that he resolved to make himself a house when summer came.

But with the return of warm weather he lay lazily in the sun, stretched at his full length. He gazed upon his large size and decided that the task would be too difficult to make a house that would accommodate him.

The next winter was especially severe and the dog froze to death.

It is easy in good times to put the bad out of mind.

One reason why the 2,500-year-old stories of this Greek slave have endured among all peoples is that they accurately reflect human strengths and weaknesses.

It is easier to lie in the sun than to work, easier to spend than to save. But prudence suggests that our best interests lie in providing for the future by present effort.

Tornado Season Is On

Hot, sticky days with southerly winds and threatening thunderstorm clouds are the ideal conditions for tornadoes.

This is the tornado season. Most tornadoes in the Northwest suburban area occur in the spring, ebb during the peak summer months and strike again in the fall.

A tornado is usually identified as a funnel-shaped cloud, spinning rapidly and travelling close to the ground at speeds from 25 to 40 m.p.h. At close range, it sounds like the roar of hundreds of airplanes.

"WE'VE BEEN HANDING out tons of literature to residents in the area on tornado information, the Civil Defense warning signals and safety precautions to be taken in case of a tornado," said Lt. Larry Pairitz, Mount Prospect Civil Defense director.

The warning signal for a tornado is a three-to-five-minute steady blast on the CD sirens in the community. One of the biggest problems for the CD is that residents don't recognize the warning signals and rarely take them seriously, said Pairitz.

"At the first sound of the siren, the immediate reaction for everyone is to go outdoors and look for the funnel-shaped cloud. Most people haven't seen a tornado and they're curious about them," explained Pairitz.

But an immediate reaction to a tornado warning could mean the difference between life and death.

"WE'VE JUST GOT to saturate the area with information on the serious and dangerous destruction that can be caused by a tornado or high-lamaging winds that do not necessarily appear in the usual funnel-shaped cloud," explained the CD director.

Tornadoes can, and have, uprooted trees, destroyed buildings and created serious hazards from objects blown through the air in the tornado's path. The differences in air pressure as a result of a tornado or high winds have lifted people and automobiles into the air and deposited them in a different location.

When a tornado warning is issued in the community, residents should immediately take shelter. They should not call the fire or police department for information.

"ANY BLAST ON the CD siren causes people to immediately telephone the fire and police departments," said Pairitz. "Our switchboards light up like Christmas trees. Tornado information is supplied by the radio stations, and their information comes straight from the Weather Bureau with the most up-to-date weather conditions."

"We urge strongly that people listen to their radios for any information about emergency weather conditions, rather than call us and tie up the emergency phone lines to the departments," he said.

If a tornado is sighted in the immediate area, residents should take shelter in a storm cellar or basement under a sturdy workbench or table. If it isn't possible to seek shelter in a basement, they should remain on the ground floor in the center part of the house away from outside walls and windows.

If this is not possible, residents as a last resort should seek shelter outside in a ditch, culvert, ravine or excavation.

"DEATH OR SERIOUS injuries during a tornado happen because people are careless, and they don't take seriously the weather warning or the necessary safety precautions," said Pairitz.

"Believe it or not, children react to a tornado warning more sensibly than adults. Children have been taught in school to take the CD warnings seriously and follow the directions to insure personal protection."

"Parents and adults even have a greater tendency to panic in these situations than children," said Pairitz.

In the event of a tornado watch or warning this spring, immediately take shelter and depend upon the radio or television for emergency weather conditions and precautions.

Flea Market Has Diversion

Whether you're an avid "antiquer" or just like to look, the Antique Flea Market at the Holiday Inn in Rolling Meadows Sunday should provide a colorful diversion from the routine.

The market is held from 10 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. on the third Sunday each month.

The market's slogan is "If it's antique, we have it," said Kay Knudson of the Last Unicorn antique shop of Roselle.

The idea of the market is to bring numerous shops under one roof and, unlike the high-priced shows, prices are very competitive, Miss Knudson said.

"MARKETS OFFER a low-overhead selling area to dealers, who can then keep prices at a more down-to-earth level," she explained.

Since the first show in December, the market has more than doubled in size.

"We occupy the entire banquet area of the Holiday Inn," she said. Dealers are local and also represent other areas of Illinois, as well as parts of Wisconsin.

For sale are such items as clocks, furniture, primitives, silver, jewelry, art, fine glassware, dolls, lamps, decorative items, imports and collectables.

Miss Knudson said the flea market is relatively new to this area but catching on fast. One advantage is that "customers can compare prices of the dealers by walking from booth to booth," she said.

ALTHOUGH customers include other antique dealers who buy their products for resale, Miss Knudson finds that most customers are either housewives looking for a "special accent piece" for the home or collectors.

Among the dealers whose wares will be sold are several who are quite well-known, Miss Knudson said. Their work is frequently used by interior decorators, she added. The decorators themselves will often come in to purchase an item or two.

Freeway Proposals Are Told

Sixty members of the Prospect Heights Euclid-Lake Homeowner's Association Tuesday night heard Hal W. Lochner Jr., of H. W. Lochner, Inc., a Chicago engineering firm, discuss plans for the proposed Rand-Golf freeway.

Lochner's firm is conducting a two-year study of the transportation needs of the Northwest suburban area. The subject of the study is a three-mile-wide corridor extending about 1½ miles on either side of Golf and Rand roads. This leg of the corridor covers parts of Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, Arlington Heights and Palatine.

"The ultimate freeway will be located within this corridor," reported Lochner. "However, we have not even begun to draw any proposed route on a map. We hope we will have the interest and cooperation of all municipalities and civic groups in the corridor area so that the freeway will best serve its residents."

WHEN ASKED if the proposed freeway construction would affect residential areas, Lochner replied that at present, everything within the corridor is considered "fair game."

"No date can be given for the completion of the freeway," he explained, "because its construction depends on the priority the project is given by the Illinois Division of Highways, sponsors of the location study, as well as revenue available."

Lochner's study will recommend the location as well as a development plan for a transit system which will take into consideration "esthetic values of the communities and joint development opportunities."

IT IS HOPED the facility will serve both medium and long-haul traffic, act as a feeder to the toll road and Eden's expressway, and "provide an effective traffic flow throughout the metropolitan area," he said.

Findings and recommendations of the study will be the subject of public hearings in the future. "This is one reason we are interested in getting ideas and opinions of area residents before preliminary routes are discussed," Lochner said.

William Santacruz, Illinois Highway District engineer, was also present, as were representatives of other homeowner groups in the area.

Cook Is Charged With Possession

A 34-year-old Chicago cook was arrested Wednesday on a charge of possession of marijuana in Mount Prospect.

Police identified the man as James Hadley. He was stopped on suspicion at the Holiday Inn parking lot, 500 E. Rand Road, and a quick police check revealed that Chicago police were seeking him on a charge of battery.

Police said they found a small brown envelope containing marijuana in the man's shirt pocket.

He was being held in Mount Prospect pending a bond hearing in District Court. The bond for the arrest warrant held by Chicago police is set at $500.

Bill May Add Land

by TOM WELLMAN

An Illinois House bill to liberalize land annexation within counties of over 50,000 persons could allow Arlington Heights to swallow 800 acres of land near its borders.

The bill, introduced by State Rep. Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights, is part of Gov. Richard Ogilvie's nine-point program on local government.

Hearings will be held Wednesday by the House municipalities committee to discuss the bill Jack Siegel, Arlington Heights village attorney, will testify, and Jack Walsh, who will be serving his first full day as village president, may possibly testify.

IT WOULD ALLOW municipalities to annex land which touches at least one of their borders through court action, rather than through a special election.

If the bill becomes law, it would benefit Arlington Heights, especially on the north side, now a patch-work of lots and subdivisions, some in Arlington Heights, some in unincorporated Cook County.

Walsh said that any annexation is done to protect property, not simply to consume land for the sake of adding acreage.

Schlickman's bill would allow municipalities to publish a description of areas under consideration for annexation and to approve that annexation by a two-thirds vote.

RESIDENTS OF THE land under consideration can file objections with the circuit court clerk. The court will hear testimony, and any resident with valid objections can have his property eliminated from the annexed area.

The annexation would then be approved by the court, providing that the property is contiguous, at least 75 per cent of it is subdivided or used for commerce or industry, and that the municipality can provide services, such as water, sewers, and fire and police protection.

Ogilvie's special message on local government, from which Schlickman's bill is drawn, stresses that many of the difficulties of urban governments can be avoided by annexation, by providing orderly growth of new urban areas.

In Arlington Heights, the prime contenders for annexation include about 700 acres of land along both sides of Rand Road. That land includes subdivisions like the 75-acre Arlington Countryside, located just southeast of Rand Road and Olive Street.

THE 60-ACRE Lynnwood subdivision, south of the intersection of Highway 53 and Palatine Road, is another area on the northern side of the village that could be desirable property, if the bill is approved by the legislature.

Smaller unincorporated subdivisions dotted along the borders of Arlington Heights could also be considered. On the south side, the 60-acre Arlington Manor subdivision, southeast of Central and Arlington Heights roads, could qualify.

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said he was not certain how the measure would affect the village. However, if the measure is approved, it could provide a solution to certain dilemmas that have faced the village at certain times.

FOR EXAMPLE, IT would relieve the problem of the Arlington Heights Fire Department responding to fires in unincorporated areas. Village residents who pay taxes for fire protection are at times concerned about the occasional free protection extended to the scattered unincorporated areas.

It would also help to eliminate the patch-work quality of northern Arlington Heights and, at the same time, establish control of developments in the area that have been in the past under looser county control.

Village officials, concerned in the past with land that has escaped annexation or has been annexed by other communities (such as the Isenstein-Parker property now in Rolling Meadows), will probably watch the progress of Schlickman's bill with considerable interest.

Faculty To Hear Author

Mrs. Natalie Robinson Cole, author of several books on art in the elementary schools, will speak at a Dist. 57 faculty workshop on April 21 at 3:15 p.m. in the Lions Park School gymnasium.

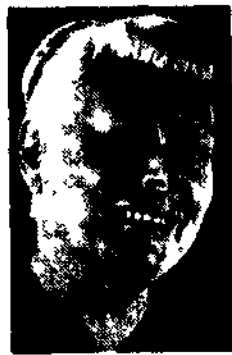

Mrs. Cole, a former Los Angeles elementary school teacher, has written "The Arts in the Classroom," and "Children's Arts from Deep Down Inside."

She is known for her unconventional approach to teaching art which emphasizes a free painting and dancing technique adaptable to all elementary grades.

HER LATEST BOOK, "Children's Arts from Deep Down Inside," explains that artistic ability is inherent in every child and that the role of the teacher is to develop this latent talent.

One of her special interests include painting as a therapy for low IQ children.

Nab 3 Suspects

Two men were gunned down early last night in a Des Plaines tavern and Wheeling police, within the hour, arrested three suspects as they tried to flee from a house.

The victims were identified as 24-year-old James Wheeler of 2817 Curry Parkway, Madison, and Ben Celano, 26, of 7901 West Grand Ave., Elmwood Park.

Wheeler suffered a gunshot wound in the back, and Celano was struck in the left arm, a spokesman at Holy Family Hospital said. Both men were in satisfactory condition last night.

SUSPECTS ARRESTED in the shooting were identified as Jose Perez, 29, 2328 Schoenbeck Road, Arlington Heights; Jesus R. Sanchez, 26, 1248 N. Campbell, Chicago, and Librado S. Gutierrez, 23, 1226 N. Campbell, Chicago.

The melee occurred at Kelly's Tap on Rand Road in Des Plaines, according to investigators.

Des Plaines Lt. Aug Schwiesow, watch commander, said the suspects were being held for questioning in the shooting. No motive had yet been determined, Schwiesow said last night, "but we do have what's believed to be the get-away car and a pistol."

Shortly after the shooting occurred, around 8 p.m., a police alarm went out giving a description of the get-away car, an orange 1965 or 1966 Mustang. Wheeling Police Officer Art Rochstadter said he was driving south of Wolf Road when he spotted a northbound car which fit the description.

ROCHSTADTER RADIOED for assistance and then followed the car to a house at 271 N. 6th, located in an unincorporated area surrounded by Wheeling.

Rochstadter said he believed a relative of two of the suspects lived at the location.

The policeman said he caught one of the suspects just outside the house and Wheeling police Officer Jack Koenig stopped another man running from the back door of the house.

Both police officers then rushed inside and there arrested the third suspect.

Koenig found a .32-caliber pistol under a rug inside the house, investigators said.

Book Center OKd

The Arlington Heights Memorial Library will begin a profit-making venture in May. Trustees gave executive librarian Harold Ard the green light Tuesday to establish a book processing center in the library on a three-month experimental basis.

The center will order books for other libraries, verify prices and discounts and make the volumes ready for patron use. Bindings and pages must be checked, catalog cards prepared and plastic jackets and property stamps put in place. The books are then shipped to the receiving library.

OTHER LIBRARIES profit from the procedure as the center can order in quantity and receive larger discounts. Many libraries also have insufficient space or staff to adequately process the books.

Ard and the library staff recently completed a cost study of the method, using Memorial Library materials. Total cost for processing 811 books and records was 77 cents per item. Ard anticipates that delivery charge to other buildings would amount to about 5 cents for each piece.

Mrs. Mary Lee Ewalt, former head librarian, did the lion's share of the work involved in the study. Ard said that in the future some of the work can be done by clerical employees and over-all costs reduced.

HE ESTIMATES THAT working at full capacity, the local library can process its own materials and those of five "strong" libraries. Total volume would be about 225,000 items per year. Trustees authorized a charge of $1.05 per item during the experimental period.

Several libraries have already expressed interest in the new venture and board members will let Ard decide how much work to take on during the next three months.

Results will be analyzed early in August and a decision made at that time regarding the future of processing center activities.

Two Teens Charged

Two Elk Grove Village teenagers were released on $1,000 recognizance bonds yesterday afternoon after being charged with a $3,200 mail theft in Elk Grove Village.

An arraignment hearing was continued to Tuesday at 11 a.m., because neither youth had legal counsel.

The pair, identified as Antonio Pinnelli, 18, of 19 Ridgewood, and Steve Smith, 17, of 213 Tanglewood, both of Elk Grove Village, appeared before U.S. Commissioner James Balog of the Department of Justice.

THEY WERE CAPTURED Wednesday night by Elk Grove Village police, turned over to federal postal authorities and given into custody at the U.S. Marshal's office in Chicago.

Investigating police said stolen property ranging from magazines to tape recorders was valued at $3,201.15. Pinnelli and Smith allegedly stole the merchandise from the loading dock at the Elk Grove Post Office Tuesday and Wednesday.

They were picked up by police at Greenleaf and Nicholas in Elk Grove, shortly after 8 p.m. Four hours later they were turned over to federal authorities and charged with mail theft.

PINNELL, POLICE SAID, is a former postal clerk, while Smith is a student at Elk Grove High School.

One Elk Grove police officer said the village post office had been repeatedly warned about poor security in the loading dock area but had done very little to improve it.

Officers participating in the arrest included Jon Scharpenter, William Kohnke and Raymond Marinac.

Youth Unit Helps Teens Find Jobs

Neighborhood teens from low-income families can combine summer employment experience with cultural education this summer, through the local Neighborhood Youth Corps, 3411 Kirchoff Road, Rolling Meadows.

Mrs. Florence Anderson of the group reports that 140 youths were placed through the program last year, and that more jobs are available than the number of applicants.

ACCORDING TO police, she had taken eight 75 milligram capsules of the drug, which she apparently obtained from a "locked" cabinet at home.

Her parents told police they were unaware of her possession of the drugs.

48 in Drive Meet

People who complain constantly about poor teenage drivers are in for a surprise tomorrow when 48 students from Northwest suburban area high schools compete in Operation Driver Excellence (DE) at Wheeling High School.

Sponsored by the Phillip Carpenter Amvet Post 66 in Wheeling, the contest is the local beginning of a state and national competition for a new car and three $1,000 scholarships. Six students each from eight area high schools will compete with their classmates and one student from each school will be chosen to attend the state finals next weekend in Jacksonville, Ill.

A STIFF DRIVING competition, Operation DE requires that students be graduates of a driver education program with either a learner's permit or a driver's license. The nationwide contest is co-sponsored by the Dodge division of Chrysler Corp. and the Amvets.

Designed to stress skillful driving, the contest uses high school driving instructors as judges. The students are also selected for the competition by their driving instructors.

Winners of Saturday's competition will be awarded a plaque and expense-paid trips to the state finals next weekend. State winners receive expense-paid weekends in Detroit on May 16-18 for the national finals.

STUDENTS FROM Wheeling, Arlington, Prospect, Elk Grove, Forest View, Hersey, St. Vitor, and Sacred Heart of Mary high schools will compete.

The public is welcome at the competition from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., Saturday, in the rear parking lot of Wheeling High School, Elmhurst and Hintz roads in Wheeling.

Korean Talks Start

WASHINGTON — A face-to-face confrontation between representatives of President Nixon and the North Koreans was to have begun at 8 p.m. yesterday, Central Standard Time. The United States agreed to the meeting at Panmunjom after the bodies of two crewmen were found yesterday in the Sea of Japan.

The crewmen were among 31 shot down by North Korea in what the United States declared is international air space.

Red Policy Changes?

PRAGUE — Changes in the Communist Party's decision-making Presidium accompanied Alexander Dubcek's fall from power as first secretary of Czechoslovakia's branch of the party, according to Czechoslovakian President Ludvik Svoboda.

Dubcek was replaced yesterday by Gustav Husak, leader of the Slovak branch of the party, a conservative considered more acceptable to the Soviet Union.

Tub Sharing Is Private

WASHINGTON — The federal government doesn't care who you share your bathtub or shower with but it still wants to know if you do share facilities. That was one of the immediate changes made in the 1970 census questionnaire.

Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans said this and other changes were made in response to Congressional criticism. From now on, all census questions will be cleared with Congress two years in advance.

Asks Competition Cut

SPRINGFIELD — A move to outlaw territorial competition between electric power suppliers, including private, cooperative and municipal systems, was urged yesterday by Carl E. Bagge of the Federal Power Commission (FPC).

Bagge asked for state legislation here and a federal law which would provide FPC jurisdiction over wholesale rates and services of rural electric cooperatives, municipal electric systems and state power authorities.

Verdict Is Pleasing

LOS ANGELES — The man-in-the-street in Los Angeles, where Sirhan B. Sirhan was tried, generally agreed Thursday with the jury that found him guilty of first degree murder in the slaying of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. Some hoped he would be executed.

"I think it is good. He got what he deserved," said Elizabeth Likes, a switchboard operator at a bakery. "If he got off, I'm afraid there would have been a number of irate people in this country. I think a lot of people were fond of Sen. Kennedy."

Ask Pollution Power

SPRINGFIELD — Legislation will be introduced in the House next week to give Atty. Gen. William Scott's office power to prosecute air and water pollution violators by statute.

Scott told a news conference here yesterday the office currently has only its inherent to common law power of prosecution. The bill provides for a full time antipollution staff within his office composed of four prosecutors, eight investigators and a pollution control engineer.

Sell College Bonds

MACOMB, Ill. —The Board of Governors of State Colleges and Universities yesterday skipped around a state imposed interest limit and sold $9.5 million in revenue bonds to finance three building projects.

The money will be used to construct a 500-bed dormitory and a 7,500-seat athletic stadium at East Illinois University plus a 223-unit student apartment building at Western Illinois University. In another action, the board proposed the name of "Governors State University" for the school for juniors, seniors and master's degree candidates to be constructed near the Chicago suburb of Park Forest.

RAIN, RAIN go away. That's what John Shepherd, Township residents have built-in lakes every time it rains. Shepherd, whose yard constantly floods, said he has had no help from city officials in solving the problem.

'Y' Plans Inter-Race Camping

by BOB ZANIC

"No, you won't find any planned human relations workshops or programs there, but you will find a group of boys doing things together and learning something about each other in the process."

Gary Meier, Countryside YMCA program director, had just summed up the philosophy behind the Y's participation in an inter-racial camping program at Camp Duncan near Volo, Ill. in July and August.

THE CAMP WILL HOLD two 12 day periods, boys aged 8 to 13 attending each.

Meier says the program will bring together boys from the Duncan YMCA on Chicago's near west side and boys from the Palatine-Rolling Meadows area.

In keeping with the program's objectives, 50 of the boys will be black, 50 will be Spanish-speaking and 50 white.

THE FIRST GROUP will spend two weeks at the camp from July 28 to August

8 and will be followed by a similar group from Aug. 11 to Aug. 22.

Duncan YMCA operates Camp Duncan and will recruit the inner-city boys while the Countryside YMCA will recruit the suburban boys.

According to Meier, public response to the program has been favorable.

THE IDEA FOR THE inter-racial camping program is attributed to Joseph (Joe) Tobolik, executive director at Camp Duncan.

"I only saw an opportunity to bring the inner-city and suburban boys together for a learning experience in human relations and I took it," Tobolik said.

Tobolik, previously a director at the Duncan YMCA for 13 years, said that it is a fact of life that these boys grow into manhood without ever being aware of each other's world. He said he is trying to change that by bringing the boys together.

"I realize it is only a short time in which to accomplish this, he said but perhaps they will learn to understand and appreciate the qualities of another human being without letting skin color get in the way. 'I believe understanding between people is a good thing.'"

THE COUNTRYSIDE YMCA was selected to participate in this program for four reasons:

— It is the nearest neighborhood YMCA to Camp Duncan.

— The Countryside staff's open-mindedness.

— The two YMCA's previously shared day and resident camping program.

— It is typical of the whole service area.

The inter-racial camping program was proposed by Tobolik earlier this year and was finalized in March. Although publicity has been light, the program has had no trouble obtaining registrants.

The cost for the two-week camping period is $40 per boy and according to Meier, "is quite a bargain." Camp activities range from swimming and archery to arts and crafts.

NINE BOYS (three white, three black and three Spanish-speaking) are assigned to a cabin.

The camp's summer program director will be Holgar Bronsted, who teaches physical education in New York during the regular school term. He was at Camp Duncan five years ago as a participant in an international counselor exchange program. Bronsted's wife will serve as the camp nurse.

Ed Little, the camp director, has had nine years' experience as a director and was recently voted one of the outstanding educators in Illinois.

The camp will also have black, white and Spanish-speaking staff members (about 30 per cent of each). There will be 18 senior cabin counselors made up of college students, and 18 junior counselors from the high school level.

The junior counselors will have participated in an outdoor educational program before taking the job.

"THE ENTIRE STAFF at Camp Duncan is aware of the inter-racial program and its philosophy," Meier said. "However, no attempt will be made by the staff to voice this philosophy. Emphasis is on having the boys do things together and to be treated equally."

"The kids will inadvertently be taught some basic fundamentals of life," said Tobolik, "and because they are at an impressionable age, will probably carry this with them always."

Further information about the program may be obtained from the Countryside YMCA at 359-2400 or Camp Duncan at 815-385-2654.

Magazine Features Complex

The Rolling Meadows Park District's successful passage of the $800,000 bond issue last Feb. 25, was featured in the current issue of Illinois Parks magazine.

The two-page spread had a picture of the $750,000 community recreation complex design plan, and an in-depth explanation of the complex's various facilities.

PASSAGE OF THE park development

Crawfords Department Store has donated $1,000 towards the 10 per cent down payment needed for additional equipment by the Rolling Meadows Fire Department. Fabric World has contributed $100.

The contributions were made at the Shopping Center Association's Wednesday luncheon meeting. The pumper and aerial equipment cost $125,000.

ASSOCIATION MEMBERS also voted their approval and support for the June 24 tax referendum and, as part of the Rolling Meadows Chamber of Commerce, will try to promote and raise the necessary funds.

James Service, president of the Fire District Trustees and Fireman Tom Loesch, showed slides and films of three recent fires in Rolling Meadows as part of their talk on fire protection.

Service said the object of his presentation was to explain the coming referendum and the community's need for it. He said that the city needed fire protection and that the tax rate increase from 25 cents to 40 cents per $100 assessed valuation could provide that protection.

"RIGHT NOW WE ARE looking for the referendum to pass and to also get funds for the down payment," he said.

Service also said that his appeal was not a spur of the moment decision but part of the fire department's long range program for fire protection. "Because an increased tax is now available we can take advantage of it," he said. "It will enable us to purchase the additional men and equipment needed to do the job."

Service said the fire department has had difficulty getting enough day volunteer firemen and that the only remedy for this was to hire full-time men. He pointed out that the present fire equipment was 11-years-old, and in another five years, would be considered second-line equipment. "The department has the facilities to house and maintain the two additional pieces of equipment," he said.

"ROLLING MEADOWS has benefited by a mutual aid program," he continued, "but the original idea behind that program was to have these fire departments from other communities stand by whenever Rolling Meadows experienced a fire. However, what has happened is that these fire departments have had to help put out our fires."

"Rolling Meadows shouldn't depend on other fire departments to put out their fires. It should be able to put out its own fires," he said.

After Static, Senate Group OKs Program

SPRINGFIELD UPI — Part of Gov. Richard Ogilvie's law enforcement program ran into some static from local police officials Wednesday but was approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

A bill to create a new Department of Law Enforcement and a "Little FBI" passed on a 9-0 vote, as all five Democrats voted "present." They wanted the sponsor, Sen. Albert Bennett, R-Chicago, to postpone the bill for a week to allow further study of the costs and implications of the reorganization.

A bill to let the state's Police Training Board set training standards for local police was weakened by amendment and approved 7-4, with Sen. G. William Horsley, R-Springfield, joining three Democrats in opposition.

Witnesses opposing the bills said they feared the new state agencies would usurp local police responsibilities.

Lt. Sal Pisano of Peoria, representing the Police Benevolent and Protective Association, said, "I have a feeling this is a Gestapo-type thing we are setting up here."

He said he objected to letting the new department "exercise police powers all

Rumsfeld First Choice, But Still Mum

by MARTHA MOSER
Thirteenth District Congressman Donald Rumsfeld was still considered the first choice for director of the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) late yesterday.

Following a 4:30 p.m. press briefing in Washington D.C., though, there was no announcement of an appointment to the office and no indication when an announcement will be made.

The press briefing came after a report Rumsfeld's appointment to the office

Herald Adds Six Dailies

The family of daily Herald newspapers expanded rapidly today with the birth of sextuplets.

Paddock Publications, publishers of daily Herald newspapers serving Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Rolling Meadows, announced six more dailies will be started May 5.

They will serve some of the most rapidly growing communities in Northwest Cook County: Elk Grove Village, Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg, Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Prospect Heights.

THE MOVE WILL place all Paddock newspapers in Cook County on a daily basis. Stuart R. Paddock Jr., president of the publishing firm, said the announcement reflected the success of the first four dailies in winning new readers and building advertising support.

"Our response has been overwhelming in each of the four communities. Suburbanites like our new dailies; they find them easy to read, convenient, interesting and — still — the professional level product they are accustomed to getting from Paddock Publications."

might be unconstitutional. This question was raised since the representative is part of the legislative body that set up OEO and allowed the director a salary increase.

IT IS NOW believed the appointment would be constitutional, according to Alan Woods, staff aide to White House Press Secretary Ron Ziegler.

"The Constitution says a congressman can not accept a position created during his term of office or one that has been given a salary increase during his term of office," Woods paraphrased after the press briefing.

"But the question is moot with respect to whether OEO was created during the congressional term of office since, technically, the office begins every two years," Woods told The Herald.

THE SALARY ceiling of OEO director, along with other top government officials, was raised March 1 by affirmative action of the 90th Congress and lack of negative action by the 91st Congress.

The ceiling now stands at $42,500, the same salary congressmen boosted their wages to recently. So whether Rumsfeld actually acted to raise an anti-poverty chief's salary is another debatable point.

It was learned last Friday that the Northwest suburbs congressman was President Richard M. Nixon's choice to head the war-on-poverty program.

Rumsfeld has not decided whether to leave his congressional seat for an executive position, according to his Washington aides. Rumsfeld is said to be reluctant but willing to take the poverty job.

Ziegler said publicly yesterday afternoon that Rumsfeld is still under consideration for the post and there is no constitutional bar to his acceptance.

THE WHITE HOUSE press secretary said both the attorney general's office and John D. Ehrlichman, counsel to the president, had ruled there is no conflict under the law.

Should Rumsfeld accept the post, the Northwest suburbs will be without a representative in Congress until a special election can be held, at least six months under Illinois' special election procedures.

Rumsfeld's fourth term would be up in November, 1970.

DON RUMSFELD, 13th District congressman, can be imagined in this ponderous pose as he debates whether to accept a call as director of the Office of Economic Opportunity. Rumsfeld is reportedly "bargaining" for the position and is reluctant but willing to take over war-on-poverty.

Senate Okays —

over the state" and also the requirement for state-approved training.

Clayton Harbeck of Ulica, of the Illinois Sheriff's Association, said he also wanted clarification of what the state's new powers would be.

Supporting the bills, Public Safety Director Herbert Brown said, "We're not adding any powers. The state police can now make arrests anywhere in the state."

Senate Democratic Whip Alan Dixon of Belleville and Republican senators Hudson Sours of Peoria and Harris Fawell of Naperville all questioned a section authorizing the attorney general to "commence and try any prosecution" arising from the new department.

They said they were not certain how this affected the responsibilities of state's attorneys and got Bennet to agree to hold off a vote in the Senate while they studied it.

In presenting the bills to the committee, the Ogilvie administration made two concessions from the original proposals. The measure to require state certification of policemen was watered down so that now the state board will only require minimum standards of training, and only in cities with more than 5,000 population and counties. A "grandfather clause" was also added so that the provisions do not apply to anyone hired before Jan. 1, 1970.

And, in an apparent concession to the Democrats, the administration shelved the plan to absorb the functions of 143 policemen under Secretary of State Paul Powell.

The other half of Ogilvie's program — to create a new Department of Corrections — was approved by the Senate Executive Committee Tuesday with little opposition.

Unveil Industrial Park

Plans for a 70-acre industrial park in Palatine Township will be unveiled at the Palatine Village Hall Monday when the county zoning board is asked to consider rezoning of the tract.

Located in the northeast section of the township, the property is currently zoned

R-3, single-family. Listed owner of the property, Edward Lauffenburger, is asking for rezoning to M-1, restricted manufacturing district.

Detailed plans for the land have not been outlined yet, but are expected to be clearly outlined for the county zoning board of appeals at Monday's hearing.

The 70-acre tract is north of Dundee Road at the northeast corner of Hicks and Nichols roads extending to the township boundary line.

IN THE VICINITY, the zoning board also is considering rezoning of an 11-acre parcel for a proposed children's hospital.

The property owned by Ridgeway Hospital, Inc. is south of Dundee Road and 250 feet west of Doe Road. The proposed use is an institution for the care of children and adolescents.

Public hearings for the projects will begin at 3 p.m. Monday in the Village Hall.

Mrs. Kline Is Honored By Chamber Members

Rolling Meadows Chamber of Commerce members last week commended Mrs. Hester Kline, former Herald reporter who resigned recently.

"DURING HER MANY years of covering Rolling Meadows news, Mrs. Kline has been a faithful attendant at board meetings and has published all chamber functions with generous enthusiasm," the chamber's board of directors said.

"Her vast knowledge of Rolling Meadows was valuable at sessions of the board as well as at many committee meetings." Mrs. Kline retired after 21 years at Paddock Publications.

Talk of Black and White

by SANDRA COMSTOCK

"I felt very much at home. It's not something that I expected because we have visited other schools and not felt so welcome," the teenage girl said.

She was one of 29 students from John M. Harlan High School, 9632 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, who visited Hersey High in Arlington Heights yesterday.

"The point about wanting to be called black is they don't call you Caucasians, why should they call us Negroes? Black was chosen because it contrasts with white," another girl in the group argued.

Another Harlan student commented, "I'm not rebelling against you because you're white, I'm rebelling against the system."

A Harlan teacher explained, "Most of you kids out here live in an almost completely white world. Some of us from Harlan come from an almost all black world. The object of today's trip is to get kids together of approximately the same economic and social class and let you talk."

AND THE STUDENTS certainly did talk. During history and sociology classes, during walks down the hall, while eating lunch. They talked, and tried to understand each other's point of view.

One student was aligned with the Black Panther's militant philosophy. He said the Panthers are not trying to overthrow the government. Included as number one in their 10-point plan for improving the blacks' situation is full employment, he said.

Another goal is to make all blacks exempt from the army, he said.

During discussion in a sociology class, a white student countered this by saying if a person wants to live in this country, he should be willing to fight for it. The problem of black vs. white should be worked out as a whole, not as two separate but equal societies.

"LOOK HOW LONG we've tried this one whole idea," the black student said. "What has it gotten us?"

White students said, "Look what we've done to help you during the last 20 years."

"That's one of the problems. What is your concept of help? You allow us to do things. The only way you can help us is by stepping aside and letting us through," a black girl said.

Talking about the high percentage of black soldiers in the Vietnam war, one white student said, "We say you're fighting for freedom for someone else when you don't have it yourself. How can we expect that?"

A black girl said, "I wouldn't die for any society where I am not accepted."

Students discussed Operation Bread Basket and other programs to get black businesses together. The idea for these groups is to get blacks together to support blacks.

HARLAN STUDENTS agreed white businessmen are raping the black community. White merchants do their business in the black areas and then flee with the money they make to the suburbs, one person charged.

"THEY DON'T CALL you Caucasians, why should they call us Negroes?" a student from Harlan High School in Chicago asks during a history class discussion yesterday at Hersey High School. A group of 29 black students visited Hersey yesterday and participated in classes and discussions with Hersey students.

Kidnap? No, Just Kidding

John Paul Terrell's mysterious disappearance two weeks ago is a hoax, but he's probably the best story-teller in Hanover Park.

His story had all the elements of a best seller. Kidnapping. Murder. And intrigue.

Only his story was a trumped-up excuse to go on a 10-day toot.

Terrell disappeared April 4. He phoned his wife from Diamond, Ohio, Monday and said he had been kidnapped from Mount Prospect by two gun-wielding Negroes... but got away unharmed.

He told his wife Ohio police stopped the car the two men were driving in Akron, found him in the back seat and released him. He also told his wife that during his 10-day escapade he had witnessed a brutal slaying in a Missouri farmhouse.

Mrs. Terrell immediately contacted Mount Prospect police and told them her husband's story.

A quick check with Hanover Park and Akron police, however, uncovered nothing. They had no record of the missing Terrell and no account of two Negroes being stopped in Akron.

State and county police in both states had no record of Terrell either. At this point, Mount Prospect police contacted the FBI.

When Terrell returned to Hanover Park, Mount Prospect police and an FBI agent questioned him and found many pieces to his story missing.

He said he had been threatened by the two men at the corner of Sunset and Maple in Mount Prospect, but no one saw it happen. This, according to him, was where he was kidnapped. From there he said he was bound in the backseat of his car and driven through Missouri to Topeka, Kans., where he stayed in a motel with the two men for several days.

A check with the manager of the Covered Wagon Motel in Topeka, however, revealed that Terrell had been there, but by himself.

Finally Terrell admitted the whole story was a hoax. He said he just wanted to get away from home for 10 days and just kept on going when he left home April 4.

No charges were filed against Terrell.

THE CORRIDORS OF Prospect High School can be the difference of day and night during school hours when the spring sun shines outside. Students at Prospect will begin a series of seminars next week on the problems of drug abuse in the local schools.

Cover School Drug Situation

by GERRY DE ZONNA

The National Council for the Prevention of Drug Abuse (NCPDA) will conduct a series of classroom lectures and study sessions on the danger of drug abuse at Prospect High School April 21-25.

The purpose of the program, sponsored by school Dist. 214, is to inform students as well as parents and faculty about the drug situation in the community and the schools.

On Monday at 8 p.m. the NCPDA will conduct a symposium for parents and adults in the community on the dangers of drug abuse, the availability of narcotics in the suburbs, and the contributing factors that can lead a person to the use of drugs and narcotics.

"The session on Monday evening will be aimed at educating the parents and increasing their awareness of the drug problem," explained Dick Yost, police counselor at Prospect High School.

"IF THE PARENTS aren't aware of the problems, then they can't be of any help in finding a solution to the problems with drug abuse," said Yost.

He will be assisting the NCPDA in an advisory capacity during the study sessions. Yost will speak to the parents on the case histories in drug abuse that have occurred at the school and with the community.

Speakers from the NCPDA will address the student body at a general assembly on Tuesday morning. Their presentation will be accompanied by movies and slides on drug addiction, including information on the various kinds of drugs and how to identify them.

Pete Stevredes, a NCPDA representative, will speak to the students on drug addiction and the life of a drug addict. Stevredes, a drug addict for 17 years, will relate his personal experiences to the students.

THROUGHOUT THE remainder of the week, students will attend small study sessions for group discussion and question and answer periods. Stevredes and Dr. C. Walterman, also with the NCPDA, will hold personal counseling sessions with the students.

"The drug abuse seminars are not the ultimate answer to ending the problems in the communities and the school," explained Yost, "but an educational program such as this one will be one important step towards solving the problem."

According to Yost, the marijuana and drug situation is about average at Prospect as compared with the other schools in Dist. 214. "The big push for drugs is on the upswing because students who have nothing better to do with their time are finding marijuana exciting and adventurous."

"The students aren't satisfied with the explanations on drugs and marijuana because there are so many conflicting reports circulating in the press, the magazines, and on television. They really don't know what to believe anymore," said Yost.

THE PURPOSE of the NCPDA is to inform the public on detrimental drug abuse, to expose the sources of illicit drug promotion, to educate the students and adults in the community on the side-effects caused by drug usage, and to determine research projects necessary to solve the drug problems in the communities.

"I'm looking forward to the NCPDA's program," explained Howard Sandlund, director of student activities at Prospect. "The NCPDA has held these seminars at other schools in the area, and the responses from the students and faculty have been most favorable."

"I hope that the program next week will be a successful step towards informing the public on the inherent dangers involved with drugs."

Housewife Dies In Hospital

Mrs. Grace Johnson, the 44-year-old Mount Prospect housewife who three weeks ago is believed to have attempted suicide by drinking a can of Liquid Plumber, died Tuesday at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

She had been on the critical list since she was admitted March 25.

Mrs. Johnson, according to her husband, Marvin, had been suffering a chronic anxiety for the past nine years due to several severed nerves in her brain.

Last October she spent a month in Oak Forest Hospital in Des Plaines and in November was transferred to Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge for brain surgery. She was released in early December.

ACCORDING TO HER husband, she had threatened suicide several times before. The day Mrs. Johnson drank the liquid, she was discovered lying on her bed at home by her husband.

According to police, Johnson found a bottle of Liquid Plumber on the kitchen table about 5:15 p.m. When he entered the bedroom, he found his wife face-up with what appeared to be burns around her mouth.

He immediately rushed her to the hospital, where doctors predicted her chances for survival as slim.

Regner Is Ogilvie's House Voice

State Rep. David J. Regner, R-Third, has been selected to sponsor Gov. Richard Ogilvie's complete law enforcement package in the Illinois House.

The local representative will place about 18 bills in the House, all of them aimed at fulfilling the campaign promises of Ogilvie when he pledged to establish a formal police office of investigation.

Selection of Regner to handle the governor's package in the house came from the governor's office and from Rep. Ralph P. Smith, R-Alton, speaker of the House. The package of bills has been introduced into the Senate and now awaits a vote before moving to the House.

THE BILLS PROVIDE for the establishment of a statewide bureau of investigation, a bureau of identification, a bureau of communication and information and a division of narcotics control. The entire package of bills has been called the Illinois "Little FBI."

Also included in the package is mandatory police training of law enforcement officers in the state.

"This will insure a professional approach and training for our police in the state of Illinois," Regner said. "It is an honor to be selected to carry out the pledge of the governor to fight crime in Illinois."

"ORGANIZED CRIME is a $2 billion business in Illinois and certain steps are necessary to do whatever we can to combat it. I am sure these proposals will be giant steps forward in the fight against organized crime."

Regner said he was optimistic about the package of bills once it reaches the house. The representative said he thinks any opposition to the new bureaus would be along partisan lines based on some member's feelings against establishing a new state department.

"We will know very quickly where the opposition is when the vote comes in the Senate," he said.

After Static, Senate Group OKs Program

SPRINGFIELD UPI — Part of Gov. Richard Ogilvie's law enforcement program ran into some static from local police officials Wednesday but was approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

A bill to create a new Department of Law Enforcement and a "Little FBI" passed on a 9-0 vote, as all five Democrats voted "present." They wanted the sponsor, Sen. Albert Bennett, R-Chicago, to postpone the bills for a week to allow further study of the costs and implications of

The family of daily Herald newspapers expanded rapidly today with the birth of sextuplets.

Paddock Publications, publishers of daily Herald newspapers serving Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Rolling Meadows, announced six more dailies will be started May 5.

They will serve some of the most rapidly growing communities in Northwest Cook County: Elk Grove Village, Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg, Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Prospect Heights.

THE MOVE WILL place all Paddock newspapers in Cook County on a daily basis. Stuart R. Paddock Jr., president of the publishing firm, said the announcement reflected the success of the first four dailies in winning new readers and building advertising support.

"Our response has been overwhelming in each of the four communities. Suburbanites like our new dailies; they find them easy to read, convenient, interesting and — still — the professional level product they are accustomed to getting from Paddock Publications."

Vista Happy Campaign

by JUDY TREMONF.
It's all over but for the exhaustion. When I dropped into bed Tuesday night, I felt I couldn't move a muscle. I was in the campaign for a shorter time, and did less work than many others — what must they feel?

It was exciting. It was nerve-shattering. It was fun, and worth it. The special thrill is to be on the winning side, if you count total commitment for the first time since November 1960.

the hardest thing for me to understand about politicking is predicting the vote, even granting the usual optimism of campaign managers. So much hinges on so little.

IN OUR PRECINCT it became apparent during the day that the little red pencil marks opposite names on the polling lists really were the persons who would decide the outcome.

Workers had done their job and ferreted out those who were for Teichert. All they had to do was get them to the polls to cast their vote in a greater number than the names without red marks.

We nearly did it. Just under half the ballots cast in the precinct went to Bob Teichert. At 6 p.m. it was, "If only that man hadn't got the mumps, we'd have another vote. Why didn't he turn up? A handful of friends could have put us over the top."

The excitement at the Teicherts was contagious. Most were standing in the garage waiting for vote counts to come in from the 14 precincts. Some were eating supper, but when I went to the buffet, the food looked strangely unappetizing. Later I discovered it really was delicious.

"WE'RE GOING TO WIN," were the only acceptable words all evening. Ranny Bateman said once more he was planning to retire from politics with this election and that he planned to go out with four wins in a row and no losses.

"I'm getting too old for all this," he added amid the shouting.

Tom Leo, campaign manager, was rapidly getting hoarse shouting results for all to hear, and it was only after we knew Bob had won that someone handed Leo a megaphone.

I held out being overly optimistic until one precinct reported in and we were about 200 ahead. We still had three precincts unreported when the call came from Larry Ostling.

Tom Leo came from the phone, called for the Teicherts to come into the garage and made the announcement. The cheer was deafening. The people grabbed their neighbors in quick bear hugs and turned to hug someone else.

THOSE NEAREST the new mayor reached out to ruffle Bob's crewcut head while he still hugged his wife, Alice, who was crying. The noise quieted down some, but the excitement remained high all evening. The two phones never stopped ringing all night though there is some doubt any conversation could be heard over the noise.

New faces appeared on the scene to congratulate the Teicherts. Among them were Gil Liebenow, president of the Mount Prospect Library board and John Parsons who was reelected to the library board Tuesday.

From the Mount Prospect Park District board were Robert Jackson, president, and Edward T. Boddy, a former member and vice president of the board. There was also a radio announcer from WMAQ in the crowd.

We left the celebration early to carry news of the victory to hardworking black workers only to find somehow they had already heard. Lee Kane who had chalked up a lot of votes for Teichert on his block arrived at the party as we left.

I WOKE UP DURING the night to realize I was dreaming about the election and the voting — still crossing off names of voters in my sleep.

Excitement is still high, but I'm sure most of the workers have another thought in mind now. Sleep, sleep and more sleep.

Teacher Joins School Aid Increase Backers

An Elk Grove High School teacher was among Illinois Education Association and state American Legion officials who this week jointly called for a $400 million increase in state aid to public schools.

He is Tom O'Driscoll of Palatine, director of pupil personnel services at Elk Grove.

The action puts the two committees behind state aid spending at just about the level proposed by Gov. Richard Ogilvie.

OGILVIE'S BUDGET message, issued April 1, called for a state public school aid increase of $390 million.

Illinois Education Association research director David Elder issued a statement at that time expressing disappointment with Ogilvie's recommendations.

Ogilvie said the $390 million would provide an increase in the state aid foundation level from $400 to $600.

The state School Problems Commission had recommended an increase to $650.

Mum Rumsfeld 1st Choice

by MARTHA MOSER

Thirteenth District Congressman Donald Rumsfeld was still considered the first choice for director of the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) late yesterday.

Following a 4:30 p.m. press briefing in Washington D.C., though, there was no announcement of an appointment to the office and no indication when an announcement will be made.

The press briefing came after a report Rumsfeld's appointment to the office might be unconstitutional.

This question was raised since the representative is part of the legislative body that set up OEO and allowed the director a salary increase.

IT IS NOW believed the appointment would be constitutional, according to Alan Woods, staff aide to White House Press Secretary Ron Ziegler.

"The Constitution says a congressman can not accept a position created during his term of office or one that has been given a salary increase during his term of office," Woods paraphrased after the press briefing.

"But the question is moot with respect to whether OEO was created during the congressional term of office since, technically, the office begins every two years,"

Woods told The Herald.

THE SALARY ceiling of OEO director, along with other top government officials, was raised March 1 by affirmative action of the 90th Congress and lack of negative action by the 91st Congress.

The ceiling now stands at $42,500, the same salary congressmen boosted their wages to recently. So whether Rumsfeld actually acted to raise an anti-poverty chief's salary is another debatable point.

It was learned last Friday that the Northwest suburbs' congressman was President Richard M. Nixon's choice to head the war-on-poverty program.

Rumsfeld has not decided whether to leave his congressional seat for an executive position, according to his Washington aides. Rumsfeld is said to be reluctant but willing to take the poverty job.

Ziegler said publicly yesterday afternoon that Rumsfeld is still under consideration for the post and there is no constitutional bar to his acceptance.

THE WHITE HOUSE press secretary said both the attorney general's office and John D. Ehrlichman, counsel to the president, had ruled there is no conflict under the law.

Should Rumsfeld accept the post, the Northwest suburbs will be without a representative in Congress until a special election can be held, at least six months under Illinois' special election procedures.

Rumsfeld's fourth term would be up in November, 1970.

Man Is Injured In 1-Car Crash

Robert J. DeGraff, 49, of 4957 Kilpatrick, Chicago, was in satisfactory condition last night after a one-car accident in Wheeling.

According to Wheeling police, DeGraff was eastbound on Dundee Road when his car hit the dirt at the roadside, spun into a concrete post and did a complete sideways flip.

The car came to a stop 150 feet from where it left the road, about 150 feet west of the Portwine Road intersection. DeGraff was thrown 12 feet.

He was taken to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines. No report of his injuries was available.

the reorganization.

A bill to let the state's Police Training Board set training standards for local police was weakened by amendment and approved 7-4, with Sen. G. William Horsley, R-Springfield, joining three Democrats in opposition.

Witnesses opposing the bills said they feared the new state agencies would usurp local police responsibilities.

L. Sal Pisano of Peoria, representing the Police Benevolent and Protective Association, said, "I have a feeling this is a Gestapo-type thing we are setting up here."

He said he objected to letting the new department "exercise police powers all over the state" and also the requirement for state-approved training.

Clayton Harbeck of Utica, of the Illinois Sheriff's Association, said he also wanted clarification of what the state's new powers would be.

Supporting the bills, Public Safety Director Herbert Brown said, "We're not adding any powers. The state police can now make arrests anywhere in the state."

Senate Democratic Whip Alan Dixon of

Belleville and Republican senators Hudson Sours of Peoria and Harris Fawell of Naperville all questioned a section authorizing the attorney general to "commence and try any prosecution" arising from the new department.

They said they were not certain how this affected the responsibilities of state's attorneys and got Bennet to agree to hold off a vote in the Senate while they studied it.

In presenting the bills to the committee, the Ogilvie administration made two concessions from the original proposals. The measure to require state certification of policemen was watered down so that now the state board will only require minimum standards of training, and only in cities with more than 5,000 population and counties. A "grandfather clause" was also added so that the provisions do not apply to anyone hired before Jan. 1, 1970.

And, in an apparent concession to the Democrats, the administration shelved the plan to absorb the functions of 143 policemen under Secretary of State Paul Powell.

The other half of Ogilvie's program — to create a new Department of Corrections — was approved by the Senate Executive Committee Tuesday with little opposition.

Kick-Off Week of Events on Sunday

National Library Week begins in two days, and the Mount Prospect Public Library guarantees an eventful week, beginning with an open house kick-off Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m.

Mrs. Raymond Bond-chairman of the Mount Prospect Homemakers Association, recording secretary of the Garden Club, a member of Craft Artists, and member of the board of directors for the Extensioners Club — is presenting a program on "Something from Nothing" at 3 p.m., where she will transform ordinary household items into beautiful gadgets and gifts.

This program should interest all ages, but Mount Prospect's senior citizens are invited to be special guests at the library on this day.

AT 2:30 AND 3:30 P.M. Sunday, Michael Leonard will be combining music, art, and drama in his dramatic interpretation of poetry and stories, for gradeschoolers. Leonard is a storyteller and actor, as well as a librarian at the Skokie Library.

Exhibits, prepared by the library staff, on gardening hobbies, diets, textiles, microfilm, and other subjects will be on display.

One of the highlights of the displays is a special exhibition by Illinois Bell Telephone Co. on the history of the telephone in America.

Monday evening, computers and their growing role in the American Classroom will be the focus of attention as three Harper Junior College faculty members discuss the computer's role in the architecture program. Dr. George Vogel, Joseph Yohanan and Don Collins will begin their discussion at 8 p.m.

A special film is being shown on Tuesday at 8 p.m. This 16 mm color movie from the University of Illinois details the reconstruction of Williamsburg, one of the nation's most beautiful and historic sites.

RICHARD M. BUESCHEL believes in the importance of amateur historians, and says you too can be one. When he presents Wednesday night's program at 8 p.m., he will explain how, and will also discuss his book "Communist Chinese Air Power."

Bueschel is the president of Waldie and Briggs advertising agency, is on the board of directors of the Northwest Suburban YMCA, and has a B.A. in history and government. He is an enthusiastic historian with some important predictions.

As a slight change of pace, you will be able to take a simulated 14-day vacation to the moon on Thursday at 8 p.m. Robert Stenson of the public relations division of Illinois Bell Telephone Co. will guide you on this trip, showing you what you'd see, do, and eat on this space journey.

With a day to recover from your lunar vacation, you'll be ready to swing out at one of the two concluding programs Saturday morning.

EIGHT WESTBROOK sixth graders will present square dancing entertainment under the direction of Robert Fasick, at 10 and 11 a.m.

The library hopes to see you during this special week. You won't be offered a free and varied program like this, until next year's library week. So, bring a neighbor or friend along too.

Have Light Fight

Village Mgr. Robert Moore locked horns with a Mount Prospect court bailiff over a temporary power failure at village hall yesterday.

Moore said when the power failure occurred, an emergency hook-up using extension cords was made until he could contact an electrician to fix it.

All was fine until the electrician arrived and disconnected the electrical current in the courtroom.

"The electrician was working with the wires trying to fix the power failure when the bailiff tells him to turn the electricity back on," said Moore.

THE BAILIFF charged the electrician hadn't received permission from the judge to (fix the lights.)

"I told the bailiff to get back in court," said Moore.

"Who are you?" the bailiff asked.

"I'm the village manager," Moore replied.

"Well then go manage," said the bailiff. "And you, when you turn the lights back on, you better fix the clock in the courtroom too. It's running a little slow," he ordered the electrician.

Moore finally shoed the bailiff back into the courtroom and a short time later, peace was restored.

"Can you imagine that guy? At $12 an hour, he wants the electrician to reset the clocks in the courtroom? Boy . . ." sighed Moore.

Local Jaycees Set Sand Sale

The Mount Prospect Jaycees will sponsor Project Sandbox April 26 from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The Jaycees will deliver sand at $1.50 per wheelbarrow to residents in the Mount Prospect area. The trucks and sand have been provided by local businesses, and the Jaycees will provide the manpower.

"WE'RE SPONSORING THIS project as a service to parents in the area whose children have sandboxes and as a source of revenue for our nonprofit community projects such as Law Day, the Miss Mount Prospect Pageant and the Junior Sports Jamboree," Charles Lind, chairman for Project Sandbox, said.

Orders for sand should be placed no later than April 24 by calling Jaycees Gary Zachman at 253-7326, Frank Lucas at 392-2154, or Ralph Wille at 394-1265.

THE HERALD

Herald Will Begin Daily Publication Monday

The Herald will become a daily newspaper effective Monday, May 5.

It will continue as an early morning, home-delivered community newspaper, but will be published Monday through Friday instead of tri-weekly, to offer virtually instantaneous reporting of important local news along with numerous reader features and services.

The move, reflecting the success of Paddock Publications' existing daily newspapers, is a major acceleration of expansion plans previously announced by the suburban publishing firm.

ANNOUNCEMENT was made by Stuart R. Paddock Jr., president.

He said reader and advertiser acceptance of the four existing dailies has indicated that both groups regard the additional news and advertising coverage as a significant service.

"Our response has been overwhelming," Paddock said. "Suburbanites like our new dailies so much we felt we should extend daily frequency as rapidly as possible, consistent with maintaining high editorial standards."

"We are convinced the community will be pleased by this new daily and will give it the same warm reception our dailies have received in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Rolling Meadows."

The change will place all of Paddock Publications' Cook County newspapers on a daily basis. Five papers serving communities in north DuPage County will be retained, for the present, on a tri-weekly publication schedule.

Paddock said the newest dailies represent the firm's greatest potential for future growth in terms of new readers and advertisers.

"THE RAPID GROWTH of this community holds great promise for the community and its newspaper. We intend to strengthen and enhance our news coverage," Paddock said, "while aggressively building lineage with advertisers serving the community."

"Our increased frequency will permit us to develop more varieties of news and human interest material, and it will give us a chance to offer advertisers added impact as well as exposure any week day of their choosing."

To accommodate the increased frequency, additional news, advertising and circulation personnel will be secured.

The new daily Herald is only one in a series of innovations made by Paddock Publications in recent years. Only two years ago, it converted all 16 newspapers from weekly to tri-weekly frequency. While the weekly often published 90 to 120 pages, the tri-weekly offered more compact, easier to read editions.

A month ago, the six-column "op" format was adopted, providing an uncluttered appearance and a new column width designed for optimum ease of reading. At the same time, the news departments were reorganized and a page numbering system instituted. Carrier delivery replaced the former mail distribution system, an improvement which received considerable favorable response from readers and a necessary prelude to the daily frequency.

BESIDES MORE timely news and added feature coverage, Herald readers can look forward on May 5 to:

—A daily news summary of important national and international events from United Press International sources.

—Daily results of prep sporting events.

—Daily Suburban Living features for the family, and daily news about women.

—Daily Arts of Living coverage of suburban cultural and entertainment events, including a daily horoscope.

—Daily editorials focusing on the concerns of the community and the Northwest suburbs.

Trustee Results

Turning in a plurality in Precinct 7, Tom Ullmann won the third seat open on the Elk Grove Village Board by a margin of 178 votes over Alvin Krasnow.

But Ullmann trailed incumbents George Coney and Charles Zettek, who were easily reelected to second and third terms, respectively.

Final unofficial returns showed Zettek with 2,112; Coney, 2,067; Ullmann, 1,909; and Krasnow, 1,731.

BUT DESPITE running in fourth position, Krasnow might be appointed to the village board to fill out a term formerly owned by Eugene Keith.

In a surprise move on election night, Keith, trailing badly in the presidential race, announced he would resign from the village board. His term expires in 1971.

Immediately opposed to that was Ullmann, who thought a special election might be in order. He had beaten Krasnow in all but one precinct, although some margins were thin. Precinct 4, at Grant Wood School, gave Ullmann only eight votes more than Krasnow, while Precinct 1, at Arcade Park and Shop, gave the winner only 12 votes more than the fourth-running candidate.

The race between Coney and Zettek became a sort of friendly dual as the evening wore on, to see who would get more than who. In the end, Coney "conceded" that he had been out-polled by Zettek.

IT WAS ZETTEK'S fourth campaign for the village board, and he became the first trustee to be elected to a third term. He and Coney led in six precincts, upset by

Keith WILL Leave Post

EUGENE KEITH said Wednesday that he meant it — after losing the mayoral race, he'll resign Tuesday from the village board.

Elk Grove Village Trustee Eugene Keith, who ran third in Tuesday's mayoral election, said Wednesday he's still planning to resign from the board.

His comments Tuesday night, Keith said, will be presented to the board next Tuesday in the form of a letter of resignation.

Asked about the possibility of appointing fourth-running trustee candidate Alvin Krasnow, Keith suggested that the board consider candidate Robert Fleming, who ran second to Jack Pahl in the presidential race.

KEITH SAID THAT his comment, "I no longer have personal respect for any individual with whom I would be required to serve," was not directed at Pahl and Fleming alone, as was reported Wednesday. Keith also added that his statement was not prepared in advance, as was reported.

When asked about the parliamentary procedure involved, Keith wondered if the present board or the new board should act on his resignation, but made no immediate request. The only difference between the old and new boards would be the seating of Tom Ullmann in place of Trustee James Gibson.

Keith served on the village board for a total of six years, from 1961 to 65 and from 1967 to present. In his first campaign he ran as an independent, but was a member of Jack Pahl's slate in 1965. He ran independently in 1967.

FOR KEITH, TUESDAY was a bitter day. He had hoped for a voter turnout of 3,500, and felt that it would be a very close race. Instead, 3,171 voted in the mayoral election, and Pahl beat him by a 2 to 1 margin.

He had election night headquarters set up at the Maitre d' Restaurant, immediately adjacent to Pahl's meeting place. But few of his supporters showed up, in sharp contrast to Pahl's victory celebration.

Ball Death Probed

An inquest into the death of Douglas Hayhurst, 10, of 937 Wilshire, Elk Grove Village, will be held today at the Lauterburg and Oehler Funeral Home in Arlington Heights.

The youth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hayhurst, was killed Wednesday afternoon when struck by a baseball in the playground behind Grant Wood Elementary School, 225 E. Elk Grove Blvd.

According to investigating officer Ray Rose, the boy was struck in the chest by a batted ball. He cried out, and fell to the ground.

A neighbor, Mrs. Pauline Kubas, 916 Victoria, ran to the scene and tried to revive the boy by mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Police and firemen arrived a few minutes later, and for 20 minutes attempted to aid the boy.

ALL EFFORTS failed, however, and he was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Alexius Hospital, by Dr. Thomas at 4:40 p.m.

He was a fifth grade student at Queen of the Rosary School, Elk Grove Village.

Hospital officials said the exact cause of death has not yet been determined.

In addition to his parents, Hayhurst is survived by a brother, Robert, a sister, Deborah, and grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilhelm and Forrest P. Drake.

Funeral services have been scheduled for 9:45 a.m. tomorrow at Queen of the Rosary Church, Elk Grove Village, with the Rev. J. Ward Morrison officiating. Interment will be at All Saint's Cemetery.

Easy Wins Go To Four

Four candidates, all unopposed, won easy victories Tuesday in Elk Grove Village. They included Village Clerk Eleanor Turner, who won a third term with 2,908 votes, and library board candidates John Gayer, with 2,151 votes; Mrs. Darleen Greaves, 2,468; and Frederick Klink, 1,933.

All returns are unofficial, and will probably be canvassed Tuesday night.

'Posse' Guards Bank's Move

Like an 1870s posse waiting for the bad guys to ride into town, Elk Grove Village police armed themselves with shotguns, carbines and the usual revolvers this week, and swarmed around Arlington Heights and Higgins Roads.

Object of concern was the Bank of Elk Grove, which was moving into a new building and planning to open Monday. Bank records, securities, safety deposit boxes and cash are involved in the trek across Higgins Road.

A tight security ring was set up, which included officers William Kohnke (at right) and Chris Markussen (below), sealing off the area.

THE MOVE WILL be completed over the weekend, and the bank will be open for business Monday, according to Neil Cooney, bank president. Portions of the bank's operations have been in the new building for several weeks.

While the shift across Higgins is a short one, it has required detailed planning, Cooney said.

"It's like a safari," he noted.

Designed by architects Loebli, Schlossman, Bennett and Dart of Chicago, the new quarters are "like a new world," Cooney added.

It is a two-story contemporary building with 15,000 square feet of space, on a 131,000 square foot site to accommodate a large parking area and extensive landscaping. The bank has four drive-in windows.

THE MAIN BANKING floor has a 12-window teller line, private offices, conference rooms and a safety deposit vault. Bookkeeping space and the staff coffee room are located on the second floor, which extends over the teller line.

Organized in 1963, the Bank of Elk Grove had deposits totalling $2,151,302 at the end of the first business year. Since then, deposits have grown to $13,055,552 as of Dec. 31. The bank has a staff of 40 persons.

Cooney added that an open house announcement will be made soon.

Elk Horn Goodbye, Eugene

by GEOFFREY MEHL

When the polls closed at Clearmont School Tuesday, Trustee Eugene Keith and park board candidate Martin Durkin were there. They cleaned up all the little signs stuck into the soft spring earth by those hoping for a seat at the table of government in Elk Grove Village.

It was a sort of good samaritan act, and both went their separate ways. Durkin home, and Keith to the Maitre d' Restaurant to have an election night dinner with his wife.

Bill Rose was expecting a mob over there. We're told, because both Keith and Pres Jack Pahl had set up headquarters in adjacent basement banquet rooms.

Keith had been talking about a healthy vote — over 3,000, and very close — and it looked as though that just might be the way it would go. But early returns proved otherwise. Embittered, losing badly, and with all political stratagems falling apart, Eugene Keith got even with everybody and announced he would not only concede victory to Pahl, but that he would also resign from the village board. He had two years to go as a trustee, but apparently Keith couldn't respect anybody on the panel anymore.

So, in a dramatic gesture in, as he puts it, "my own inimitable style," he snuffed out his dissident voice, closed his empty headquarters and retired.

Well, it might have been a dramatic gesture, with five of seven precincts in, but we wonder how those people who voted for him feel today. They believed in what Eugene Keith had to say, no matter how controversial it was. They believed him when he said win or lose, he'd be around a long time. They believed him when he said that someone on the board has to say "no." So here was Keith, tossing in the towel, hurt and bitter, not even interested in the 291 votes he got in the last precincts.

Tom Ullmann, who has the makings of a dissident, thought it was kind of stupid. Others expressed sympathy, while still others rolled their tongues and sampled the bad taste in their mouths.

A lot of people thought it was a rash action, poorly timed, and definitely lacking of good sportsmanship. Some thought it was like the little kid that couldn't compete with the older boys, and took his marbles home.

Wednesday, Keith confirmed that he really did mean what he had to say Tuesday night, but he said he'd be around now and then when there was something to talk about, sort of like Robert Fleming. But we doubt if anybody will be listening.

There's an old political cliché about getting out of the kitchen if you can't stand the heat, which seems to be what Keith has done. But we'd like to add that those who scramble out of the kitchen really don't have much to say about what's happening in the oven.

Farewell, Eugene Keith. You tried your best to represent 722 people who voted for you, but you blew it — in your own inimitable way.

Last Was A Crucial Precinct

by GEOFFREY MEHL

It was late, the room was crowded, and the happy but exhausted supporters of Jack Pahl gathered around their leader to hear about the last and a crucial precinct.

"Keith, 164," he barked, and the crowd boomed. "Fleming, 212." More jeers. "Pahl, 257!" It was the crowning touch on a solid victory, and the Pahl organization demonstrated the feelings that go with winning.

The precinct in question voted at Salt Creek School, and was important to the incumbent Elk Grove Village president primarily because it was the home of his two opponents, Trustee Eugene Keith and Robert Fleming.

PAHL DEFEATED Fleming by 436 votes and outran Keith 2-1, collecting 1,442 votes and all seven precincts. Unofficial returns showed Pahl receiving 45.48 per cent of the vote, trailed by Fleming's 31.76, and Keith's 22.76 per cent.

Pahl opened up thin leads in the first two precincts. Precinct 1, which voted at Arcade Park and Shop, gave the village president 135 votes to Fleming's 117 and Keith's 44. Precinct 2, which has expressed dissatisfaction with everything from parks to bond issues, helped Keith close the gap. Pahl got 196 there, while Fleming picked up 182 and Keith received 118.

Concern about Precinct 3, voting at Ridge School, had been privately expressed in the Pahl camp in the past few days. A concerted effort was made through late afternoon on Tuesday there, and it paid off. The precinct delivered 243 votes to Pahl, 133 to Fleming, and 84 to Keith.

THE INCUMBENT'S lead continued to build in the fourth and fifth precincts, at the rate of about 50 votes per precinct. Grant Wood School area voters went 145 for Pahl, 102 for Fleming, and 84 for Keith, while Clearmont voters turned in 199 for Pahl, 141 for Fleming, and 111 for Keith.

At that point, Keith conceded victory by announcing he wouldn't even remain on the village board. The trustee said he would resign Tuesday, because "I no longer have personal respect for many individuals with whom I would be required to serve."

The move surprised observers, and it wasn't until yesterday morning that thought began to be given to who would replace Keith on the panel.

Precinct 7, home of Pahl, which voted at Admiral Byrd School, was next in, delivering a heavy vote for Pahl. While the president received 288 votes, Fleming got 120 and Keith, out of the race, received 117.

With a healthy margin, the Pahl victory party moved into high gear; all that had to be done was get a reasonable vote in Precinct 6, and it would be all over.

IT WASN'T until very late in the evening when the last vote was in, but when it came, it was another 45 vote plurality for Pahl, making him the first Elk Grove Village president to be reelected.

The final unofficial count was Pahl, 1,442; Fleming, 1,007; and Keith, 722.

Cleaner Issue Stirs Mothers

A bright orange aerosol can, appearing on door steps and milk boxes in the area, has been arousing maternal ire among customers of Willow Farm dairy products.

The can contains Tuf Oven Cleaner, and the can bears a warning: "Keep out of the reach of children. Contains potassium hydroxide."

It is being left by milkmen this week as a promotional venture by Tuf, Inc., a Chicago firm, to boost product sales. A flyer accompanies the can, asking Willow Farm customers to try it. If they like it, they're billed $1.29. If they don't, they're instructed to leave the can on the doorstep, and the milkman will pick it up the next time he visits.

ONE ELK GROVE Village housewife was upset when her 3-year-old child went out to get the milk and returned with the oven cleaner. Wednesday she complained about it.

Officials at the Willow Farm distributor in Rolling Meadows said that the can has an inner plastic seal on it to protect children.

"It's one-shot promotion," according to Robert Lawler, senior supervisor at the distribution point. "It was distributed on Monday and Wednesday, and homes that didn't get it will receive it Friday."

ASKED ABOUT the potential hazard to children, Lawler said the can has an outer lid, with an inner plastic seal. "Stuff like this is on grocery store shelves, within reach of children, and it doesn't have the inner seal," he said.

He explained the flyer that was accompanying the product, and was asked about the housewife who tries it, doesn't like it, and leaves it for the milkman to pick up. There's no inner seal on it.

"Well, you've got a point there," Lawler said. He admitted that there have been complaints, but said this was the only week the offer would be in effect.

Talk of Black and White

by SANDRA COMSTOCK

"I felt very much at home. It's not something that I expected because we have visited other schools and not felt so welcome," the teenage girl said.

She was one of 29 students from John M. Harlan High School, 9652 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, who visited Hersey High in Arlington Heights yesterday.

"The point about wanting to be called black as they don't call you Caucasians, why should they call us Negroes? Black was chosen because it contrasts with white," another girl in the group argued.

Another Harlan student commented, "I'm not rebelling against you because you're white, I'm rebelling against the system."

A Harlan teacher explained, "Most of you kids out here live in an almost completely white world. Some of us from Harlan come from an almost all black world. The object of today's trip is to get kids together of approximately the same economic and social class and let you talk."

AND THE STUDENTS certainly did talk. During history and sociology classes, during walks down the hall, while eating lunch. They talked, and tried to understand each other's point of view.

One student was aligned with the Black Panther's militant philosophy. He said the Panthers are not trying to overthrow the government. Included as number one in their 10-point plan for improving the blacks' situation is full employment, he said.

Another goal is to make all blacks exempt from the army, he said.

During discussion in a sociology class, a white student countered this by saying if a person wants to live in this country, he should be willing to fight for it. The problem of black vs. white should be worked out as a whole, not as two separate but equal societies.

"LOOK HOW LONG we've tried this one whole idea," the black student said. "What has it gotten us?"

White students said, "Look what we've done to help you during the last 20 years."

"That's one of the problems. What is your concept of help? You allow us to do things. The only way you can help us is by stepping aside and letting us through," a black girl said.

Talking about the high percentage of

"THEY DON'T CALL you Caucasians, why should they call us Negroes?" a student from Harlan High School in Chicago asks during a history class discussion yesterday at Hersey High School. A group of 29 black students visited Hersey yesterday and participated in classes and discussions with Hersey students.

black soldiers in the Vietnam war, one white student said, "We say you're fighting for freedom for someone else when you don't have it yourself. How can we expect that?"

A black girl said, "I wouldn't die for any society where I am not accepted."

Students discussed Operation Bread Basket and other programs to get black businesses together. The idea for these groups is to get blacks together to support blacks.

HARLAN STUDENTS agreed white businessmen are raping the black community. White merchants do their business in the black areas and then flee with the money they make to the suburbs, one person charged.

"We're not going to kick the white merchants out. But we are going to say, 'If you're going to stay you are going to be more responsive to this community,'" another black person stated.

The situation was not left as a hopeless and insoluble problem. After an hour of discussion, the Black Panther supporter said, "We've got to work it out together or there will be a confrontation."

Blacks seem to want to be able to meet whites on a firm economic basis. "The situation is more rich versus poor than it is black versus white. Some people want to keep it in the terms of black vs. white to keep all the have-nots from banding together," the Harlan teacher said.

ONE BLACK STUDENT who had let her hair grow out in a "natural" style said, "It just comes out like this. Just like your hair comes out straight, mine comes out curly. So I let it grow this way."

One Hersey student said she felt cheated because she can't take an Afro-American history course at the school. "There are too many parents out here who would object," she said.

Many students agreed, saying their parents were afraid of something like that. They said the school was afraid to do anything the parents didn't like because parents can vote down referendums.

The Harlan teacher told the white students not to place all the blame at their parents' feet. "In a few years you will be adults and parents, and it's your job to make things right from there."

THROUGHOUT THE discussion yesterday afternoon, students had crowded into the back of the room. They sat on tables or stood so they could hear what was being said. Some had gotten passes from being typed or drama classes. Everyone was intensely interested.

Alex Schmidt, head of the social science department at Hersey and the man who helped to arrange the visit from Harlan students, wrapped up the discussion. He said, "I don't know if I can say this of all days at Hersey, but I know today there has been some education at Hersey High School."

Beauty Contest To Be Tomorrow

Six area persons will serve as judges in the Northern Illinois level of the Penny-Rich International Corp.-sponsored beauty contest tomorrow afternoon.

Participating members include Earl Marshall, James Grange, Guy Marsh, Lois McKelvey and Shirley Johnson. The 3 to 5 p.m. program will be narrated by Sharon Grange. All are Elk Grove residents.

Korean Talks Start

WASHINGTON — A face-to-face confrontation between representatives of President Nixon and the North Koreans was to have begun at 8 p.m. yesterday, Central Standard Time. The United States agreed to the meeting at Panmunjom after the bodies of two crewmen were found yesterday in the Sea of Japan.

The crewmen were among 31 shot down by North Korea in what the United States declared is international air space.

Red Policy Changes?

PRAGUE — Changes in the Communist Party's decision-making Presidium accompanied Alexander Dubcek's fall from power as first secretary of Czechoslovakia's branch of the party, according to Czechoslovakian President Ludvik Svoboda.

Dubcek was replaced yesterday by Gustav Husak, leader of the Slovak branch of the party, a conservative considered more acceptable to the Soviet Union.

Tub Sharing Is Private

WASHINGTON — The federal government doesn't care who you share your bathtub or shower with but it still wants to know if you do share facilities. That was one of the immediate changes made in the 1970 census questionnaire.

Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans said this and other changes were made in response to Congressional criticism. From now on, all census questions will be cleared with Congress two years in advance.

Asks Competition Cut

SPRINGFIELD — A move to outlaw territorial competition between electric power suppliers, including private, cooperative and municipal systems, was urged yesterday by Carl E. Bagge of the Federal Power Commission (FPC).

Bagge asked for state legislation here and a federal law which would provide FPC jurisdiction over wholesale rates and services of rural electric cooperatives, municipal electric systems and state power authorities.

Verdict Is Pleasing

LOS ANGELES — The man-in-the-street in Los Angeles, where Sirhan B. Sirhan was tried, generally agreed Thursday with the jury that found him guilty of first degree murder in the slaying of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. Some hoped he would be executed.

SPRINGFIELD — Legislation will be introduced in the House next week to give Atty. Gen. William Scott's office power to prosecute air and water pollution violators by statute.

Scott told a news conference here yesterday the office currently has only its inherent to common law power of prosecution. The bill provides for a full time antipollution staff within his office composed of four prosecutors, eight investigators and a pollution control engineer.

MACOMB, Ill. — The Board of Governors of State Colleges and Universities yesterday skipped around a state imposed interest limit and sold $9.5 million in revenue bonds to finance three building projects.

Cover School Drug Situation

by GERRY DE ZONNA

The National Council for the Prevention of Drug Abuse (NCPDA) will conduct a series of classroom lectures and study sessions on the danger of drug abuse at Prospect High School April 21-25.

The purpose of the program, sponsored by school Dist. 214, is to inform students as well as parents and faculty about the drug situation in the community and the schools.

On Monday at 8 p.m. the NCPDA will conduct a symposium for parents and adults in the community on the dangers of drug abuse, the availability of narcotics in the suburbs, and the contributing factors that can lead a person to the use of drugs and narcotics.

"The session on Monday evening will be aimed at educating the parents and increasing their awareness of the drug problem," explained Dick Yost, police counselor at Prospect High School.

Trustees of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library will meet at 7:30 p.m. today at the library, 500 N. Dunton Ave.

"IF THE PARENTS aren't aware of the problems, then they can't be of any help in finding a solution to the problems with drug abuse," said Yost.

He will be assisting the NCPDA in an advisory capacity during the study sessions. Yost will speak to the parents on the case histories in drug abuse that have occurred at the school and with the community.

Speakers from the NCPDA will address the student body at a general assembly on Tuesday morning. Their presentation will be accompanied by movies and slides on drug addiction, including information on the various kinds of drugs and how to identify them.

Pete Stevredes, a NCPDA representative, will speak to the students on drug addiction and the life of a drug addict. Stevredes, a drug addict for 17 years, will relate his personal experiences to the students.

THROUGHOUT THE remainder of the week, students will attend small study sessions for group discussion and question and answer periods. Stevredes and Dr. C. Waltermann, also with the NCPDA, will hold personal counseling sessions with the students.

"The drug abuse seminars are not the ultimate answer to ending the problems in the communities and the school," explained Yost, "but an educational program such as this one will be an important step towards solving the problem."

According to Yost, the marijuana and drug situation is about average at Prospect as compared with the other schools in Dist. 214. "The big push for drugs is on the upswing because students who have nothing better to do with their time are finding marijuana exciting and adventurous."

"The students aren't satisfied with the explanations on drugs and marijuana because there are so many conflicting reports circulating in the press, the magazines, and on television. They really don't know what to believe anymore," said Yost.

THE PURPOSE of the NCPDA is to inform the public on detrimental drug abuse, to expose the sources of illicit drug promotion, to educate the students and adults in the community on the side-effects caused by drug usage, and to determine research projects necessary to solve the drug problems in the communities.

"I'm looking forward to the NCPDA's program," explained Howard Sandlund, director of student activities at Prospect. "The NCPDA has held these seminars at other schools in the area, and the responses from the students and faculty have been most favorable."

"I hope that the program next week will be a successful step towards informing the public on the inherent dangers involved with drugs."

Relief is just four weeks away for students at John Hersey High School and motorists who fight to cross Rand Road at Thomas Street.

The installation of temporary lights at the hazardous intersection marks the end of a long battle involving School Dist. 214, students and parents with the state highway department for controls "before someone gets killed."

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, said yesterday he received a call from Gov. Richard Ogilvie's office telling him temporary signalling and traffic lights will be installed at the intersection within four weeks.

SCHLICKMAN said he was also told the order for permanent lights has already been made and the contract let.

"Very sophisticated" signalling equipment is now being manufactured and installation is set for late August or early September, he said.

Quick action was requested on petitions collected by students at Hersey last month. Students collected signatures requesting quick installation of lights. They also distributed about 4,000 letters requesting residents in the area to write Ogilvie and the director of the department of public works to tell them of the need for controls.

Schlickman hand carried the petitions to the governor's office late last month. Shortly thereafter, Ogilvie ordered the state department of highways to "review the matter with the object of determining if the project can be expedited from its present schedule."

Previous scheduling called for letting of a contract for permanent signals to be done in May, with installation scheduled for sometime in the fall.

LT. JACK Aldrich of the Arlington Heights Police Department was told of the four-week period for installing temporary lights. He said, "Hurray! That's my reaction."

The news also pleased officials at Her-

Herald Adds Six Dailies

The family of daily Herald newspapers expanded rapidly today with the birth of sextuplets.

Paddock Publications, publishers of daily Herald newspapers serving Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Rolling Meadows, announced six more dailies will be started May 5.

They will serve some of the most rapidly growing communities in Northwest Cook County: Elk Grove Village, Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg, Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Prospect Heights.

THE MOVE WILL place all Paddock newspapers in Cook County on a daily basis. Stuart R. Paddock Jr., president of the publishing firm, said the announcement reflected the success of the first four dailies in winning new readers and building advertising support.

"Our response has been overwhelming in each of the four communities. Suburbanites like our new dailies; they find them easy to read, convenient, interesting and — still — the professional level product they are accustomed to getting from Paddock Publications."

Bills Reviewed

Arlington Heights' legal committee of the village board last night accepted recommendations from Village Atty. Jack Siegel to support certain bills pending before the state legislature.

AN ADVERTISING Council's annual award for Outstanding Placement of a Commercial Message should go to Illinois Bell Telephone Co. for their Yellow Pages effort on Page 137 of the Arlington Heights - Palatine phone book. Amidst a variety of listings and advertisements for funeral homes is a small box which states, "Miss the folks you love? Call them Long Distance."

FLASHLIGHTS are standard equipment for some in the annual scavenger hunt preceding the Laseke pick-up. Some families who finally got everything stacked at the curb after dark on Sunday found by dawn that piles were considerably diminished.

ANY ACTION on improving Arlington Heights Road will follow a minor improvement that occurred last month. The speed limit between Rand and Dundee was dropped from 50 to 45 miles per hour. That's little consolation to the wife of a Plan Commission member, who was forced off the road near Berkeley Square.

BURT THOMPSON, veteran plan commission member, may make the village board's task of selecting new public servants a bit easier. He may choose to remain on the commission. Although he has reached no final decision, he says off-hand that he plans to stay.

MONEY'S NOT ENOUGH — During discussion at a safety commission meeting of ways to improve conditions at the intersection of Rand Road, Thomas Avenue near Hersey High School, someone suggested a policeman could be used to direct traffic at the corner until lights are installed. Lt. Jack Aldrich said the intersection is not in the village. He added jokingly, "Anyway, there isn't enough money that could pay me to stand out there and direct that traffic."

A ROSE BY any other name would smell like asphalt: the projected "Rand-Golf" or "Golf-Rand" or "L-S" expressway is now the "North Suburban Freeway." A brochure describing the H. W. Lockner study of a location describes the freeway, 300 feet or less in width, as the "ultimate freeway." Of course, the study of a location is still incomplete, so better wait a while before construction begins.

PROBLEMS OF GETTING organized. Library trustees, who planned to elect officers and adopt rules at this week's meeting found it was better not to do so as the meeting was a continuation of a previous session when trustees set the date for the library referendum. The board had to meet this week somehow; the press needed 24 hours notice and Sunday was legally unacceptable. Trustees, who have been meeting in midnight committee and board sessions for the past few weeks, now have to get together Friday night to get next year's organization under way.

THAT'S MY JOB. The testing consultant for Dist. 25 recently explained student testing programs at a coffee for parents. He was bombarded with questions from interested mothers and one asked if testing was really necessary at all. He replied with a grin that he considered his work a small part of the overall work done for children but that tests did have merit.

A RADIO STATION in Chicago goofed Wednesday morning; it called Daniel Congreve the winner in Mount Prospect. The error flooded the Paddock switchboard with calls from anxious Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect readers. To make a Newsradio 78, just give your newdealer 15 cents —

The recommendations will be presented to the village trustees for their consideration.

Action by the committee was approved by a majority of one, since Frank Palmatier was the only committee member who attended.

Siegel recommended support of House Bills 1257 and 1253 which would give more powers to municipalities. The first bill would give municipalities the power to tax and license certain businesses which operate within their corporate limits.

The taxing could not be used as a revenue producer but merely as a regulatory procedure.

AT PRESENT, municipalities can license only businesses as specified by state statute. This bill would allow Arlington Heights to license building contractors and other businesses not specified in the state law books.

House Bill 1253 states cities or villages may pass ordinances to enforce the public health, safety or morals of its citizens. Siegel stated this bill would give Arlington Heights "general policing powers."

Siegel said these two bills represent a change in the state's usual trend. In the past, state legislators have outlined specifically the areas of jurisdiction of municipalities. These two bills grant more general powers to local government and should be supported by the village board, Siegel said.

DON RUMSFELD, 13th District congressman, can be imagined in this ponderous pose as he debates whether to accept a call as director of the Office of Economic Opportunity. Rumsfeld is reportedly "bargaining" for the position and is reluctant but willing to take over war-on-poverty.

by MARTHA MOSER

Thirteenth District Congressman Donald Rumsfeld was still considered the first choice for director of the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) late yesterday.

Following a 4:30 p.m. press briefing in Washington D.C., though, there was no announcement of an appointment to the office and no indication when an announcement will be made.

The press briefing came after a report Rumsfeld's appointment to the office might be unconstitutional.

This question was raised since the representative is part of the legislative body that set up OEO and allowed the director a salary increase.

IT IS NOW believed the appointment would be constitutional, according to Alan Woods, staff aide to White House Press Secretary Ron Ziegler.

"The Constitution says a congressman can not accept a position created during his term of office or one that has been given a salary increase during his term of office," Woods paraphrased after the press briefing.

"But the question is moot with respect to whether OEO was created during the congressional term of office since, technically, the office begins every two years," Woods told The Herald.

THE SALARY ceiling of OEO director, along with other top government officials, was raised March 1 by affirmative action of the 90th Congress and lack of negative action by the 91st Congress.

The ceiling now stands at $42,500, the same salary congressmen boosted their wages to recently. So whether Rumsfeld actually acted to raise an anti-poverty chief's salary is another debatable point.

It was learned last Friday that the Northwest suburbs' congressman was President Richard M. Nixon's choice to head the war-on-poverty program.

Rumsfeld has not decided whether to leave his congressional seat for an executive position, according to his Washington aides. Rumsfeld is said to be reluctant but willing to take the poverty job.

Ziegler said publicly yesterday afternoon that Rumsfeld is still under consideration for the post and there is no constitutional bar to his acceptance.

THE WHITE HOUSE press secretary said both the attorney general's office and John D. Ehrlichman, counsel to the president, had ruled there is no conflict under the law.

Should Rumsfeld accept the post, the Northwest suburbs will be without a representative in Congress until a special election can be held, at least six months under Illinois' special election procedures.

Rumsfeld's fourth term would be up in November, 1970.

Lindstrom Says Attack—

the latest incident involving a North Korean aircraft is bleak.

He predicted that this country may find itself involved in another similar incident in the near future.

"The ramifications (of that incident) will be more far-reaching than this."

He said negotiation with the North Koreans is useless and that the exchange of diplomatic notes at Pannunjom will have little effect.

He repeated his earlier charge, which received nationwide publicity Tuesday, that government sources have reason to believe that there might possibly be seven survivors who parachuted from the plane.

The minister said that communist gunboats could have moved at a speed of 30 or 40 knots into the area off the North Korean coast and picked up the men in the Sea of Japan.

Rev. Lindstrom proposed two ways that Americans can attempt to alleviate that situation.

He said Americans held prisoner in foreign countries might be encouraged by a prayer.

He also suggested that the members of his audience might write to elected officials, President Nixon or Secretary of State William Rogers.

At the end of Rev. Lindstrom's talk, the audience, which sat grim-faced through the speech, applauded loudly.

Regner Sponsors Law Bills

State Rep. David J. Regner, R-Third, has been selected to sponsor Gov. Richard Ogilvie's complete law enforcement package in the Illinois House.

The local representative will place about 18 bills in the House, all of them aimed at fulfilling the campaign promises of Ogilvie when he pledged to establish a formal police office of investigation. Selection of Regner to handle the governor's package in the house came from the governor's office and from Rep. Ralph P. Smith, R-Alton, speaker of the House.

The package of bills has been introduced into the Senate and now awaits a vote before moving to the House.

THE BILLS PROVIDE for the establishment of a statewide bureau of investigation, a bureau of identification, a bureau of communication and information and a division of narcotics control. The entire package of bills has been called the Illinois "Little FBI."

Also included in the package is mandatory police training of law enforcement officers in the state.

"This will insure a professional approach and training for our police in the state of Illinois," Regner said. "It is an honor to be selected to carry out the pledge of the governor to fight crime in Illinois."

"ORGANIZED CRIME is a $2 billion business in Illinois and certain steps are necessary to do whatever we can to combat it. I am sure these proposals will be giant steps forward in the fight against organized crime."

Regner said he was optimistic about the package of bills once it reaches the house. The representative said he thinks any opposition to the new bills would be along partisan lines based on some member's feelings against establishing a new state department.

"We will know very quickly where the opposition is when the vote comes in the Senate," he said.

Traffic Lights Due—

say. Principal Roland Goins said, "I think it's great news. We have indicated our position on the need for lights especially with the expected large enrollment for summer school classes."

Hersey is the center for Dist. 214's summer school program since it is the only building in the district with air conditioning.

Dist. 214 had asked the state to install lights in time for the opening of Hersey in the fall, 1968. However, money had not been allotted for in the state highway's budget and action was delayed until this year. In March, 1968, the state promised the project would be given a "high priority."

Last fall, Dist. 214 initiated a busing program for students west of Rand Road who attend the high school. All students were bused, no matter how close they lived, so they would not have to cross Rand where the speed limit is 50 miles per hour.

This created a strange situation with students living only three or four blocks west of the school and having to take a bus. One resident said his high school teen-ager took a bus four blocks to school while his kindergarten-age youngster had to walk almost a mile to his school.

COMPLICATIONS AT the intersection arose because Buffalo Grove Road angles into Thomas Street just short of the intersection. The village agreed with state highway officials to make Buffalo Grove one way north to the edge of Sugarbrook Subdivision.

This will eliminate the need for complicated lights to handle traffic coming into the intersection from Rand Road, Thomas Street and Buffalo Grove Road.

Thomas Street was another problem because it takes a slight jog when it crosses Rand Road. State officials wanted the kink straightened out before putting in permanent signals. Land acquisition for this phase of the project also slowed plans.

"The greatest thing about this is that these youngsters have initiated this action. They have learned that the private citizens have a voice and can make that voice heard," Goins said. "The students will be glad to know their work got some action."

STUDENTS DIDN'T end their appeal for quick action with the accumulation of signed petitions. They talked about further action, including a possible protest march, renting billboards to advertise the danger at the intersection and other measures.

Craig Sjogren, a Hersey student, attended Arlington Heights Safety Commission Monday night to ask for the group's help in trying to get action. Sjogren was told by the commission the students had its full support.

Safety commission members told Sjogren to attend the village board meeting next week to request the board send a letter to Ogilvie. The letter would request the governor to give an executive order to speed installation of the traffic lights.

Former Gov. Samuel Shapiro issued such an order to install lights at Buffalo Grove and Palatine roads after two teen-agers were killed in the fall of 1968.

Man Is Injured In 1-Car Crash

Robert J. DeGraff, 49, of 4957 Kilpatrick, Chicago, was in satisfactory condition last night after a one-car accident in Wheeling.

According to Wheeling police, DeGraff was eastbound on Dundee Road when his car hit the dirt at the roadside, spun into a concrete post and did a complete sideways flip.

The car came to a stop 150 feet from where it left the road, about 150 feet west of the Portwine Road intersection. DeGraff was thrown 12 feet.

He was taken to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines. No report of his injuries was available.
